Hats made in the shops here, are in general, much superior to those imported from the Eastern states, for the latter are made of the coarsest wool, and naped with rabbit fur—the farmers would find it to their interest, at least 25 per cent. to purchase from the manufacturers—I pledge myself that my HATS shall be made in the best manner, of superior stuff, and in the most Fashionable style.

BLANK DEEDS for sale at the W. Sun, office.

CUMBERLAND ROAD.

PROPOSALS for contracts for opening the Cumberland road, located through the state of Indiana, will be received by the Superintendents at the Post-Offices in Centerville, Wayne county; Indianapolis, Marion county; Greencastle, in Putnam county; and Terre Haute, in Vigo county, until the 31st day of July, next ensuing. The work is to be done in the following manner, to wit:

The road is to be opened eighty feet wide, the timber on that width cut off and removed, the stumps must be cut low; for thirty feet of the central part of the road the stumps must be grubbed up, and removed from off the whole width of eighty feet. The said thirty feet to be levelled, the hills cut down, and the valleys filled up, so that on no part of the aforesaid width of thirty feet, the elevation of the road shall exceed an angle of four degrees with the horizon. Wherever the road is to be raised for the purpose of carrying the road over a valley, the sides of the embankment must be made to slope at an angle not exceeding thirty degrees with the horizon, or with a base of about one and a half feet for each foot in height; and in all cases the width of thirty feet at the surface must be preserved, making a proper allowance for the settling of earth, and no stumps or wood of any kind to be permitted in filling up.—Where hills are cut through, or the road dug along the side of a hill, the bank must be cut at such a slope as to prevent the earth from slipping on the surface of thirty feet, the slopes thereupon varying according to the ground. On each side of the said thirty feet, and contiguous to it, a ditch must be made of such breadth and depth, as to lead the water freely off, and prevent its flowing on the road.

Commencing at Indianapolis, the road will be divided both Eastwardly and Westwardly, into sections of one mile each, in the following manner, viz:—Eastwardly from the 72 mile post at Indianapolis, to the 71 mile post or tree, to be the first section Eastwardly; from the 71 to the 70 mile post or tree, to be the second section, and so on to the state line between this state and the state of Ohio. And Westwardly, beginning at Indianapolis, and from thence to the first mile post or tree, to be the first section; from the first to the second mile post or tree, the second section, and so on to the state line dividing this state and Illinois.

Proposals for opening the road agreeable to the aforesaid regulations, will be received at the places, and until the time before mentioned. Contracts will be given to the lowest bidders, and not more than ten sections, (ten miles,) will be given to any one contractor. No advances of money will be made to any, and no bonds for performance are required; monthly payments will be made to contractors, equal to three fourths of the value of the work actually performed.

It is expected that undertakers will commence their work immediately, or so soon as possible, and complete it in a reasonable time. Articles of agreement will be entered into between the contractors and the United States, as to the manner of doing the work, and the time for its completion. Should any person offer for more than one section, he will specify distinctly and separately, the sections, and the amount for which he will complete each, and the whole.

Persons whose proposals may be accepted, will be notified immediately of the same, and directed where to attend to enter into articles of agreement. Should the present appropriation of fifty thousand dollars, not be sufficient to open the whole road, it is to be understood that no contracts will be made for a greater portion than may be opened by means thereof.

JOHN MILROY,
