THE STORM RESISTANT COMPOUND, DETROIT, MICH.
An application for a watershed project in the Mill Creek Watershed was submitted in March, 1960, to the Department of Agriculture. The Soil and Water Conservation Districts of Putnam, Hendricks, Marion, and Owen Counties sponsored the project, which, because of financial assistance in solving the soil and water management problems in this area.

Ports of Putnam, Hendricks, Marion, and Owen Counties are included in this 180-square-mile region that drains into Collier Lake.

Farm owners within the area formed a steering committee to reconstitute the interests of all four counties in the work. George Porter of Putnam County was chosen chairman, and other members are Edward Askew of Putnam County, Elroy Padgett of Marion County, Raymond Anderson of Hendricks County, and Woody Sharp and Charles Jordan of Owen County.

The application was prepared and approved by the Indiana Flood Control and Water Resources Commission and was then forwarded to the Soil Conservation Service. Field surveys were begun by the SCS in November, 1960. A preliminary investigation report is now being submitted by the Steering Committee to the Supervisors, Commissioners, and the State Conservation Service.

Other cooperating agencies involved in this project from money appropriated by Congress for final approval as a project. Additional field surveys were made and 20 of the 18 proposed structures were found to be economically feasible. Presently, the SCS is completing this project. Among the structures is one to be financed by Public Law 566 that the area would benefit by this project. The major portion of the cost of this project is being incurred by the area.

The steering committee has recommended a "final plan" for the project. This plan is expected to be submitted to the State Conservation Service for final approval. The project will then be submitted to the U. S. Congress for final approval.

Additional field surveys will be conducted by the Steering Committee to assist in the final decision on the project. Additional field surveys will be conducted.

Infectious Or Contagious Diseases

Dear Mrs. E.: Vitamin B is no cure for anything and there is no medical theory that explains why it acts in this way. However, there is no ease, there is a lapse of time between the exposure to a contagious disease and the manifestation of the disease.

Dear Mr. P.: The proper way to blow the nose is to hold the tissue or napkin away from the mouth, not into

it. You may find that person.

Doctor, I'd Like To Know

WHAT is the institution to which every third-year medical darmin' goes for his tour of duty? Mrs. P.H., Conn.

Infectious Or Contagious Diseases

Infectious or contagious diseases are diseases that can be contracted by direct or indirect contact with infected persons or with things infected with the disease. For certain diseases the disease can be acquired much more easily by direct or indirect contact with

infected persons or with things infected with the disease.
