

DISCRIMINATING DUTY.

Chairman Wilson Introduces a Bill to Abrogate the One-Tenth Differential.

THE REVENUE NOT NEEDED.

Review of International Trade Relations. Germany's Discrimination Against Our Products Not on Account of Sanitary Conditions—Senate Still Talking on the Hawaiian Resolution—Capital News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Chairman Wilson of the ways and means committee yesterday reported to the house a bill to abrogate the discriminating duty of 1-10 of a cent per pound on sugar imported from countries paying a bounty on exports. The report accompanying the bill expresses the opinion that it does not believe it was the intention or desire of congress in the last tariff act, in imposing the additional duty on all sugars coming from countries paying a bounty on exports thereof, to give the ground of complaint to foreign nations of any violation on our part of long standing treaty obligations, and least of all to abrogate such treaties.

Both Germany and Austria, however, have protested against the discriminating duty, holding it to be violative of the most favored nation clauses which for more than 60 years have governed their trade relations with the United States, and Germany—the committee is not accurately informed as to Austria-Hungary—is now making and enforcing regulations which will prohibit or impede the entrance of American meats into her markets. The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, which consumes the bulk of our exported provisions, raise no sanitary objection to them, and it is almost certain, says the report, that this unfriendly action of Germany is really a retaliation for our discrimination against German beet sugar.

The committee believes that if the irritation caused by the alleged violation of our traditional treaty obligations to Germany, or more strictly to Prussia, is relieved, it will at once open the way for the removal of discriminations and prohibitions against the entry of our beef and hog products into Germany. Further more, the example of Germany is having its influence with other nations with whom we have a large and profitable trade, and Sweden, Denmark and Belgium have prohibited the introduction of American cattle and dressed beef.

IN CONGRESS.

Hawaiian Question Still Engaging the Attention of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The policy of the administration as to Hawaii was again the subject of sharp attack and defense in the senate yesterday. The personal element in the controversy drew large crowds to the galleries which at times overflowed into the outer corridors. It indicated little diminution of public interest in Hawaii now that the course of the administration is the main question of discussion.

Mr. Gray and Mr. George justified the administration and Mr. Gray dwelt upon the persistency and indelicateness which the president was vilified and misrepresented. Mr. Lodge and Mr. Hawley made the critical speeches of the day.

The debate was still in progress when the morning hour expired and the Nicaragua canal bill was taken up. Mr. Turpie spoke against the measure for three hours and had not concluded when the senate adjourned.

The Indian appropriation bill, which has been under consideration for five days in the house was finally passed yesterday. It carried $6,494,820 when reported, but as passed, the total was considerably augmented.

Ricks' Case Reversed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The attempt to impeach Judge Augustus J. Ricks of Cleveland failed yesterday in the house judiciary committee by an adverse vote of 9 to 7, and instead of a resolution for impeachment, which Mr. Bailey of Texas had prepared to report to the house, one will be presented denouncing the fee system which, in the opinion of members, has made the proceedings possible. The day's review of the case, which was of a bitter and acrimonious character, changed the opinion of no member of the committee, and the charges were ignored as it had been expected they would be when all the members could be brought together for a vote.

MAY REACH $50,000.

Shortage of the Lexington City Collector Swells Alarmingly.

LEXINGTON, Jan. 23.—The amount of the big steal in the Lexington city collector's office is rapidly increasing and it is thought will amount to over $50,000. The experts working on the books have found a large number of apparently delinquent taxpayers, but some of them hold receipts showing the money paid into the collector's office had not been credited or turned over to the city treasury.

THE STEAMBOAT DISASTER.

Story That No Lives Were Lost Not Believed—Cabin Register Found.

HAWESVILLE, Ky., Jan. 23.—Captain Conian of the lost State of Missouri was in this city yesterday and reiterated his story to the effect that no lives were lost in the disaster of Saturday night. The general public in this part of the country, however, knows to the contrary. There were too many eye-witnesses who saw men drown all around them. Captain Conian also states that there were only nine passengers on board when the boat went down.

