JAMES GILBREATH, Collector.

SPAIN.

Madrid, Jan. 24.

Circular letter addressed by the king our master to the arch-bishops and bishops of his kingdom.

"Don Joseph Napoleon, by the grace of God, and the constitutions of the state, king of Spain and the Indies.

"In returning to this capital, our first care, as well as first duty, has been to prostrate ourselves at the foot of that God who disposes of our crowns.—We have offered him the homage of our existence for the felicity of a brave nation whom he has intrusted to our care. It is with this end only, in conformity with our dearest thoughts, that we have addressed to him our humble prayers.

"What is an individual in the immense population of the earth? What is he in the eyes of the Eternal, who alone penetrates the intentions of men, and according to them determines elevation? who sincerely wishes the welfare of his fellows, serves God, and his omnipotent goodness protects him.

"We desire, that in conformity with these dispositions, you direct the prayers of the faithful, whom Providence has intrusted to you. Let us all ask of God, that he deign to let fall upon us his spirit of peace and wisdom:—Let us abjure every passion, that we may be occupied alone by such sentiments as ought to animate us and which the general interests of this monarchy inspries: let the exercise of religion, tranquility and happiness succeed to the discords to which we have been a prey: let us return thanks to God for what he has pleased to grant to the arm of our august brother and powerful ally, the emperor of the French, who has no other end in supporting our rights by his power, than to procure to Spain a long peace founded on her independence.

"The French army will evacuate the Spanish provinces as tranquility shall be spread, as they shall unite around the throne.

"Our will is, that order each of the curates of your diocese to sing a solemn Te Deum the first Sunday after the receipt of this letter.

"Given at our palace of Madrid, the 24th of Jan. 1809.

(Signed)

I THE KING.

The minister secretary of state of his maj. stly.

Mariano Louis D'Urguino."

SUMMARY

of late and interesting private correspondence.

Communicated for the Phila. Register.

The latest letters from England mention the receipt of private information from France, of the discovery of a real or pretended conspiracy against Bonaparte, and that in consequence, 510 persons have been arrested at Paris alone. Several senators, generals, legislators, and prefects, were said to be implicated in a plot of removing Napoleon, and of placing the crown of France on the head of its legitimate prince Louis XVIIIth, as the only mean of restoring Europe to its long lost tranquility. No public examinations had taken place from fear, as was stated, of alarming the armies; but the prisoners underwent daily interrogatories in the temple and other revolutionary bastiles, before Fouché, and the confidential members of the secret police of the French emperor.—Strict search has been made after the duke of Angouleme, the presumptive heir of the French Bourbons, married the daughter of Louis XVI, who was supposed to be concealed at Paris. This prince was however, safe in England with his uncle Louis XVIII. Ferdinand VII, and his brother, were reported to be confined in the state prison the calle of Vincennes, near Paris, where the duke of Enghien was murdered in 1804. Bonaparte's journey to Germany is stated to have been retarded by these occurrences; and before he quitted his capital, he deposited his will in the senate, which the grand officers of state, as well as

The discontinuance of the British orders, as they respect the United States, having been thus arranged, a communication of the event has been forwarded, in one of our public vessels, to our Minister Plenipotentiary at Paris; with instructions to avail himself of the important addition thereby made, to the considerations which press on the justice of the French government a revocation of its decrees, or such a modification of them, as that they shall cease to violate the neutral commerce of the United States.

The revision of our commercial laws, proper to adapt them to the arrangement which has taken place with Great Britain, will doubtless engage the early attention of Congress. It will be worthy at the same time, of their just and provident care, to make such further alterations in the laws, as will more especially protect and foster the several branches of manufacture which have been recently instituted or extended by the laudible exertions of our citizens.

Under the existing aspect of our affairs, I have thought it not inconfidant with a just precaution, to have the gun boats, with the exception of those at New Orleans, placed in a situation, incurring no expense beyond that requisite for their preservation, and convenience for future service; and to have the crews of those at New Orleans reduced to the number required for their navigation and safety.

the members of the Senate swore, in case of any accident to him, punctually to execute.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, May 23, 1809.

THIS Day at 12 o'clock the PRESIDENT of the United States communicated by mr. Graham, the following Message to both Houses of Congress.

Fellow Citizens of the Senate, and of the House of Representatives,

ON this first occasion of meeting you, it affords me much satisfaction, to be able to communicate the commencement of a favourable change in our foreign relations; the critical state of which induced a session of Congress at this early period.

In consequence of the provision of the act interdicting commercial intercourse with Great Britain and France, our Ministers at London and Paris were, without delay, instructed to let it be understood by the French and British governments, that the authority vested in the Executive, to renew commercial intercourse with their respective nations, would be exercised in the case specified by that act.

Soon after these instructions were dispatched it was found that the British government, anticipating, from early proceedings of Congress at their last session, the state of our laws which has had the effect of placing the two belligerent powers on a footing of equal restrictions, and relying on the conciliatory disposition of the United States, had transmitted to their legation here provisional instructions, not only to offer satisfaction for the attack on the frigate Chesapeake and to make known the determination of his Britannic majesty, to send an envoy Extraordinary with powers to conclude a treaty on all points between the two countries; but moreover, to signify his willingness, in the mean time, to withdraw his orders in Council, in the persuasion that the intercourse with Great Britain would be renewed on the part of the United States.

These steps of the British government led to the correspondence and the proclamation now laid before you: by virtue of which, the commerce between the two countries will be renewable after the tenth of June next.

Whilst I take pleasure in doing justice to the counsels of his Britannic majesty, which no longer adhering to the policy which made an abandonment by France, of her decrees, a per-requisite to a revocation of the British orders, have substituted the amicable course which has issued thus happily; I cannot do less than refer to the proposal heretofore made on the part of the United States embracing a like restoration
