

SELECTED POETRY.

THE FRIEND OF ALL.

There is a charm in Friendship's voice,
A feeling dear to age and youth,
Which bids the sorrowing soul rejoice,
And lights the flame of love and truth.
If heaven-bright skies be overcast,
Enshrouded with affliction's pall,
When the dark mists of woe have pass'd
A Sun shall shine—THE FRIEND OF ALL.

And if, when verging to the tomb,
No cheering ray of hope appear,
To guide the spirit through the gloom,
And lead her to a happier sphere—
Yet still let every murmur die,
And mercies past to mind recall;
Know there's a POWER enthron'd on high,
The fervent, faithful, FRIEND OF ALL.

O, after all the ills of life
In sad succession flee away,
Why should the soul prolong her strife,
Why wish in woe a longer stay?
Free as the air she wings her flight,
For now no more can guilt enthrall;
She hails the source of life and light,
THE ONE ETERNAL FRIEND OF ALL.
LOTHAIR.

From the Village Record.

ADDRESS TO MY CIGAR.

Yes social friend, I love thee well,
In learned doctors' spite;
I love the fragrant misty spell,
I love thy calm delight.

What tho' they tell, with phizzes long,
Our years are sooner past!
I would reply with reason strong,
They're sweeter while they last.

And oft, mild tube, to me thou art,
A monitor, thou still,
Thou speak'st lessons to my heart,
Beyond the preachers skill.

When in the lonely evening hour
Attended but by thee,
O'er history's varied page I pour,
Man's fate in thine I see.

Awake like thee the hero burns,
And smokes and fumes around,
And then like thee to ashes turns,
And mingles with the ground.

Thou'rt like the worthy man that gives
To goodness every day,
The fragrance of whose virtue lives,
When he has passed away.

Of when thy snowy column grows,
And breaks and fades away,
I trace how mighty valours thus rose,
Then tumbled to decay.

From beggar's rags to monarchs
robes
One common doom is cast;
Sweet nature's works the mighty
robe,
Must all burn out at last.

And what is he who smokes thee now?
A little moving heap,
That soon like thee to dust must go,
Like thee in ashes sleep.

And when I see thy smoke roll high,
Thy ashes downward go,
Methinks 'tis thus my soul shall fly,
Thus leaves my body low.

STRANGE ADVICE OF A LAWYER.

Mr. T. an eminent counsellor in the state of New-York, lately deceased, had lately acquired a large fortune by his profession, and as he had no children of his own, he had adopted a daughter and two sons, belonging to his sister. Among some other charges and bequests, the following was most prominent: "I give unto my daughter — and to my two sons, — and — the sum of $25,000 each: Provided that neither of them follow the degraded profession of a lawyer, priest or prostitute. Yet if providence in his wisdom shall have predestinated them to the e callings; my next prayer and request is, that the lawyer take no fee, the priest no salary, nor even the prostitute any reward. For now on the brink of my grave, I am convinced that neither earthquakes, famine or pestilence, have caused half so much misery to the human race as the general mercenary character of these professions!"

DRUNKENNESS.

O that men should put an enemy in their mouths, to steal away their brains! but we should with joy, revel, pleasure, and applause, transform ourselves into beasts!

FEMALE HEROISM.

Madame Lafont, during the French revolution, like the illustrious Madame Lavolette of our times, bought a permission to visit her husband who was imprisoned as a conspirator. It was discovered the following day that aided by a change of apparel and occupied in the prison in his stead, she had effected his escape. When arraigned at the tribunal, the representative addressed her in a menacing tone, "Wretch! what have you done?" "My duty," said she, "do yours."
