

bought satirages of a large majority of his fellow citizens, must speedily discover that they are justly despised for their disingenuousness and malignity. But, it is not necessary for us to deprecate, much less to combat, assertions which no intelligent man believes. On the subject of the authorship of the Message, Gen. Jackson's opponents will soon demonstrate that they do not believe themselves, by holding him responsible for such parts of it as they may hereafter deem it expedient to disapprove.

The Editor of the Kentucky Commentator, though he declares that there are some sentiments advanced in the Message, in which he does not concur, speaks of the production, as "one which the friends of the present administration will be proud of—and justly so." He also says:

"The style is of the very first order—neat, succinct and unostentatious. A great variety of topics are touched upon, and most of them in a way to which no exception can be taken."

When the bitter enemies of the President are constrained to speak thus favorably of his Message, his friends may not only be permitted to confess that they do feel a patriotic pride in consequence of the intelligence and the grasp of intellect displayed by their favorite—but they may safely challenge a comparison between the document under consideration, and the messages of any of his predecessors. Neither of the messages of Mr. Adams, though he was admitted to be an able writer by friends and enemies, will bear a comparison with that of Gen. Jackson. But enough of this.—Its style is so chaste—its arrangement so neat, and the views of its venerable author are so explicitly stated, that explanation or eulogy are alike unnecessary. The leading topics which it embraces will hereafter be noticed, as financial specimens permit.—Public Ad.

WASHINGTON CITY, DEC. 8.
CONGRESS.

The House of Representatives assembled yesterday, in conformity with the article of the Constitution providing for its meeting on the first Monday in December; and upon the list of members being called over, 136 answered to their names. The House, having been organized by the Clerk, proceeded to the election of a Speaker; when upon a ballot, there appeared for the Hon. Andrew Stephenson, of Virginia, 152; William D. Martin 21, Joel B. Sutherland 4, John W. Taylor 3, Henry R. Storrs 2, Henry W. Storrs 1, Henry Y. Storrs 1, Henry C. Martin 1, Ambrose Spencer 1, Sterling Tucker 1, blanks 1.

It will thus be seen, that out of 136, the number of members present, Mr. Stephenson received one hundred and fifty-two. The remaining votes were scattered, neither Mr. Martin, Mr. Sutherland, Mr. Storrs, nor the other gentlemen voted for being candidates. The election of officers of the House then took place; Mr. Rumsey nominated Matthew St. Clair Clark, Esq. for clerk of the House, for the twenty-first Congress. Mr. Johnson of Kentucky, after moving for a postponement of the election until Thursday, and subsequently, until to-morrow, proposed Virgil Maxey, Esq. of Maryland. A ballot taken upon this proposition, Mr. Clark was elected by a vote of 135. In announcing this result, it is due to Mr. Maxey as well as to the friends of that gentleman, to state that he was absent from the city, and that his name was put in nomination without his knowledge or consent among his friends. Mr. John O. Dims was unanimously re-elected to the office of Sergeant at Arms, Captain Benjamin Borch was elected Door Keeper, and Mr. Overton Carr, assistant Door Keeper. Col. Devotion of South Carolina, and General Bisher of Tennessee, were appointed a committee to wait upon the President to inform him that the House was in session, and prepared to receive any communication from him; after which, an adjournment took place until twelve o'clock to-day.

JOURNAL OF HEALTH.

CONDUCTED BY AN ASSOCIATION OF PHYSICIANS.

HEALTH**

The poor man's riches the rich man's bills.

FOR the information of their medical brethren, whose assistance they invoke, and of the public at large, for whom the work is mainly intended, the conductors of the JOURNAL OF HEALTH deem it proper to state with brevity, the aim and scope of their efforts.

Deeply impressed with a belief, that mankind might be saved a large amount of suffering and disease, by a suitable knowledge of the natural laws to which the human frame is subjected, they propose laying down plain precepts, in easy style and familiar language, for the regulation of all the physical agents necessary to health, and to point out under what circumstances of excess or misapplication they become injurious and fatal.

The properties of the air, in its several states of heat, dryness, moisture and electricity, the relative effects of the different articles of solid and liquid aliments; the manner in which the locomotive organs, senses, and brain, are most beneficially exercised, and how, and under what circumstances, morbidly impressed; clothing, for protection against atmospheric vicissitudes, and a cause of disease, when under the direction of absurd fashions bathing and frictions, and the use of mineral waters,—shall be prominent topics for enquiry and investigation in this Journal.

