THE WESTERN SUN

VINCENNES, JANUARY 19, 1822.

We are informed that on the 10th inst. a party of citizens residing in Lawrence county, Illinois, who have for the punishment of clandestine offences, and the safety of the public weal, assumed the name of "Regulators," started out in pursuit of certain swindlers, counterfeiters and out-laws, who have for a long time infested their neighborhood, and respecting whom they had received some information—after travelling through a wilderness near 70 miles from the settlement, in a north west direction, they espied a small hut, almost obscured from view by bushes and brambles. On entering this cabin they found one object of their search, a man named Williams; he was surrounded by a set of blacksmiths' tools, and bellows, all in complete order. On taking Williams into custody he informed them where the molds, stamp, and other utensils, with some metal filed, and some in body, of different kinds, were secreted, with all the materials used by his employers for coining base money, and altering bank notes.—He also stated that William Norton, Fletcher, Cornelius Taylor, and Mathias Hollenback, were partners in the establishment, and that he was merely employed to hunt for their sustenance.—On this information of Williams, Hollenback was apprehended, and after being committed by Esqr. Anderson, of that county, to the care of a guard, (there being no county jail) he found means to escape. The other partners implicated are absent, and not expected to return to their late home for some time.

What may be their fate, if taken, it would not become us to say under existing circumstances: but it does appear by this achievement of the "Regulators," that a "power beyond the law" is sometimes attended with happy consequences. We have been inundated in this country with bad money, and bad men, of every description; and it is time to put a stop to that which is base, whether it be made under the law, or in defiance of law.—Banks and bankers, have issued bad money enough to injure us, and our posterity; let examples be made of those who follow a bad example.

INTERESTING FROM MEXICO.

MEXICO, SEPT. 28.

"The General (Yturbe) entered this city yesterday, at the head of 20,000 men. The provisional junta is now assembled, and a regency will be formed in the course of a few days. Every thing is perfectly quiet, and every prospect of its remaining so. I send you some public documents, which will convey you some ideas of the state of things here. It has been a most extraordinary revolution, effected without bloodshed, and has been precipitated altogether by the vile policy of the beloved Ferdinand. It is now well known, generally, that Ferdinand had sent secret orders to Apodaca to overturn the constitution in New Spain; and re-establish the despotic regime of the Bourbons. Apodaca confided the secret to the several chiefs among others to Yturbe, who, finding the country determined to maintain constitutional government, hoisted the tri-colored flag, and adopted a policy calculated to deceive Apodaca, who at that time might have crushed him in the bud; but Apodaca allowed it to spread abroad, and it ran through the country like wild-fire. Three-fourths of the European troops joined the independants, but, had it not been for the opportune arrival of O'Donoghue, Mexico being then garrisoned by 4000 resolute troops, might have shed much blood, and held out a considerable time."—Aurora.

["FROM NILES WEEKLY REGISTER."]

FOREIGN NEWS.—It is stated that the city of St. Domingo, in the island of St. Domingo or Hispaniola, alias Hayti, has surrendered to "the patriots"—Where from?

We have some account of the progress of things in the interesting island of Hayti. The government appears to have acquired every degree of regularity that belongs to others. The whole territory seems to be united and rapidly advancing in population and prosperity. The march of mind is evidently great; and the politician, in our opinion, does wrong, who does not calculate upon a powerful government in this island. Its effects no one can appreciate; but revolution would seem naturally to belong to them.

The power of this state is vested in a president, senate and house of representatives—harmony prevails, and every subordinate department seems to be respectable filled by honorable men, zealous for the republic. Instruction is much attended to, and its benefits are highly spoken of. The army is well organized and its means powerful. Respect to the laws is enforced by precept and example, and the people must be considered as in a flourishing condition.

The republic of Columbia has already prohibited the importation of Slaves. May God speed the republic for this excellent act! Porto Cavallo still remained in possession of the royalists, and many pirates are fitted out therefrom—but a speedy surrender or evacuation was expected. A British sloop of war has been at Porto Cavallo to remonstrate against acts of piracy, but was dismissed without receiving satisfaction. The owner of one of the piratical vessels from this place is the judge to decide upon the legality of captures! Those who fall into the hands of these miscreants are treated with an excess of cruelty.

The congress of Columbia has passed a vote of thanks to a number of public characters in Europe and America—among them are mentioned the names of lord Holland and the abbe de Pradt, Mr. Clay, late speaker of congress, and colonel Duane, editor of the Aurora, and sir ROBERT WILSON and Jas Mayrant, esqrs, members of the British house of commons.

The editor of the Aurora has received some private letters and public papers shewing the progress of things in Mexico. We learn, generally, from what is stated, that a new independent government has been firmly established and seated at the ancient capital of the empire, as has been before mentioned, at the head of which Yturbe is placed. The whole country appears to be quiet, and a castle at Vera Cruz seems to be the only place possessed by Spain—this is defended by an insignificant force, and must soon be reduced, if not surrendered. It is the opinion of Mr. Duane that, as early as the 28th of August last, "the connection between Mexico and Spain was severed forever." The people rejoice in their deliverance, and are determined to support their independence. A "sovereign congress" is established to make the needful regulations, &c. The press is apparently free, and discusses public matters—as it should do.

DIED.—In this city, on yesterday morning, the Hon. WILLIAM A. TRIMBLE, a senator of the United States from the State of Ohio, aged 35 years. He came to this city in very ill health from Albany, where he had lain ill for some weeks, and declined gradually from the moment of his arrival to that of his death.—Nat. Int.

A lawyer boasting that he was as true as a scale beam, a countryman coolly observed that, "it was probable, for (said he) a lawyer always turns in favor of the man who has the heaviest purse."
