NEW WARDROBE FOR QUEEN'S VISIT

By Margaret Slattery

LONDON, March 26 — Elizabeth II is having an entirely new wardrobe designed for her Australian tour and Canada visit. The designer of the wardrobe is Edward B. Price, director of the British Fashion House of Hartnell and Hardy Amies, who is also responsible for the Queen Mother's costumes.

Having designed the function of the Queen's clothes and shoes for a number of years, this is the first time that he has been given such an extensive opportunity to design clothes for the Queen. The wardrobe includes a variety of styles and materials, including suits, dresses, and accessories, all designed to suit the Queen's needs and tastes.

Throughout the visit, the Queen will wear clothes that have been specially created for her, and these will be shown to the public as soon as they are completed. The wardrobe is intended to provide a range of options for the Queen, from formal evening wear to casual day dresses, to suit various occasions and environments.

When asked if there are any particular items he is looking forward to creating, Price said: "I have the task of creating an image for the Queen that is appropriate for her role as Head of State. This involves creating outfits that are both elegant and practical, suitable for all occasions and locations."