The modifying influence of climate and localities, legislation, national and corporate, on health—a branch of study usually designated by the term Medical Police—will furnish subjects fraught with instruction, not less than amusing and curious research.

The value of dietetic rules shall be continually enforced, and the blessings of temperance dwelt on, with emphasis proportioned to their high importance and deplorable neglect. Physical Education—so momentous a question for the lives of children, and happiness of their parents—shall be discussed in a spirit of impartiality, and with the aid of all the data which have been furnished by enlightened experience.

The Journal of Health will on all occasions be found in opposition to empiricism; whether it be in the form of nursery gossip, mendacious reports of nostrum makes and venders, or recommendations of even scientifically compounded prescriptions, without the special direction of a physician—the only competent judge, in the individual case of disease under his care.

The prevention of diseases incidentally arising from the practice of the different professions, arts and trades, will be laid down with clearness and precision; nor shall the situation of those engaged in naval and military life be overlooked in this branch of the subject.

Diversed of professional language and details, and varied in its contents, the Journal of Health will, it is hoped, engage the attention of the female reader, whose amusement and instruction shall constantly be kept in view during the prosecution of the work.

TERMS:

The Journal of Health will appear in numbers of 16 pages each, octavo, on the second and fourth Wednesday of every month. Price, per annum, 1 dollar 25 cts. Subscriptions and communications (post paid) will be received by JUDAH DODSON, agent No. 103, Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

Subscribers at a distance will discover, that the difficulty in remitting the amount of a single subscription will be obviated by any four of them sending on five dollars to the agent. Those to whom this may not be convenient, can receive sixteen numbers of the work by remitting a dollar to the same person.

The Journal of Health, including Index, will from at the end of the year a volume of 400 pages, 8vo.

PROPOSALS

BY A. F. MORRISON.

FOR PUBLISHING AT INDIANAPOLIS, A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, TO BE ENTITLED THE INDIANA DEMOCRAT.

IN offering these proposals to the public, it is the intention to be brief, explicit and positive. The Democrat will maintain the principles which its title indicates, and may be depended upon as the faithful representative of the feelings of the Democratic Republicans of Indiana; having for its object, a decided and vigorous support of the character of the present national administration.

It is not our design to be abusive, vindictive or ungenerous to our political opponents; but on the contrary to treat respectfully those who may honestly differ with us in their political preferences; nevertheless, to guard, as far as practicable, a virtuous community from the schemes of political temporizers and traffickers, who, under the garb of patriotism, would esteem a free people, but as vassals of their will and tributaries their ambition.

The establishment of a genuine Jackson paper at the Metropolis of Indiana, has long been a desideratum with the Democratic Republicans of the State, and frequent solicitations to the Editor, who now proposes to comply with the desires of the party, have induced him to dispose of the "Republican Statesman," in Clark County, and again to trust his fate in the hands of his political friends, by asking their patronage in a more extended sphere.

On the known uniformity of his character as a Jackson man in the two most recent contests for the presidency, and his experience as the conductor of a public journal, the Editor might, as he conceives, safely rest his claims to the confidence of the party, in whose cause he early enlisted and for whose success he fearlessly contended; but for their entire satisfaction he will state, that the Democrat may be relied upon as the accredited and correct channel for the dissemination of the sentiments of the party, entirely devoted to its interests; and that it will, on all occasions, stand firm in the support of all its virtuous officers and measures.

The Democrat will be issued on a large, fine super-royal sheet, on a new and elegant type, and besides being a political vehicle, will furnish a due portion of news, literary, scientific, interesting and common topics of the times, at the earliest periods—together with a detail of legislative proceedings.

In regard to the local concerns of Indiana, it will be the advocate of such a policy as will tend to develop and protect the great interest of the State, and of such men as have capacity and honesty sufficient to call into active operation the grand resources of the country, on principles of justice and prudence.

Terms of Subscription.—Two dollars per annum if paid in advance, or at the rate of twenty-five cents addition per quarter for delinquencies. No subscription received for a less term than one year unless paid in advance.
