

POETICAL ASYLUM.

WOMAN.

When nature own'd the Almighty's hand,
When planets roll'd at his command,
And senseless clay in man was warm'd
The last great work then unperform'd Was woman.

For this the dormant Adam's side, Unconsciously, a rib applied:
Awake—his bosom rapture swell'd
For lo! within his arms he held,
A woman.

To sooth his woes, his cares to share,
And thus, his pristine loss repair,
'Twas surely heaven's kind design,
That man unto his side should join,
A woman.

A woman's tear, a woman's sigh,
The magic of a woman's eye,
Her smile and gentle accents prove,
The joys allied to wedded love,
And woman.

To weave the silken cobweb snare,
With syren song allure the ear,
With charms resistless rule the heart,
Of happy lover, is the art,
Of woman.

When vex'd with busy toils of day,
To ease the tired man gives way,
With converse sweet the hours beguiles, Repels dull care with placid smiles,
Of woman.

What tempts to plow the stormy main,
Or roam to distant climes for gain?
What prompts the willing hand to toil,
But beauty's weakness, beauty's smile,
But woman.

When journeying on with weary pace,
To meet again the fond embrace,
What cheers the way worn traveler's gloom,
But thoughts of long regretted home,
And woman.

When pensive grief bends o'er the grave
To weep the friend it could not save—
And silence sheds on friendship's bier,
The tribute of a fallen tear,
'Tis woman's.

And when affliction's mournful tale
Of sorrow's notes her ear assail, Oh! then escapes the rising sigh,
A glistening tear bedews the eye,
Of woman.

The art of paying agreeable compliments.

This art, or the faculty of exciting agreeable sensations by saying civil things, in terms not so blunt as to offend delicacy, nor so extravagant as to outrage the moral sense, is considered an enviable talent in conversation, and is an object of ambition to the disciples of Chesterfield.

I doubt very much, however, whether the greatest adept of that polite nobleman's school ever offered a compliment more effectually acceptable than one of my subscribers did a few days since, in the following note, attached to an agent's letter:—W—K—, presents his "compliments to Mr. Osborn, and—closes him five dollars for one year's "subscription for the Watchman."

There was one circumstance attending this complimentary note, which gives a thing of this kind its chief zest—and that is the unequivocal voucher of sincerity which accompanied it:—for the mischief is in it if there can be any thing like a joke in paying money, in these times: indeed I find it a very serious affair, and by no means a laughing matter.

My friends may call me vain, if they please: but I frankly confess, that the greatest profusion of such compliments as the above would not cause me to blush; or feel the least confusion! And if all or the most part of my subscribers, who have not yet paid in advance, will within a short time manifest only half as much real civility each, as W—K—, I will enter the lists pen in hand, as their champion, and insist, in defiance of all gainsayers, that the people of Delaware and its vicinity are the most polite and agreeable of any in the world.

FEVER AND AGUE

AND

Intermittent Fever, Cured.

THE subscribers have just received of Dr. Griffith, from New-Jersey, an infallible remedy for the above mentioned diseases. When this medicine was first announced to the citizens of New-York, Mr. John Murray, one of the most respectable merchants then certified that in thirty instances where he had known it used, a single box never failed to cure in three days, several other gentlemen there and of Cincinnati attested to its superior efficacy, it is safely taken in pills, or mixed with any drink, and has no sensible operation—printed directions accompany each box.

TO THE PUBLIC

GENTLE E.—There appears to be a report in circulation through some channel unknown to me, that I have declined entertaining gentlemen that thought proper to give me a call.—The report is incorrect—when I think proper gentlemen to quit the business, I will give you my determination through the medium of the Western Sun and Centinel.

Those that think proper to give me a call, will find my attention to them the same that it has always been. I thank the public for the liberal encouragement they have afforded to me, and wish to remain the public's humble servant
