

POETICAL ASYLUM.

FROM THE AURORA.

THE TIMES.

An Ode for the Fourth of July, 1812.

Written by A. DAVIS.

Tune—Vive la.

Columbia's sons, your fires address you,
From the tombs bear them complain,
Britain fill our sons impressing,
Tyrannizes o'er the main.

Thousands doom'd to base subjection,
Spend in chains their hapless lives;
Torn from all that claims affection,
Parents, children, friends and wives.

Hear! the father thus bemoaning,
'Oh, my sons for you I die,'
While his captive children, groaning
In their gloomy dungeons lie.

See, the line of battle closing,
See, the gallant ~~be~~ advance,
See your hardy sons opposing,
Forced to fight the tara of France.

Arouse, assert the rights of freemen;
Rescue from their dens of woes;
Arouse and save impress'd slaves,
Rouse, to strike the faithless foe.

Britons! Christians! arm the savage,
Both alike with fury yell,
On our frontier how they ravage,
Like the furies los'd from hell.

See the woods with fire are gleaming,
Thus protection Britain sells;
Hear the babes and mother screaming,
Mix'd with hideous savage yell.

avarice, accuser of human vice;
Let avaricious earth behold;
Souls are bought at staled prices!
Madden pays the price in gold!

Freemen no longer hear such slaughter!
Avenge your country's cruel woes;
Rouse, and save your wives & daughters,
Rouse, and expel a faithless foe.

Britain o'er Columbia glories,
(Half seduc'd as she believes;)
Counting on a gang of tories,
Soon to half a group of tories.

Men who yield to base seduction,
Soon must bear their country's frown,
Doom'd to death and dire destruction,
Let the hand of wrath come down.

Danger binds us all together,
Round our eagle, freemen flock;
Our defence in stormy weather,
Union is our surest rock.

All in bonds of love united,
Rally under freedom's tree,
By our country's cause invited,
Let us perish or be free.

CHORUS.
Live forever constitution,
Live forever rights of man,
Live forever, O Columbia,
Here true liberty began.