W. D. Crockett, a farmer living two miles below this city, yesterday found the cabin register of the wrecked State of Missouri, and reference to it showed that there were 15 cabin and two deck passengers. It is not possible to discover who are lost as the rescued are scattered everywhere. Mr. Leathers of Hopkinsville, Ky., was a rescued passenger, but his name does not show on the register. How many more not registered will never be known. The cash drawer was found with $104 in silver and parts of torn bills were scattered about the wreck.

LYNCHERS ARRESTED.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Wild With Excitement Over the Affair.

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., Jan. 23.—Mount Sterling was wild with excitement last night. Two of Thomas Blair's lynchers have been arrested and are in jail, and other arrests are momentarily expected to follow. Yesterday afternoon Detective George W. Drake arrested James Roach and Dick Foreman and lodged them both in jail. It caused great excitement and large crowds of men are standing on every corner waiting to see who will be the next person arrested. The two men have been placed in cells so far apart that they cannot talk to each other and the jail doors are barred to all newspaper men. Detective Drake has several assistants with him and says he is confident he has the right men. Trouble is expected.

Shot His Rival.

DECATUR, Ills., Jan. 22.—The grand jury has brought in an indictment for murder against George E. Tucker, the son of a widow, who while at a dance two weeks ago, shot and killed Louis Wilson. Both young men were rivals for the favor of Miss Clara Mothlan of Springfield. Without apparent provocation Tucker, at a distance of two feet, sent a bullet into the brain of Wilson and then ran, leaving the young lady to go home alone. Just 10 days before the tragedy Wilson took out a life insurance policy for $900. The money has been paid. Tucker will plead self-defense.

Cullom Elected.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Jan. 23.—Both houses voted on United States senator as follows: Senate, Cullom, 82; MacVeagh, 12; house, Cullom, 90; MacVeagh, 60. A message from the governor was received in the house recommending an appropriation of $190,000 for a new hospital at Anna to replace the one burned. A bill was introduced in the house to permit women to vote in all elections for cities, towns and villages. A bill to carry out the governor's proposal relating to the Anna hospital was introduced and read the first time.

According to Fitzsimmons, the unknown former trained pugilist and will swear that the dead pugilist, some years ago was thrown out of a hack, alighting on his head and sustaining a wound two inches long and down to the skull. The physician who attended Riordan at the time has also been located.

ALBANY, Jan. 23.—Senator Owen has introduced a bill the purpose of which is to correct abuses such as have been complained of by the striking street railway operatives of Brooklyn. It provides that a day's labor of 10 hours shall begin the moment an employee reports for duty and he continues except for an interval for a meal.

Depredations by Masked Men.

PRINCETON, Ills., Jan. 23.—The house of Mrs. Ellen Clinton, three miles north of Ohio Station, was visited by a gang of masked men, who tore down the chimney, broke in the windows and doors and committed other depredations. Several of the men are located and will be arrested.

To Prohibit Race-track Gambling.

TRENTON, Jan. 23.—The house has passed Assemblyman Coddington's concurrent resolution providing for the submission to the people of the state of an amendment to the constitution prohibiting race-track and other gambling. There was not a single vote in the negative.

Converted With a Bullet.

GREENVILLE, Miss., Jan. 23.—The brutal murder of a negro at Moorehead was followed by the death of the murderer. William Bush asked the negro if he believed Jesus Christ ever rode an ass and when the negro replied in the negative Bush said: "D—n you, I will make a convert of you," and shot the negro dead. Bush resisted arrest and was shot and killed by the officer.

SHOT INTO THE CROWD.

Fatal Effects of a Volley Fired by the Militiamen.

BROOKLYN STILL TIED UP.

Ninth Day of the Strike Brings No Material Change in the Situation—8,000 Soldiers Under Arms—Gravest Apprehension Still Felt Throughout the City. Lawless Elements.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 23.—The first fatal encounter of the great strike took place about 11 o'clock last night when in an encounter with a few boys at the Halsey street station of the Brooklyn City Railroad company a volley was fired by the militia. Henry Ahns of New York city was fatally shot, a musketeer entering at his mouth and passing through his head. Another man, whose name is Williams, was wounded in the arm. The shooting had the instant effect of dispersing the mob.

