

one devoted to manufactures, the other to commerce, spring up, where, in my boyhood, nothing appeared like civilization but the hut of the soldier or of the sutler.

I have lived to see a revolution produced by mechanical philosophy, equal to that effected by the art of printing. It has changed the character of western commerce, and almost proved that the poetical wish for "annihilating time and space," was not altogether hyperbolical. By it, New-Orleans and Pittsburg have become near neighbors.

I have lived to see the day, when a visit to N. Orleans, from Cincinnati, requires no more preparation than a visit to a neighboring county town. I remember when it required as much previous arrangement as a voyage to Calcutta.

I have lived to see vessels of three hundred tons arriving in twelve or fifteen days from New-Orleans at Cincinnati, and I calculate upon living to see them arrive in ten days.

I have lived to see vessels composing an amount of tonnage of upwards of four thousand tons, arrive in one week at the harbor of Cincinnati.

All these things I have seen, and yet I feel myself entitled to be numbered among the young men of the west.

HESPER.

PICTURE OF AREQUIPA, PERU. Extract of a letter from William F. Taylor, Esq. Consul of the United States for the ports of Arica and Quica, residing in the city of Arequipa—to his friend in Baltimore:

"This city contains about fifty thousand inhabitants, and is situated in a large and beautiful, well watered plain. It was formerly the residence of many of the richest and noblest Spanish families, and is now, of many of the wealthiest merchants in Peru. In every street there is a stream of running water, the houses are tolerably well built, and the inhabitants civil, and hospitable to strangers. The city is surrounded with farms, villages, &c. and at a distance is seen, in all directions, snow-capt-mountains—Quilca is the nearest port, and in a direct line is about twenty leagues distant; but by the road, which is mountainous, about twenty-five leagues; this port is about to be abandoned, and Islay, much better in every respect, and nearer to Arequipa, substituted for it. Arica is distant about thirty leagues, a good harbor, and near the city of Tacua, which is a small and ugly place. Both Quilca and Arica may be said to be ports of entry to Arequipa. The climate is very fine and dry and the air pure, being situated about eight thousand feet above the level of the sea. Last year we had not a drop of rain, but this year we have had plentiful showers, and the consequence is, the country looks delightful, and generally healthy. The productions are corn, wheat, barley, cotton, sugar cane &c, and some delicious fruits, viz: oranges, citrons, pomegranates, peaches, pears, apples, blue and white grapes, strawberries, &c. Some of the peaches here are of exquisite flavour, and the strawberries of extraordinary size.—The bark collected in this vicinity is celebrated all over the world for its medicinal virtues, samples of which, with cotton, wool, wheat, &c. you will receive with this.

From October to June it is warm, but not to say uncomfortable in Arequipa—both summer and winter clothing is indispensably necessary—between June and October the weather is cool and pleasant, at night is rather cold, and in the morning I have found my cloak very comfortable—in the month of July and August I have seen ice as thick as a dollar.

Couriers are sent off twice a month to Lima, they are allowed fifteen days—3 times a month to Cuzco, and the same to Tacua—they perform the journey in five days—once a month to Buchos Ayres by way of Potosi, which takes between forty and fifty days.

Almost twelve miles from Arequipa there is a mountain twelve thousand seven hundred and eighty feet above the level of the city, and the city is said to be near eight thousand feet above the surface of the Pacific; it has two points or summits, each of which has its mouth or aperture: out of one ascends, continually, something like smoke or vapour; it is a volcano; and the smallest mouth or aperture I should judge was larger than Monument Square in your city. There has been no eruption, as far as I can learn, since the conquest of Peru."

Wit, vs. Surgery—Some wags of a neighboring town returning a few nights since from a convivial meeting, stole from a Mercer's shop a sign-board, on which were inscribed the words "Funerals furnished on the most reasonable terms," and affixed it immediately under the door plate of a surgeon who had recently met with several unfortunate slips.

THE CASKET

Or, Flowers of Literature, Wit, and Sentiment, for 1827.

Office of the Saturday Evening Post, Philadelphia Dec. 2, 1826.

THE Casket, or Flowers of Literature, Wit, and Sentiment, which has had an unprecedented increase of patrons during the last six months, will after the present volume is finished, contain each number, 40 octavo pages, printed well, on small handsome type, upon the finest paper, stitched and covered, and furnished at the low price of Two Dollars and fifty cents per annum. The Casket is a collection from the choicest pieces of the Saturday Evening Post, made with a reference to the difference which should exist in the materials of a weekly paper, and those of a monthly publication, the former of course enriched with essays, poetry, anecdotes, and those set off by a recital of the occurrences of the week.—The latter can receive little value from a mere detail of events, many of which would cease to be interesting before they were recorded.

