

of Drummond's island, and proceeding in a direction to enter the passage between the island of St. Joseph's and the American shore, passing to the north of the intermediate islands, No. 61, 11, 10, 12, 9, 6, 4 and 2, and to the south of those whose numbers 15, 13, 5, and 1.

Thence, up the said last mentioned passage, keeping near to the island of St. Joseph's and passing to the north and east of Isle a la Corse, and of the small islands numbered 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20, and to the south and west of those numbered 21, 22, and 23, until it strikes a line (drawn on the map with black ink and shaded on one side of the point of intersection with blue and on the other side with red) passing across the river at the head of St. Joseph's island, and the foot of the Neebish rapids, which line denotes the termination of the boundary directed to be run by the sixth article of the treaty of Ghent.

And the said commissioners do further decide and declare, that all the islands lying in the rivers, lakes, and water communications, between the before described boundary line and the adjacent shores of Upper Canada, do, and each of them does, belong to his Britannic majesty, and that all the islands lying in the rivers, lakes, and water communications, between the said boundary line and the adjacent shores of the United States, or their territories, do, and each of them does, belong to the United States of America, in conformity with the true intent of the second article of said treaty of 1783, and of the 6th article of the Treaty of Ghent.

In faith whereof, we, the commissioners aforesaid, have signed this declaration, and thereunto affixed our seals.

Done, in quadruplicate, at Utica, in the State of New York, in the United States of America, this eighteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty two.

PETER B. PORTER [L.S.]
ANTH. BARCLAY, [L.S.]

From Poulson's American Daily Advertiser

A meeting of the African Institution, was held in London on the 10th of May. A long report was read stating the number of vessels employed openly by the French and clandestinely by the French and Dutch, in carrying on the traffic in slaves, and advertising in terms of praise to the South American governments in abolishing the trade; and that of the United States in declaring it piracy.

Mr. John Randolph was present and addressed the meeting on the subject.—The following notice of his remarks is given in the Times:

"Mr. Randolph (the distinguished American) then rose to return thanks for this mark of respect towards the United States of America.—He said that after the eloquence which had already been displayed upon this great subject, it would be an act of presumption, scarcely excusable in any stranger, but unparadonable in him, to intrude his unprepared expressions upon them after the able speeches which they had not only heard but felt. (Applause.) He was, however, impelled by a double motive, which he could not resist, to offer himself for a few moments to their attention. First, to discharge an act of duty in behalf of his native land, in the absence of its official representative—an absence as unexpected by himself as it was unforeseen—and which had cast upon him a duty he felt inadequate to perform; that of thanking this meeting for the grateful sense they had expressed towards America, and also to assure them, all that was exalted in station, in talent, and in moral character, among his countrymen, was, (as was also to be found in England) firmly united for the suppression of this infamous traffic. (Loud applause.) It was delightful to him to know that Virginia, the land of his sires the place of his nativity, had for half a century affixed a public brand, an indelible stigma, upon this traffic, and had put in the claim of the wretched objects of it to the common rights and attributes of humanity. (Loud applause.) He repeated his thanks to the meeting for the flattering reception they gave him.

"The plainness of Mr. Randolph's appearance, his republican simplicity of manner, and easy and unaffected address, attracted much attention; he sat down amidst a burst of applause."

Cape of Good Hope.—Painful accounts have lately been received of the great distresses of the agricultural emigrants, in consequence of the failure of the crops for two seasons. Many of them were absolutely starving. Some relief has been administered from Cape-town, but not sufficient to check the alarming distress. It is said the emigrants are indignant at their treatment, but dare not give vent to their complaints, lest the slender supply from Cape-town be cut off by the governor, who, as he has ten thousand pounds a year for his own provisions, may not be easily persuaded of the real extent of the calamity.

Extract of a letter from an officer of the American army, to his friend in Baltimore, dated.

"Fort Smith, Arkansas, May 15.

"The war which has existed between the Osage and Cherokee nations of Indians is, I am happy to state, about, being settled to the mutual satisfaction of the parties, in which I have no doubt the United States will participate, as the government feels a lively interest in its speedy adjustment. It has existed, I believe, since 1818, since which time many barbarities, of the most shocking character, have been committed on both sides, but more particularly by the Cherokees, the Osages being more disposed to steal horses than to kill warriors. A council of the chiefs of each nation will, it is expected, assemble at this post in about a month, to effect a treaty of amity, at which the governor will be present. Having never witnessed an assembly of the kind, I anticipate the gratification of my curiosity at least."

FROM THE CLARION, TEXAS.

A gentleman who arrived last week from New Orleans, states that on his way up, he saw a respectable and intelligent traveller immediately from Texas, who informed him that Stephen F. Austin, Esq. the ostensible grantee of the land including the mouth of Colorado river, was unfortunately, a few days before he left the country, drowned in that stream. Our informant could not state what would be the effect of this mishap on the settlement that was forming under A's auspices, but presumed it would produce no immediate difficulty to the settlers, as it was reasonable to suppose, that some one of the company of whom Judge Austin had been considered principal, without loss of time would effectuate in his place as the director of the settlement.
