

POETICAL ASYLUM.

From the Vermont Intelligencer.
A Marry Heart doeth good like a Medicine.
 With mirth let us med'cine our hearts,
 'Tis a precept by Solomon given,
 And cheerfulness surely imports
 The temper best fitted for heaven.

Among all the numberless ways,
 By which folly contrives to be wrong,
 There is none which more fully displays
 Than wearing a visage too long.

Th' Omnipotent Donor designs
 That the gifts of His grace be enjoyed;
 Hence he that forever repines,
 Had be better employed.

When first was created our race,
 This earth for man's mansion was given.
 And shall he find fault with the place
 To which he's allotted by heaven?

*Tis a thing I believe understood,
 In which every sect is agreed,
 This world was declared to be good,
 For so in the bible we read.

Under providence tenants at will,
 A fine habitation we hold;
 For us to be murmuring still,
 Is wicked, ungrateful, and bold,

Yet well-meaning people I've seen,
 Who think true religion is shewn,
 With a sort of wo-begone mein,
 And whining, conventicle tone.

*Tis true there's a season to mourn,
 As Solomon say—nevertheless
 Our griefs should be manfully borne,
 And 'tis folly to cherish distress.

A train of diseases await
 On a heart that forever is sad;
 And some from a sorrowing state,
 Become irretrievably mad.

That religion can never be true,
 Which bows its disciples to earth,
 And he that has heaven in his view,
 Has the best of all titles to mirth.

With mirth then we'll med'cine our hearts,

'Tis a precept by Solomon given,
 For cheerfulness surely imports
 The temper best fitted for heaven.

FROM THE CONNECTICUT COURIER.
 "To the Right-about Face."

Mr. Printer—recollect very well when I was a boy and used to go training, hearing those words of command given by old capt. Hardin, (and a very fine captain he was too) and I deem it a very good command to many as well out of the military as in.

When I see a man very immoderate in politics, discarding candor, destroying his own happiness and other people's comforts, by his over heated zeal I think that he had better halt, and before he marches any farther, come "to the right-about face," at least till he has time to consider where he is marching to.

When I see a woman scolding her husband without a cause, and pouring on to his back, volley, after volley, I think to myself, friend if I was in your place, I would come to the "right-about face," at least till she shut the gate of her vol-ubility and ceased firing.

When I see a former liquidating his farm, and converting it into old Jamaica to gratify his palate, I think it would be well for him to come to the "right-about" and reflect whether he would have sufficient courage, and strength of nerve, to "face" want if he made his appearance.

When I see a man dealing in scandals, and delighting in invectives on all around him, I conclude that he had better come to the "right-about face" and, if he had no better ammunition, to close his batteries and cease firing.

When I see a merchant, in these days of inundations both of water and goods, extending his business far beyond his capital, I conclude that necessity will soon bring him to the "right-about face," and cause him to make a U-turn.

STEPHEN P. STRIKER,

Tailor & Habit Maker.

RESPECTFULLY informs the citizens of Vincennes and the public generally, that he has taken a part of the new house lately erected by Mr. T Jones (nearly opposite Mr. C. Graeters tavern) where he will strictly attend to, and faithfully execute all orders in the different branches of his business.

He hopes by the knowledge he has attained of his business, by being engaged in the first shops in Philadelphia; to merit at least a share of the public patronage.

TO THE PUBLIC

SENT E. E.—There appears to be a report in circulation through some channel unknown to me, that I have declined entertaining gentlemen that thought proper to give me a call—I believe the report is incorrect—when I think proper gentlemen to quit the business I will give you my determination through the medium of the Western Sun and Centinel.

Those that think proper to give me a call will find my attention to them the same that it has always been. I thank the public for the liberal encouragement they have afforded to me, and wish to remain the public's humble servant