The ninth day of the tieup has closed without bringing material change in the situation. It has been a day of alarming rumors, which fortunately proved to have slight or no foundation. There were between daybreak and nightfall numerous brushes between the police and militia on one side and the strikers, or headstrong, lawdefying sympathizers with their cause, on the other.

The Linemen's Strike.

The linemen's strike, which was to have tied up the trolley lines more effectively than had been done by the strike of motormen, conductors and other employees, was called off before it was fairly on, and later in the day the mandate of Master Workman Connelly was promulgated, calling upon the linemen to abandon their situations this morning. What influenced the strikers' manager to call the linemen strike off thus quickly and then to order on again today cannot now be told. The reason assigned for the latter act is palpably but a pretext. The effect of this move, which the strikers have compared to the playing of a high trump card, remains to be demonstrated.

The developments of the day have not been reassuring, as a whole. In spite of the fact that there under arms in the city 8,000 of the state soldiery and 1,500 policemen are on duty, intramural traffic is suffering a virtual paralysis, in which all the industries of the city participate to a greater or lesser degree. Lawlessness is rampant, and altogether conditions are such as may well excite the gravest apprehensions.

The disorderly element in the city has been largely recruited from New York and other cities, and has, as is usual in such cases, arraigned itself with the strikers, a selfish advocacy of whose cause affords a pretext for the perpetration of graver crimes than have yet marked the progress of the pending contest.

Many Wires Cut.

The audacity of the wire cutters in the early part of the day was remarkable. Trolley lines were cut in all directions, under the very noses of the police and military, and yet there were not enough arrests to mention. One line suffered the loss of five miles of wire, which was carried away by those who cut it, in spite of the announcement that soldiers and policemen had orders to "shoot to kill" whenever they were assailed with stones or other missiles, it does not appear that in any other of the many instances when muskets were discharged, except at the Halsey street affray, anyone is known to have been hurt. Fresh reports of extensive wire cutting were current at a late hour last night.

Meeting of Strikers.

An enthusiastic meeting of strikers and their sympathizers was held last night at Labor Lyceum in Willoughby avenue. The strikers, with their families and friends were out in full force. As each speaker came forward he was received with wild applause. J. De Long, a business man, in sympathy with the strike movement, claimed that every man, woman and child in Brooklyn was in sympathy with the strikers. On motion of the chairman, M. J. Bowen, a resolution was passed requesting the mayor to sign the recent resolution of the board of aldermen condemning the trolley companies.

SHORT WIRINGS.

Senator Dolph of Oregon was re-elected today. Horace Chilton has been elected United States senator from Texas. The Tennessee legislature elected Senator Harris to succeed himself. Arthur M. Forrester, a well known writer and poet of Boston, is dead. Ex-Governor Pattison has accepted the Democratic nomination for mayor of Philadelphia. One hundred and fifty delegates attended the International Folk Lore congress at Memphis. A number of papers were read. The Evening Chronicle, recently established by United States Senator Patrick Walsh in Atlanta, has suspended. Fourteen states were represented in a meeting of millers at Chicago yesterday. A new national organization is to be established. Edward Rivers of Edmondson county, Ky., killed his two children and then committed suicide. Rivers was addicted to the use of morphine and was laboring under the delusion that his family would become insane.

WAS A PRODUCTIVE SWINDLE.

Reaped a Harvest of Over $50,000 in One Month.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—Bushels of letters, many of them containing money from all parts of the United States and Canada, continue to be received at the postoffice for the Ladies' Monthly Gem, the principal proprietor of which is under two indictments for fraudulent use of the mails. All letters addressed to the concern have been confiscated for several days past. It is estimated that the proprietors of the Gem have reaped a harvest of fully $50,000 during the past month, and that if the concern had been allowed to run for a few months longer the swindle would have reached stupendous proportions. The scheme of the promoters was to offer a fine gold watch and the magazine for one year for $3.25 to all who would send a correct solution to a "snappy" riddle. In the very few cases where watches were sent at all they proved to be brass, worth less than $1.

Buckeyes Have a Banquet.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The annual banquet of the Sons of Ohio was held last night at the Grand Pacific hotel, about 300 enthusiastic Buckeyes being present. The speakers were General Warren Keifer of Ohio, General Russell A. Alger of Michigan and General Lucius Fairchild of Wisconsin, the two latter being natives of the state as well as General Keifer.

