MINISTERS WOULD GO TO JAIL FOR SHUMAKER

Yet Not One Raised His Hand to Aid Us in Battle For Freedom of Speech

The conviction of Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana anti-saloon league, for contempt of the supreme court, presents a very unusual and peculiar situation.

Unless the supreme court of the United States reverses the judgment of the Indiana court, or the governor refuses to pardon, Mr. Shumaker must pay a fine and spend sixty days at the state penal farm.

The paying of the fine and costs will be a simple matter for Rev. Shumaker. One member of the dry league has already sent him a check for $250 to pay the fine and sixty Methodist ministers have offered to "do" one day each at the penal farm in his stead.

Of course that offer is a mere gesture, since the law does not permit unconvicted persons to go to prison for somebody else. The editor of the Post-Democrat is somewhat conversant with the rules at the state farm. The sixty preachers would be barred from the luxury of penal servitude in behalf of their dry leader, unless they presented to the superintendent properly endorsed commitment papers from some court showing that they had committed some offense against the state of Indiana.

If it had been merely a matter of allowing somebody else to do the time, the editor of this newspaper would not have been under the necessity of appealing to the pardon board for relief.

We had dozens of men here and in other parts of the state, who would have gladly donned the prison garb and served the ninety-day term of Rev. Shumaker, if he had voluntarily offered to do forty-five days of the time, and he sincerely believed that the law would permit him to do so.

The ministers and the dry league have entirely overlooked the one big thing in the Shumaker controversy. There is but one thing involved and that is the constitutional guaranty of free speech, and the constitution does not differentiate as to whether the speech is made by a bartender, a newspaper editor or a superintendent of an anti-saloon league.

A case of far greater importance was that of the Post-Democrat, wherein a senate impeachment trial disclosed that the newspaper had told the truth, yet the same supreme court that held Shumaker guilty for what is plainly declared was the utterance of an untruth, affirmed a judgment of guilt in the case of the newspaper editor, holding that the truth did not matter.

The ten commandments were written long before such a thing was ever heard of as an anti-saloon league, and long before Brother Shumaker began using the church and the dry organization to elect republican supreme judges, governors and attorney generals who now refuse to recognize their dad, and want to send him to jail.

When the supreme court a year ago last February declared that the truth was not a defense, there was no uprising among the ministry or the anti-saloon league. The mere fact that one of the ten commandments was given a swift kick in the pants brought forth no clerical resolutions, nor did the prohibition forces see in the astounding court dictum anything that might derail their one-track political conveyance.

Until Shumaker was cited for contempt, the paid workers of the anti-saloon league and their political bedfellows had never realized, except in a vague and impersonal way, that there was such a thing as a constitution.

Sending a newspaper man to jail for criticizing the court of Judge Dearth, who was endorsed and supported by Shumaker and the anti-saloon league, was considered eminently proper. In fact one of the Indiana publications devoted to the cause of prohibition, extended editorially over the contents of the conviction of the editor of the Post-Democrat.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the conviction of Shumaker will broaden the minds of those who have heretofore held that the constitution is a jug handled affair, to be enforced only when it catches the other fellow and ignored when it hits our crowd.

ELKHART POLICE ARE LOOKING FOR BIG BILL CAHILL

Former Klan Organizer Skips With Money and Fails to Settle for Big Diamond.

It seems like all prominent members of the Klan go wrong sooner or later—usually to jail—if they are not wrong to start with.

The latest to go to the bad, is "Bill" Cahill, former Muncie resident, prominent member of Delaware Klan No. 1, and organizer for the Klan, out of which work he is said to have made a barrel of money. His latest escapade is at Elkhart Indiana news disatches of Friday carrying the following:

ELKHART POLICE SEEK WILLIAM E. CAHILL

Elkhart, Ind., Aug. 11.—A search was started yesterday by local police for William E. Cahill, 40, organizer of the defunct Elkhart Lodge of Carlin and manager of a dance hall near here, who is said to have disappeared early Sunday morning with the total receipts of the hall and an unpaid-for diamond, valued at $600. He left debts amounting to about $1,500.

