

unemployed workmen to state, that little impression appears to have been made by these inflammatory harangues, and the more secret means which, no doubt, have been resorted to, to produce riot, in order that a few unprincipled incendiaries may profit by it, and plunder their neighbours.

The Albion of the 29th, says: "We lament to state that the distress which we have so often had occasion to mention, continues to increase day after day. Some hundreds of our wretched countrymen are added to the thousands already destitute of employment. An accumulation of misery is occasioned which demands instant relief. The funds so prominently raised by private subscriptions are exhausted, and in our opinion it becomes the imperative duty of the government to institute an immediate inquiry into the state of the country."

At Manchester there were slight appearances of improvement in business.

The King had given a further donation of 1000*l* to the Spitalfields weavers.

A serious riot had taken place at Dumfries in consequence of a mealmonger taking advantage of an inadequate supply, and attempting to advance the price of meal 2*d*. per stone. He barely escaped with his life.

The cotton weavers of Belfast forwarded a memorial to the government, praying ministers to take their state into consideration, and grant them an opportunity of emigrating, before the inclemency of winter adds to their sufferings.

Spain.—The Constitutionnel contains a letter from Madrid, dated the 13th July, in which it is stated, that the Captain General of Badajoz had sent an express to Madrid for a reinforcement of troops, which he considers absolutely necessary, from the public feelings having taken a new direction, as well for the purpose of strengthening the garrison as for placing detachments in several towns in the provinces, particularly those nearest the Portuguese frontier. The same letter states, that the public mind has undergone a similar change in the capital itself. The arrival of couriers from Lisbon and Paris succeeded each other with great rapidity.

London, July 27*th*.—By the Turkey mail, this morning, accounts from Smyrna to the 21*st*. and from Constantinople to the 29*th* July, were received. The capture of the pirates had been so extensive and daring, that the English merchants had called on the consuls and other authorities for their protection, and for remonstrances to our admiralty board on the subject. It would appear, the goods taken out of our merchantmen were only exposed to sale at Smyrna, &c. Various modes of protection are suggested to Lloyds by the English consul at Smyrna. The Cambrian man-of-war had destroyed above twenty of the pirate vessels. The destruction of the Janissaries continued at Constantinople.

London, July 25.—The merchants and others connected with Greece, are disappointed this morning at the absence of intelligence respecting Lord Cochrane.—We cannot find that the Mediterranean Packet brings any accounts of his squadron. We understand that he was expected at Napoli di Romania.

Mirvellous.—The London Courier has copied the following story from the Etoile a Paris paper, of a man being restored to life after having been frozen under an avalanche for one hundred & seventy years. The editor calls upon major Longbow, Munchausen, & Ferdinand Mendez Pinto to hide their diminished heads.

"Dr. James Hotham, of Morpeth, in Northumberland, returning from Switzerland, is stated to have reported, that a most extraordinary event had lately passed at the foot of Mount St. Gothard, a league from Azeoli, in the valley of Levatina. At the bottom of a kind of cavern, the body of a man about thirty years of age, was perceived under a heap of ice, proceeding from an avalanche. As the body seemed to be fresh, as if it had been stifled only half an hour before, Dr. Hotham caused it to be taken out, and having had the clothes pulled off, ordered it to be plunged into cold water. It was then so frozen that it was covered with a crust of ice. It was then put in a warm bed, and treated as usual in cases of suffocation, by which means animation was restored. What was the astonishment of every body when the individual, having recovered the use of his faculties, declared that he was Roger Dodsworth, son of the antiquary of the same name, born in 1629, who returning from Italy in 1660, a year after the death of his father, was buried under an avalanche.

"Dr. Hotham, according to the same account, is stated to have added, that Mr. Dodsworth feels a great stiffness in all his joints, but that by degrees they will become as flexible as before the accident. If Mr. Dodsworth fully recovers, and should pass through Lyons to return to his country, after 166 years absence, it may be predicted that he will attract in the highest degree the public curiosity."

Anecdote.—A rustic being indicted for being too rude to a young woman, said, in defence that the prosecutrix had frequently come into his garden to steal beans, & that he at length told her, if she came again she should not depart without a green gown. This he proved by two witnesses and was acquitted. As he was leaving court, a barrister called out to him—"Indeed young man, you have taken a very good method to save your bacon, but a very bad one to save your beans."