The vast quantity of matter crowded, by small type, and careful arrangement into the columns of every number of the Saturday Evening Post, will, in the course of a month, furnish the most ample materials from which to form an interesting periodical work such as the Casket has been considered by its partial friends, and such as we intend, it shall be. Notwithstanding the fact, that the Casket is but a collection from the columns of the Saturday Evening Post, we confidently predict, and indeed we are sanctioned, in the experience we already have, that its most numerous patrons will be found among the subscribers to our weekly paper. A large number of those who take the "Post," depend upon that paper for the news of the week—it is therefore read with avidity by almost every member of the family where it is received, and this general use frequently injures its appearance so much, as almost to render it unfit for the file, and for binding. The numbers too, by this general use, are not unfrequently lost, mutilated, or entirely destroyed, and the file thus broken. The Casket is calculated to prevent this inconvenience, and to furnish, at a very cheap price, all the useful matter for which the weekly paper would be desirable when bound.

In thus giving a permanent form and select association to the choice pieces of our weekly contributions, it is confidently anticipated, that new and successful inducements will be held out for the exercise of superior talent, and unusual care in our literary department. In addition to the recommendation of neatness in the general appearance—and particular attention to the typographical execution, it is our intention to embellish each number of the "Casket" with three handsome Engravings, from the hands of some of the most distinguished artists of the country.

With these claims to patronage, the "Casket" will, as has been previously mentioned, be afforded to those who subscribe for that paper exclusively, at the low price of two dollars and fifty cents per year, subscription which, it is confidently believed, is much lower than that for any publication of a similar character in this country—but to the subscribers of "The Saturday Evening Post," "The Casket" will be furnished for two dollars.

The January No. for 1827, will be embellished with a portrait of the venerable John Adams, formerly President of the United States, one of Longacre's best engravings: Also, a correct and beautiful view of Fair Mount Water Works, in the vicinity of Philadelphia: besides the first number of the School of Flora, being the commencement of a regular series of Treatises on Botany, illustrated with numerous cuts.

Postmasters and publishers of papers who will interest themselves in obtaining subscribers, and be responsible for the subscription, shall be entitled to every sixth copy gratis. Address

ATKINSON & ALEXANDER, Philadelphia.

Persons wishing to subscribe, will please to send in their names by the first of the year, as there is no doubt the demand for the work will be greatly increased, and, therefore, the possibility of being furnished with the numbers from the beginning, will be rendered more doubtful.

Editors inserting the above two or three times, shall receive a copy of the work.

Subscription for the above work received at this office.

MASONIC MIRROR, and Mechanics' Intelligencer.

BY MOORE & SEVEY.

THIS work has been two years before the public.—Its success has been such as to place it, in point of numbers, on an equality with the first periodical publications in the country: and the publishers, sensible of the many obligations due their Masonic Brethren, for the exercise of their influence in giving it this extensive circulation, are encouraged to a renewal of their best efforts.

Free Masonry is a subject that has engrossed the attention of man, from the primitive ages to the present: and its mystic beauties, like its elder sister, Religion, have commanded the respect and adoration of the wise and good. The first object of the Institution, is to preserve its members from the immoral infection by which they are surrounded in the various walks of life—unite them in the bonds of Charity & Peace—sublimate their minds with the noblest principles of nature, and render them fit for the service of a purer being: that, when the Grand Master of the Universe appears in the splendid robes of his majesty and glory, to inspect the Universal Lodge, he may say to them—"Well done good and faithful," enter the glorious Temple of the living God, and encircle his throne forever. To inculcate this sentiment, has been the primary object of the MIRROR, and the publishers have the satisfaction to believe they have not labored in vain. In addition to this, the Masonic Department contains Historical Essays on the Origin and Progress of the Order: Hymns, Songs, and such intelligence as is calculated to interest or instruct.

The Scientific Department of the paper, is designed to afford Mechanics, whose avocations and means preclude them the perusal of voluminous works, a cheap, but correct source of information, relative to their trades and professions.—It contains such extracts & original communications, as are best calculated to serve their views and interests.

The Miscellaneous Department comprises Historical Sketches, Fancy Tales, Instructive Lessons, Anecdotes, Poetry, and such other branches of Polite Literature, as are adapted to Female taste, or have a tendency to promote the Youthful Genius in its researches. A summary of Foreign, Domestic, and Political Intelligence is furnished weekly, comprising every article of news worthy of record.

CONDITIONS.

The MIRROR is published every Saturday morning, on a royal sheet of fair complexion and fine texture, each number containing eight large quarto pages, at $2 per year, in advance—$3 per year, payable in ninety days after subscribing. $1 50 cents for six months—$1 for three months, in advance. The paper can be obtained on no other conditions.

Those who act as agents, procure six annual subscribers, and become responsible for their yearly payments, shall be entitled to a 7th copy gratis, so long as the said six may continue to receive the paper.

Letters must be post paid. Agents transmitting money are requested to be particular in forwarding the names of the individuals to whom it is to be credited.

The numbers from the commencement of the third volume can be supplied, if required.