It is financed in the state and nationally by the big interests and has been the chief ally of the party of protection and monopoly whose masters are above the law and the constitution.

Attorney General Gilliom and Governor Ed Jackson both rode in to office with the enthusiastic support of the anti-saloon league. Supreme Justices Willoughby, Myers and Travis were all supported by Shumaker in their first campaign, because they were republicans and because the big interests that finance the anti-saloon league demand above all other things in the election of republican supreme judges.

Dearth, Van Ogle, Sheriff McAuley, former Sheriff Harry Hoff and Mayor Hampton were all endorsed by the anti-saloon league.

In the primary campaign of 1924 a letter written at state anti-saloon league headquarters was received by Superintendent Carr of the Delaware county anti-saloon league, advising the dry forces here to oppose the candidacy of Senator Jim Fitch, who was seeking re-nomination on the ground that his record in the legislature, from a dry stand point, was unsatisfactory. Besides leading the dry forces here, Mr. Carr was at that time the exalted cyclops of the Ku Klux Klan.

Fitch was nominated, in spite of the Shumaker attempt to defeat him in the primary, yet after his name went on the republican ticket he was enthusiastically endorsed by the Indiana editor of the "American Issue," edited by Mr. Straigt.

We call attention to these things not for the purpose of indulging in vengeful criticism, but in order that the record may be kept straight.

No one can find fault with the avowed purpose of the anti-saloon league. Liquor is a rank poison, and not a medicine, despite the therapeutic suggestions of our learned attorney general. It destroys mind and body, breaks up homes, fills almshouses, jails and penal institutions and leads to universal distress.

But there are other things that are fully as bad. Lying, cheating, grafting and the political bulldozing of the anti-saloon league should also be included and arrogant judges who hold themselves to be greater than the state should be considered.

Personally we deplore the ill considered action of the supreme court in imposing this severe sentence on Mr. Shumaker. He had a perfect right to say what he did. As a matter of fact, under our rotten political system, he had the right, and still has it, to use the anti-saloon league as an adjunct to the republican party and as first aid to the Jim Watson machine.

If the time has come in Indiana when judges may not be criticized the end of free government is here. Judges are elected by the votes of the people and if judges, up for reelection, may jail free critics and thereby stifle free discussion of the qualification of candidates, a judicial oligarchy will soon supplant a free state and our boasted liberty of thought, speech and action will end in slavish serfdom.

We oppose, to the bitter end, the political demagoguery of Dr. Shumaker, but will fight with him to the last ditch for his right to speak freely in behalf of his program of political empire, although we do not agree with it.

Texas has more cotton acreage than all the states east of the Mississippi. Shanghai, the great commercial and industrial center of China, has a population of 2,000,000.

NEW RULES NEEDED.

The Post-Democrat is getting sick and tired of the twaddle that is being peddled all over the state by republican newspapers demanding that the republican party in Indiana purge itself and get back to the traditions and principles which made the party immortal.

This all sounds very well in print, but as far as our observations go, covering an active survey of political conditions covering a period of two generations, the present city, county, state and national administrations are running absolutely true to form.

The republican party from the moment of its conception down to this blessed instant has been the party of special privilege. The optimists who seek to reform the party love to designate it as the "party of Lincoln and Roosevelt."

Neither of these great statesmen were party men. It was their divorce from party bondage that made them great. They were hated by the republican organization of their time.

There are hundreds of thousands of republicans in the state of Indiana who still call themselves republicans, but down in the bottom of their hearts they are "anything else but."

Take Delaware county, for instance, where we hear hundreds of republicans declaring every day that they are opposed to the Billy Williams machine and will help elect a democratic county ticket next year.

They mean it, and will do it, but why not help clean out the entire rotten mess? They lie awake nights trying to put the knife under Billy Williams and then show it by helping elect a republican congressman, senator and president who will keep Billy and Herb Smith on the payroll and bar all of Billy's political enemies out of elective and appointive offices.

The only way to purge the republican party is to defeat it at the polls and keep on defeating it until the gangsters are all retired to private life. Then there might be a possibility of a progressive republicans taking charge of the party.

And the "party traditions" would have to be forgotten. To make the party popular a new set of rules are needed.