Noted Horse Breeder Falls.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 23.—Major John S. Clark, a well known breeder of thoroughbred horses and owner of the Cold Stream stock farm, has made an assignment to Colonel E. F. Clay, president of the Kentucky association. Major Clark has been considerably embarrassed since the general decline in values of horses and breeding establishments.

Collapse of Business.

OMAHA, Jan. 23.—The Union Pacific management, by reduction, cut expenses $30,000 monthly, and the executive officers are now on the road to make further reductions. This condition of affairs is made absolutely necessary, according to the officers, by the complete collapse of business.

North Carolina Senators.

RALEIGH, Jan. 23.—By joint ballot in the legislature yesterday Marion Butler (Pop.) was elected to succeed M. W. Ransom in the United States senate. J. C. Pritchard (Rep.) was elected by the same vote to fill out the unexpired term of the late Z. B. Vance.

Will Investigate Alleged Frauds.

DENVER, Jan. 23.—An insane woman named Scott, who says Grover Cleveland is worrying her, called at Governor McIntyre's office yesterday to ask him to wire the president "a piece of her mind." She lost her temper and struck Secretary Brewer, in consequence of which she was arrested.

Suit For $80,000.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—John Bradley and S. R. Clark of the Pittsburg stock exchange, under the very noses of the police and military, and yet there were not enough arrests to mention. One line suffered the loss of five miles of wire, which was carried away by those who cut it, in spite of the announcement that soldiers and policemen had orders to "shoot to kill" whenever they were assailed with stones or other missiles, it does not appear that in any other of the many instances when muskets were discharged, except at the Halsey street affray, anyone is known to have been hurt. Fresh reports of extensive wire cutting were current at a late hour last night.

MANY BILLS KILLED.

No Opportunity Given to Air Their Merits in Public.

STATE LEGISLATIVE WORK.

Proceedings Devoid of Special Interest. Flag Question Up For Discussion—Bill to Appropriate $100,000 For Soldiers' Homes Favorably Reported Upon—Other Features of the Day—State News.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 23.—No legislation was passed yesterday, but a whole lot of bills were killed before they ever had an opportunity to have their merits aired in public. The work of neither body was productive of anything sensational. The senate's time was largely occupied in discussing the subject of concealed weapons, while the house indulged in little sparring matches over the flag question, the soldiers' home bill and the question of insurance rates, none of which served any purpose in determining anything further than to show the drift of sentiment on these matters.

The house judiciary committee reported on 12 matters before it, killing 10 and favoring two measures. The house concurred in each report and after the skirmish these budding bits of statesmanship were found among the dead: Mr. Howe's resolution for a constitutional convention; Mr. Bobylia's bill for the purchase of toll roads and his second bill relating to the construction of gravel roads; Mr. Hamrick's bill for civil prosecutions in bastardy cases and his bill requiring insurance companies to pay the full face of the policy; Mr. Nicholson's bill reorganizing the jury system; Mr. Thomas' bill amending the election law; Mr. Van Arsdale's bill enlarging the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, and Mr. Howe's bill to ameliorate the rigors of the Grubbs libel law by determining the question of justification upon the preponderance of evidence. The committee reported favorably upon Mr. Stutesman's bill to break up the Greta Green business at Jeffersonville by freeing the affidavit of a resident freeholder before the marriage license can be granted.

Sparring Over the Flag Question.

The committee on military affairs reported against the Van Arsdale bill requiring the hoisting of a flag over all schoolhouses of the state. There was a warm discussion on the subject and a good deal of effervescent patriotism was worked off, but the committee report was finally concurred in and flags are not required. The bill to establish a soldiers' home at Lafayette and appropriate $100,000 for the purpose was reported favorably, and a motion to refer it to the committee on ways and means produced another long discussion, but the motion to so refer finally carried. A number of other committees reported upon minor bills, killing most of them, and the house invariably concurred in the reports. The routine of the house's work was varied a little by the introduction of Mr. Stutesman's resolution condemning in every phase Mr. Cleveland's policy in reference to Hawaii. Mr. Stutesman made a crisp speech on the subject, in which he severely condemned the president's policy, and was followed in the same line by Mr. Pettit. The house, however, showed no disposition to indulge in a purely political discussion and the resolution was adopted by a party vote without further debate. Among the new bills introduced was one by Mr. Newhouse for appointment purposes, and one by Mr. Carlwill to prohibit the drawing of warrants by public officials when there is no money in the treasury to pay them.

