B. PARKE

Now, therefore, be it known that I, James Monroe, President of the United States of America, having seen, and considered the said treaty, have, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, accepted, ratified and confirmed the same, and every clause and article thereof.

In testimony whereof I have caused, the seal of the United States to be hereunto affixed, and have signed the same with my hand.

Done at the City of Washington, this 15th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1819, and of the Independence of the United States the forty-third.

JAMES MONROE.

By the President:
JOHN QUINCY ADAMS,
secretary of state.

FROM PORCUPINES WORKS.

AN INFALLIBLE CURE FOR HARD TIMES.

1. Calculate your income, and be sure you do not let your expenses be quite so much; lay by some for a rainy day.

2. Never follow fashions, but let the fashions follow you—that is, direct your business and expenses by your own judgement, not by the custom of fools, who spend more than their income.

3. Never listen to the tales of complainers, who spend their breath in crying "Hard Times!" and do nothing to mend them.

4. It is truth, which all men ought to know and realize, that every man (those only excepted, who are not able to support themselves in any community) may live within his income, and thereby preserve his independence. If a man is poor, his taxes are small, unless he holds an estate which he cannot pay for. In such case he does not own it, and therefore ought to let the owner take it.

Industry and economy will forever triumph over hard times, and disappoint poverty. Therefore the general cry, that we cannot pay the taxes and live, is absolutely false.

It is true we feel, and ought to feel, some difficulties in paying for the glorious prize, independence. The taxes will be only temporary—but the prize immortal. And he is unworthy of freedom, who repines at paying his money, when so many patriots and heroes have laid down their lives to purchase it for their country.

I shall conclude with an extract of a sermon preached by a sound divine:—

"The scarcity of money is the only thing that will save this people. This alone can produce industry and economy, without which no people can be virtuous and happy.—This is an universal truth, applicable to all people in every country. It is impossible to be happy without industry, economy, and virtue: and as experience evinces that these are produced by what we call hard times, or the scarcity of money, we ought certainly to be thankful when we see the causes of public happiness operating. Therefore, let this circumstance excite in us gratitude to a kind Providence, for connecting future prosperity with present scarcity, and so ordering causes and events, that good shall come out of evil, necessity produces reformation, and hard times good times."

Discovery of an Ancient City.

A French traveller, now in Egypt, has discovered, at a distance of nine hours journey from the Red Sea, an ancient city built in the mountains, between the 24th & 25th degrees of latitude. There are 800 houses in existence. Among the ruins are found temples dedicated to various divinities.

There are eleven statues, and various ruins of others. He has also discovered the ancient stations that were appointed on the route through the Desert, going from the Red sea to the valley of the Nile. These stations are at regular distances of nine hours between each. This route is undoubtedly one of those traversed by the commerce of India—a commerce which was so flourishing at the time of the Lagides, and under the first Emperors. The situation is now ascertained of the emerald mine, of which no certain knowledge was had for several ages.

WANTS.

At this season of the year, wants are presumed to be more numerous than at any other.

The Poor wants the comforts, and many of them the necessities of life.

The Rich, in general, want the common feelings of humanity.

The Lawyer wants a rich client.

The Physician wants the payment of his bills.

The Mechanic ditto.

The Merchant wants an extension of credit.

Printers and Editors want—but it is needless to say what they want—as the preceding items will give a sufficient idea.

It is whispered that some Young Ladies want husbands—but as a number of elderly damsels have already be-spoken them, we think this must be a mistake. If it is not, we shall be very happy to correct it.

In conclusion, we believe it will be admitted by all, that every description of people want fortitude to bear with the ills of life—and that many, very many, want sufficient skill to float peacefully along the current of prosperity.