NEW RUBBER Costs SIX times as much more than its extra cost in its much greater tensile strength, ability to stand abuse and long wearing qualities. Small wonder, then, that most tire "ads" say nothing about "Rubber contents" and try to replace this by "mystery" claims that sound big but cost little.

You Get What You Pay For

This is the first clean cut disclosure of "how" tires are made and of the "why" of so many different prices. All grades, it made in the same molds, would "look" practically the same—THE DIFFERENCE IS IN THE WEAR.

Carcase Compound: 95% new rubber, 5% curing agents, 0% reclaim. 100% tread compound: 75% new rubber, 20% carbon zinc, 5% curing agents, 0% reclaim.

Standard First Grades. Carcase compound: 70% new rubber, 15% curing agents, 25% reclaim. 100% tread compound: 63% new rubber, 17% carbon zinc, 5% curing agents, 15% reclaim.

Standard Secondary Grades. Carcase compound: 45% new rubber, 5% curing agents, 50% reclaim. 100% tread compound: 35% new rubber, 15% carbon zinc, 5% curing agents, 25% reclaim.

Standard Tertiary Grades. Carcase compound: 25% new rubber, 5% curing agents, 70% reclaim. 100% tread compound: 15% new rubber, 15% carbon zinc, 5% curing agents, 25% reclaim.

The Auburn "Green A" specification is the standard specification for all Motor Bus and Taxi-Cab tires where factories, themselves, sell on a mileage basis. It makes a tire cost about 10% more than standard grades but insures 30 to 50% more service.

The Auburn "Green A" specification is the same as all so-called standard or first grade tires since few companies make anything better—except in their Motor Bus and Taxi-Cab tires.

The Auburn "All-Black" tires cost about 20% less than like all secondary grade tires their service averages less profit to the owner than higher grades.

PRINTERS URGED TO BAR POLITICS FROM MEETINGS

Former President of Union Sends Word Warning Members of Factionalism.

Indianapolis, Aug. 9.—A double warning to the membership and officers of the International Typographical Union to force political factionalism into the background, marked the opening session of the organization in its diamond jubilee gathering at the National Guard Armory here yesterday.

One of the warnings extended the olive branch to members of the faction opposite James M. Lynch, former president of the union, who recently was defeated in his race for re-election, and urged delegates to avoid "petty political squabbles and recriminations."

The other warning came from Daniel J. Tobin, international president of the teamsters' and truck drivers' union, and a personal friend of Mr. Lynch, who advised the delegates to the type gathering to "get rid of" anything that was holding back the union. Mr. Tobin's remarks brought a sharp retort from Charles P. Howard, international president of the typographical union, and resulted in a clash between the leaders of the two unions that brought a tense situation in the opening session.

Asks Politics Avoidance. Mr. Lynch's message, which was read to the convention by William J. Spies, chairman of the local convention committee, advised the delegates to abstain from playing politics to the injury of the organization. The Lynch message was regarded as peculiarly significant because Mr. Lynch is credited by his supporters with being the chief builder of the union by virtue of his holding office for a longer period than any other president and because during his regime the eight hour day was established and the union took its place as the wealthiest and most solidly organized of trades unions.

The impending battle between progressive and administration forces of the union also caused the delegates to receive the Lynch message with more than usual significance. President Howard heads the progressive faction, while Mr. Lynch is generally looked upon as the nominal head of the administration forces.

After having his numerous bumps, bruises and scratches patched up, Helvie departed for Muncie. Before leaving he made an attempt to keep the affair out of the Elwood newspapers, but did not succeed.

Coming home he explained the thing to the county commissioners. According to his version, he was driving peacefully through the village of Elwood, when he suddenly met up with an awful bump. Instead of looking straight ahead he was gazing skyward, he said, looking for a traffic sign.

P. R. K. Chain Auto Paint Shop Opens Up for Business

P. R. K., a nationally advertised refinisher of automobiles, with shops from coast to coast, have installed one of their auto paint shops at 1310 South Walnut Street, of this city. P. R. K. is a trade name copyrighted by the P. R. K. Chemical Co., at Frankfort, Indiana, and used throughout the United States as the name of these chain stores. There are fifty of these shops in Indiana alone.