Insurance Question Discussed.

The first real fight that has come up in the house occurred on the insurance question, and on the face of the returns the insurance people rather got the best of it. The judiciary committee had reported favorably upon the bill of Mr. Moore, intended to break up the insurance contracts by which uniform rates are established in various cities and to compel the payment of the full face of the policy in case of total loss. Mr. Willoughby moved that the bill be recommitted to the insurance committee and Mr. Moore protested on the ground that the purpose of the insurance committee was to strangle the bill. Others took a hand in the discussion and it raged rather fiercely for half an hour, resulting in sending the bill to the insurance committee by a heavy majority.

The senate did practically nothing except to talk about the carrying of concealed weapons and the proposed appointment of a humane inspector in each county. The latter subject was finally referred to a special committee of five. As to the concealed weapons the minority report upon a bill imposing $500 fine and six months in jail for carrying them was adopted after a long debate. The minority report favored the bill. Senator Ellison introduced a resolution asking for a special committee to look into the question of last year's strikes and riots and report such legislation as might be necessary to prevent a recurrence of the disturbances. It was referred. Senator Beard introduced a bill aimed at the Roby race-track. It provides a fine of from $50 to $500 for each officer of the track allowing a horse-race to occur during the winter months between Oct. 15 and April 15. Senator Collett introduced a bill appropriating $205,000 for the maintenance of the Logansport insane asylum for two years and $25,000 for improvements.

FOR CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

Case in Carroll County Which Is Arousing Great Interest.

DELPHI, Ind., Jan. 23.—Charles Thomas, charged with an attempted criminal assault upon Tina Perkins, daughter of a Dunkard preacher, who died some years ago, is now being tried in the Carroll county court. The case is exciting more interest in this county than has been occasioned by any trial for many years, hundreds of people are turned away from the courtroom every day. The alleged assault was committed last August while the young people were buggyriding. Miss Perkins testifying that she threatened to drown her and also to shoot her but that she successfully resisted him. The shock was so great, however, that she was a raving maniac for days. Young Thomas is the son of a wealthy farmer and is 19 years of age. The affair is also a sort of church war, the Thomas family being Lutherans and the girl's people being Dunkards.

THE HINSHAW TRAGEDY.

Findings Made Which Are Believed to Be of Importance.

BELLEVILLE, Ind., Jan. 23.—An important find has been made which it is believed will materially assist in the detection of the Hinshaw murderers. Since the snow has melted away, several articles have been found, the most important of which is a cuffbutton, having the initials C engraved upon it. A part of a shirt sleeve has been found, which was perhaps torn off in his fierce and deadly struggle with Mr. Hinshaw. The revolver with which the shooting was done was found. It has five empty chambers, and it is thought this is the number of shots fired. It proves to be Mr. Hinshaw's own revolver. All these articles will be placed in the detectives' hands, and it is pretty nearly certain they will prove to be of much benefit.

Word was received late yesterday afternoon that a man named Ed Nichols has been arrested. He was captured between Stilesville and Consville, and is thought to be one of the Hinshaw murderers.

Teacher Sustained.

CLAYTON, Ind., Jan. 23.—The school trial in which Miss Belle Mills, principal of the public schools, was defendant, has resulted in her acquittal. The difficulty grew out of the efforts of Miss Mills to enforce discipline, and for this purpose having inflicted corporal punishment on an unruly pupil, a young man near 20, whose father had Miss Mills arraigned for assault and battery.

COMMON COUNCIL.

Temporary Loan Authorized—Electric Light Talk—Short Claim Ordinance.

The city fathers were driven into the council chamber last evening at seven o'clock for the good reason that they had no other place to loaf until time was called, which call was made at 7:30. The business rooms were all closed, and the council chamber was the last point of refuge.

