

POETRY.

INFANCY.

If there be perfect joy on earth,
That seems from heaven to have its birth,
It is, to see
The bud, that promises the rose,
Its cradled sweetness soft unclosed,
In infancy.

Pure hours! when all of life is light:
When, clothed in robes of stainless white,
The cherub lies;
Beloved, with holy tenderness,
And watch'd by orbs it seems to bless,—
A mother's eyes!

How riches far than summer bird,
The lisp'ng accents, fondly heard,
As days increase;
When rip'ng meanings light the brow,
And kind affection changeth low
Her song of peace!

Oh, blessed time, when every hour
Flies like the odor from a flower, Serene, and free;
When every charm of life is new,
And every scene that greets the view,
Is fair to see!

Sore, when these opening blossoms die,
And fade in beauty to the eye,
None should deplore;
For in a clime secure and bright,
Sustained by deathless air and light,
They pine no more.

A TOUCH ON THE TIMES.

Come listen and laugh at the times,
Since folly was never so ripe;
For every man laughs at those rhymes
That give his own follies a wipe:
We live in a kind of disguise—
We flatter, we lie, and protest;
While each of us artfully tries On others to fasten the jest.

The virgin when first she is wooed,
Returns every sigh with disdain;
And while by her lover pursued,
Can laugh at his folly and pain;
But when from her innocence won;
And doomed for her virtue to mourn;
When she finds herself lost and undone,
He laughs, though unjust, in his turn.

The fools who at law do contend,
Can laugh at each other's distress;
And while the dire suit does depend,
Ne'er think how their substance grows less:
'Till hampered by tedious expense,
Although to compound they are loth,
They find, when restored to their sense,
The lawyer sits laughing at both.

But while we perceive it the fashion
For each fool to laugh at the other,
Let us strive with a generous compassion,
To correct, not condemn, one another,
We all have some follies to hide,
Which, known, would dishonor the best,
And life, when 'tis thoroughly tried,
Like friendship, will seem but a jest.

VEGETABLE

Rheumatic Drops.

MANY articles are before the public, as a cure for that most obstinate and tormenting disease, the Rheumatism; and from close observation we are led to believe, that they have to a very great extent, failed to produce that desirable result—and may it not be attributed to the fact, that articles said to cure this troublesome disorder are also recommended to cure almost every disease with which our frail bodies are attacked, and in their preparation that object is kept in view, viz. to have the medicine a cure for all diseases.

The Vegetable Rheumatic Drops are offered to the public as a remedy for Rheumatism and as no case is known where a perfect cure was not effected, we are justified in declaring it a valuable medicine for that painful disease and for no other it is recommended.—Price 50 cents.

WHITE'S TOOTHACHE

DROPS.

THE only specific ever offered to the public from which a permanent and radical cure may be obtained, of that disagreeable pain, the TOOTHACHE, with all its attendant evils, such as fracturing the jaw in extricating the teeth, which often proves more painful than the tooth ache itself, and cold passing from the decayed tooth to the jaw fence to the head, producing a rheumatic affection, with many other unpleasant effects, such as a disagreeable breath, bad taste in the mouth &c. all of which are produced from foul or decayed teeth, I am happy to have it in my power to offer to the world, a remedy that will not only remove the pain, nine times out of ten if properly applied, but preserve the teeth from further decay, and arrest the disease in such as are decaying and have not commenced aching, restoring them to health and usefulness.

Eric, Pa. Oct. 16, 1832—the subscribers having witnessed the pleasing effects of Doctor Thomas White's Vegetable Toothache Drops, feel a pleasure in recommending it to those that are afflicted with the toothache, as a safe, and in most cases, perfectly efficient remedy for the disorder.