P. R. K. system of auto painting is not a new process but one that has been O. K'd by public approval and keeps its promise as to economy, durability, and satisfaction. The system consists of removing the old paint which is usually checked and refinishing the automobile with P. K. enamel, a high grade product in all colors.

This shop will be stocked sufficiently to distribute and supply cities of eastern Indiana and this vicinity. Materials for refinishing airplanes such as nitrate dopes and coatings for fuselage and wings will also be distributed.

Due to the convenience of the Muncie Airport, the P. R. K. Flyers, a squadron of planes that are making a tour of the state and advertising in the air for the company, will soon make their headquarters here. Mr. Basham, local noted aviator, will assist in long flights. Mr. A. J. Sanders, president of the P. R. K. Chemical Co., Inc., is an enthusiast in aviation and spends much time for its development. He is now using his laboratories for producing a coating for airplanes which is light in weight, check-proof and not subject to contraction or expansion, caused by different elevations, and resists heat and intense cold.

OHIO SENATOR URGES HIGHER ONION TARIFF

Washington, Aug. 12.—Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio, has made out a strong case in behalf of Indiana and Ohio onions.

The Indiana-Ohio onions themselves may be strong enough, but the Buckeye senator regards their position in the world's market as weak, owing to the great influx of foreign-grown onions.

DEFENSE PREPARES FOR HARD BATTLE

Boston, Aug. 17.—Encouraged by the recent series of favorable decisions they have obtained, defense counsel prepared today for the hearing next Tuesday before the full bench of the supreme court which may save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair.

Added to the 12-day respite granted by Governor Fuller and the favorable decision of Judge George A. Sanderson in permitting an appeal from his denial of a writ of error, attorneys for the two anarchists last night obtained from Judge Webster Thayer exceptions from his rulings denying a new trial, revocation of sentence and stay of execution.

All four appeals will be brought before the full bench of the supreme court at next Tuesday's session.

SOON FORGOTTEN

(By J. W. Burns)

Do not multiply your troubles. Over things that people say. If they tell mean things about you it will all soon pass away. It is better to be smiling. Don't get angry, fume or fret. For I know it's human nature, For the people to forget.

Scandal mongers are quite busy, For they travel day and night. And to hurt your reputation Always is their sole delight. You must simply just ignore them. For you're bound to win out yet. Your friends will all stick by you. And your enemies will forget.

It of course will hurt your feelings For a little while, I know. Just sit steady in the old boat. As upon your way you row. This I know from past experience. That a lie may travel fast. But keep upmost in your mind now Truth will wait it down at last.

Then my friend please do not worry. What the tattler, might say. Just keep right on a-smiling. As you journey on your way. In the end you are a winner. For the trader you have met. For I know it's human nature, For the people to forget.

STORY SELLS PAPERS

New York—"Browning commits suicide over peaches," yelled an ingenious newsboy when the prosaic outlay in the papers couldn't attract any customers. He sold all his copies.

GRAVEL "DIPPING"

The county commissioners are preparing to erect another monument of "cured gravel."

Elsewhere in this issue of the Post-Democrat appears a county advertisement, authorized by the county commissioners, asking for bids on the dipping of ten thousand yards of gravel, "more or less," in District 14, which is in the neighborhood of Cammack.

While no particular tract of land is mentioned, it is said that the favored site is the farm of Charles Fuson, a republican precinct committeeman who trains with the Billy Williams machine.

Commissioner Joe Mann, the democratic member, voted in opposition to the gravel dipping project, but the two republican members, Truitt and McCreery, teamed on him and the job went through.

While the matter was being considered Harry Hoffman, the famous gravel expert, was on the job every minute until the order was made.

Up until the last minute Commissioner McCreery professed to be in accord with the sentiment of Commissioner Mann, but when Hoffman appeared on the scene it was all off.

McCreery has a gravel mine on his own farm, near Gaston, which means ready money to somebody. A year ago McCreery deeded five acres of his land to his own son, Watt McCreery, and the commissioners entered into a contract with the son to sell gravel to the county.

The county has already paid the younger McCreery many thousands of dollars for gravel and the "dipping" goes merrily on.