After the finance committee had reported the city treasurer's report for December to be correct, Chairman Miller opened the ball with a call for a temporary loan of $4000. The committee reported that the surplus in the city's hands, by reason of a higher levy than the present one, had been spent in improvements; that since the city taxpayers had been given two chances to pay taxes during the year—April and November—that many taxpayers had paid their April installment and had forgotten the November one, which delinquency made a hole in the revenues. The committee's and city treasurer's estimates called for about $4000 to tide them over until the April taxes were paid in. The committee stated that a number of delinquents were paying up and that it was thought the loan would not have to be renewed. Mayor Birch was authorized to negotiate a loan of $4000 for ninety days at a rate not to exceed six per cent, on which it is thought a neat premium can be secured which will lower the per cent. Mr. Randel favored a longer loan at a lower rate, but the majority thought a shorter time at a slightly increased rate would be the most economical, and it went through at that.

The judiciary committee requested further time on the Glazebrook matter, stating that the late lamented W. S. Cox had had a finger in the matter, and that considerable time would be required to see whether or not Cox had been an authorized agent of the claimant; and how much rent was due, also how much the Glazebrook lot had been filled. Granted.

Chairman Riley, of the light committee, had a complaint against the electric light street service. He reported two lights out on Bloomington street and one on Locust street; these he saw as he went to council meeting. Others of the council members too turns and reported bad light service in their districts, and complaints of taxpayers on like failures. Mr. Riley thought the light worse last month than for any time during the contract with the company. Mr. Miller moved that the light committee confer with the electric light company and inform them that unless there is an improvement in the light service that there must be a corresponding reduction in the pay. The motion prevailed.

The street committee was authorized to purchase snow plows, to be hauled by the city horses in cleaning snow from the sidewalks of our city in the future.

Council adjourned to meet as a board of health.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Secretary Hawkins was present and stated the evening was the date for his annual report. The paper shows this city still the healthiest in the state, and is as follows:

To the Hon. Board of Health of the city of Greencastle:

I have the honor to submit to you for the fifth time, my annual report, as your secretary. During the year 1894 nothing of very special importance engaged the attention of the board. The usual number of complaints were lodged against neighbors and neighborhoods, but usually no special trouble was experienced by the secretary in enforcing compliance with orders given. The wastes flowing into our street gutters from laundries, bath rooms etc., still continue the principal nuisance, and is one we can not rid ourselves of without a system of underground sewerage. We have been unusually fortunate in again passing through the year without any epidemic of contagious disease. Extensive improvements have again been made during the year for the betterment of our water supply, by adding new galleries, etc., until now there are two large cribs and 526 feet of galleries, from which our water comes as pure as can be obtained from the source of supply, and the water now is surely as pure as need be for any domestic uses.

We have had born in the city during the past year sixty-four children, thirty-four males and thirty females. Of contagious diseases we have had: Scarlet fever, six cases; diphtheria, one case; typhoid fever, twenty-one cases, the majority of the typhoid being mild in character with not a single death from it. We had forty-six deaths during the year, which is a ratio of only 9 1/2 to the 1000, that being eight to the 1000 less than the average of the cities of the state, which fact still keeps our city in the van of the cities of the state for healthfulness.

Having been re-elected your secretary by a unanimous vote, I will during 1895 (by your assistance) use my best efforts to have the law enforced.

Very Respectfully,
 E. HAWKINS, Sec.

A PUTNAM COUNTY MAN.

Arrested at Coatesville Charged with the Henshaw Murder. In Danville Jail.

As has been suspected all along by some people there have been some sensational developments in store in the Henshaw tragedy, and Putnam county talent has been arrested, alleged to be responsible or implicated in the affair. Yesterday afternoon H. C. Webster arrested "Bun" Nichols at Coatesville, and took him to Indianapolis where he was taken to Danville on a late afternoon train. Webster had quite a time with his prisoner at Coatesville. He had him confined in a drug store and a crowd hearing of the arrest gathered. Webster took his prisoner east on a freight train. The Indianapolis Journal this morning says:

Detective Webster said last week that he had learned the names of the men who committed the burglary and murder, but before he made the arrest he wanted to complete a chain of evidence. He said last night that he had evidence sufficient to convict. The theory he holds is that after the burglars found themselves discovered and recognized by the preacher and his wife they concluded that their only escape from conviction was to murder the two victims and witnesses to their crime. It will be remembered that the wife died the next day from her wounds, never having regained consciousness, and the husband, who received two pistol wounds and seventeen stabs about the body, is still alive. There was a reward of $300 offered for the perpetrators of the murder, and this will fall to Webster and Campbell, if these men are convicted.