It was the exposures of the gravel graft in Delaware county, first made public by the Post-Democrat, that caused the downfall of the republican machine and eventually led to the election of two democratic county commissioners in the campaign of 1926.

Apparently there will be no relief from this dipping, or "gipping" program until the first of next January, when the other democratic member, Bob Aker, succeeds Commissioner John Truitt.

WRECKED COUNTY AUTOMOBILE

The wrecking of the automobile did not count, for it belonged to Delaware county, and Delaware county has plenty of money left to buy other automobiles for drunken employees to experiment with in durability contests with exasperating and utterly needless cement traffic posts.

The dumb Elwood police, instead of securing another automobile for Helvie and letting him empty the bottle and take another trip at the cement block, told him to "get rid of" anything that was holding back the union. Mr. Tobin's remarks brought a sharp retort from Charles P. Howard, international president of the typographical union, and resulted in a clash between the leaders of the two unions that brought a tense situation in the opening session.

In the morning there was a long delay. It was not until noon that Deputy Prosecutor Harrington had sufficiently diagnosed the case to find a name for the offense. Helvie then wrote a check for eleven dollars and handed it over as a fine for the offense.

Mayor Faust of Elwood, who did not officiate at the trial, being absent at the bedside of a sick relative, informs the Post-Democrat that the bottle of liquor was confiscated and is being held at police headquarters.

After having his numerous bumps, bruises and scratches patched up, Helvie departed for Muncie. Before leaving he made an attempt to keep the affair out of the Elwood newspapers, but did not succeed.

Coming home he explained the thing to the county commissioners. According to his version, he was driving peacefully through the village of Elwood, when he suddenly met up with an awful bump. Instead of looking straight ahead he was gazing skyward, he said, looking for a traffic sign.

The two republican members, Truitt and McCreery, who are responsible for the selection of Helvie as road superintendent, will probably gaze skyward, as Helvie did when lightning struck him.

Joe Mann, the democratic member, plainly says he is from Missouri. Joe can't understand why the road superintendent should be skallyhooping around at two o'clock in the morning in an automobile belonging to Delaware county, and he doesn't know whether Helvie or the taxpayers bought the gasoline.

It is possible that the county commissioners may make a dismal report in coming to a final determination in the matter of fixing the blame and bringing the incident to a close.

Helvie Explains In offering this explanation he forgot to mention whether or not he was looking through the bottom of the bottle containing the liquor, which the police confiscated. In fact he forgot entirely to mention the bottle, or the contents thereof, or that portion of the contents which had inspired him to a heroic endeavor to ram the radiator of the county automobile through four feet of solid concrete.

Dr. Frank Kilgore, county coroner, was in the automobile when the one-round bout between the bus and the traffic post was pulled off. In that taking the corner with him, Helvie displayed rare discrimination. If one insists on starting out in the dead of night on a bet to step on the gas and knock down a brick house at the Sailors' and Soldiers' monument, it is all right to have the coroner's inquest.

Labor Plead In Vain.

It is always safe to err on the side of mercy. Millions believe Sacco and Vanzetti were innocent. The voice of labor all over the world plead in vain for their lives.

To those who followed the trend of this remarkable case, the evidence appeared flimsy, to say the least. The two men, and their friends, declared that they were framed.

Those who have worked for seven years to prove the innocence of these two men should not cease their efforts. It is yet possible to clear this mystery, although the grave closes over the bodies of the victims.

If they were innocent of the murders their names should be cleared and punishment meted out to the guilty. It is a dangerous thing to let a thing like this remain in doubt.

Get Out the Band.

Judge Dearth is taking a long rest in Ohio. He announces that he will return about the first of September and formally open his campaign for re-election. We believe we can state, on reliable authority, that Dr. John W. Nicely will not stump the county for Clarence.

A Hard One To Answer.

Wilbur Ryman has not abandoned the idea of running for attorney general, it is said, but where in the name of goodness does he expect to get the other vote?

Clarence Benadum designates D. C. Stephenson as a political prisoner. That's a mistake. You can't put dragons in jail for that.

DRUNKEN ROAD BOSS

Affected His Eyesight In fact Joe doesn't even know who bought the whisky that had such a curious effect on Helvie's eyesight. And there's the matter of the wrecked automobile. A mere trifle, of course, but worth considering.

Helvie explained to the commissioners that the repairs would not cost the county a cent, since the insurance on the car would take care of the damage. But it costs real money to insure automobiles and Delaware county paid the premium on the policy, Joe says, and besides, he says, an automobile isn't what she used to be after she has been slammed through a brick wall, no matter how much she has been tinkered with by mechanics.

Incidentally it may be stated that there is no truth whatever in the rumor that the county commissioners will institute a civil action for damages against the city of Elwood for allowing their traffic post to stand out over night, thus permitting a dangerous barrier to block the thoroughfare, and causing damage to the county's property.

It was criminally careless, of course, but our big hearted commissioners are willing to forgive and forget. Helvie, himself, is also willing to let the matter drop. He is even willing to let the Elwood police keep the bottle of liquor. And just for the moment Helvie would willingly have the authorities forget that there is such a thing on the subject of books of tradition as the Wright home dry law, which makes transportation of liquor in an automobile a felony and designates as punishment for drunken drivers and the possessors of liquor certain heavy fines and certain long stretches of punishment at the state penal farm.

Might Take The Car Another feature of the bone dry law which might prove embarrassing is the right to confiscate an automobile in which liquor is found. It is only to be expected that an occasional bootlegger's automobile shall be taken away from him, but just think of the scandal of confiscating an automobile belonging to Delaware county, driven by a drunken county employe, who was feloniously transporting liquor in a conveyance purchased by the taxpayers of the county. This is simply too awful to contemplate.

The case of Helvie is somewhat sad from the fact that he was given his job as county road superintendent for valiant services performed in the grand jury room, when, in February, 1923, he helped indict the editor of the Post-Democrat on a framed-up liquor charge which the prosecutor later had to dismiss. Another member of that famous line-up of "backed" Ku Klux grand jurors was Harry Mott, assistant road superintendent. Mott holds his job, which was also for services rendered on the grand jury, in spite of the fact that he was once forced to admit, under oath, that he was a perjurer falsifier of county claims, who had defrauded the county out of a large sum of money by his criminal acts.

Another of that precious half dozen, who were fair types of the good Christian gentlemen made famous in the Dearth trial, is one Durward Sharp, state policeman, who was arrested and jailed at Alexandria a little over a year ago, when he was found drunk, in his automobile, with a gallon of whisky on board.

Bowery Y. M. C. A. Has Roof Garden

New York—With all the swagger of the elite who enjoy on hot July evenings the cool seclusion of some roof garden atop one of the big hotels or restaurants, the homeless men of this city now have their own commodious eating and lounging places on the roof of the Bowery Y. M. C. A. A roof garden entertainment program even has been introduced.

Here the men, temporarily out of luck, may load their 10-cent meals on canteen trays, enter elevators ascend to the swimming-covered roof, seek a table and dine leisurely fanned by friendly winds. "Far from the madding crowd," they may observe the beautiful sunset across the Hudson or, seated in easy chairs, watch the downtown skyline grow dim in the dusk while ships slip through the waters of the East river. Here they may discuss the news of the day and read magazines or listen to an orchestra playing classical or dance numbers.

Entertainment features during the evening include the efforts of members or volunteer artists from "outside." Refreshments are available.

16 EAGLE SCOUTS WILL MAKE HIKE THROUGH ENGLAND

New York—Sixteen Eagle Scouts of Wayne, Pa., under Clifton Lisle, scoutmaster, have arrived in England and will hike through that country and France this summer. Eleven scouts of Queens council, New York, will participate in a goodwill trip to Canada in August. The scouts officially will represent the Boy Scouts of America in the countries through which they travel. Thus as members of the Sea America already in the polar region Scout branch of the Boy Scouts of America are participating in the John Borden-Chicago Field Museum expedition, there will be three representative Boy Scout groups traveling in foreign fields this summer.

Halford Johnson Is In Bad Again

They further stated that the man who took the car is Halford Johnson of Losantville, and they will hold him there for a crime committed in that state.