Governor Matthews was first informed of the situation last night by a Journal reporter, who called at his home to inquire if he had been notified by the sheriff of any probable danger to the prisoners. The governor said he had received no information of expected trouble. He was inclined to believe that Detective Webster had acted unwisely, in view of his experience at Clayton, in taking the prisoner to Danville instead of placing him in the Marion county jail. The feeling against the men is the more excited because they are charged with belonging to the White gang of lawbreakers, who have kept the Clayton neighborhood in terror for a long time past. Governor Matthews fears an outbreak, and was anxious last night to hear the latest information concerning the affair.

"Bun" Nichols, the young man arrested, is about twenty years of age. His right name is Ed and he is a son of Anderson Nichols, who lives in Mill Creek township, this county. He is a cousin of Alfred Bowen, who was tried here several years ago for the murder of one Kibler. The conductor of the freight train on which Nichols was taken to Indianapolis stated here this morning that his train stopped at Clayton yesterday and the reports in the morning papers that he had run his train through that town to avoid a mob was a mistake, there being no excitement.

George W. Black came down on the Big Four train last evening on which was the Indianapolis detectives with Nichols. Noble Campbell, well-known here, was one of the officers and in a talk with Mr. Black they said they would drive from Danville and make another arrest in Putnam county. The officers stated they believed that they had the right parties, and were after three altogether.

Col. Smith, the mail driver from Mt. Meridian, reported today at ten o'clock that there had been no arrests near Mt. Meridian during the night or this morning. The report in a morning paper that Thomas Keys was arrested yesterday is probably a mistake.

A Growing Guild.

The Musical Aid Guild of the state of New York, of which Miss E. Jean Nelson, of this city, is founder and president, is shown by one of its recent circulars to be growing rapidly. The design of the guild is to place within reach of young men and women of talent and worth the opportunity to obtain a thorough musical education. To a great extent the expense of good musical training places it beyond the reach of those in moderate circumstances. The Guild, of which Miss Nelson is at the head, has been established to meet this condition, and the single studio which was opened last fall has proved inadequate and six branches have been opened in New York City and Brooklyn. The Guild has for patrons some of the best New York people and the principals are some of the most advanced instructors in the metropolis. In March of each year, competitive examinations are held for awarding free scholarships. The Guild is the outgrowth of Miss Nelson's own idea and its success bespeaks for it a great work in the future.

LOST IN THE WILD SEA

WRECK OF THE BARK DICTATOR OFF FALSE CAPE.

Beached Head On to Save Her From Foundering In a Storm—Pathetic Incidents of the Attempts at Rescue—True Tales From the Life Savers' Logbooks.

(Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.)

ABOUT 9 o'clock in the morning, March 27, 1891, the life saving crew of Dam Neck Mills station, on the coast of Virginia, in the vicinity of False cape, sighted a large bark, about a mile from the beach, tacking under a shortened canvas, the wind blowing 40 miles an hour. She was standing to the northward. The wind was east-north-east. The sea was of course very rough, and the weather was rainy and thick. News of the danger was telephoned from station to station along the beach, and the surfmen donned their storm clothing.

The bark was the Dictator, from Moss, Norway, bound to Liverpool from Pensacola. She had been at sea three weeks, with a steady run of bad luck. She encountered a hurricane off the Bahamas which swept away two of her boats and left her leaking. The leak gained steadily, causing discontent among the crew, and Captain Jorgensen decided to put back to Hampton Roads for repairs. The sun had not shone for several days, and he supposed he was off Chesapeake bay. Noticing broken water, he bore for it, but instead of striking deep water he ran upon a line of shore breakers. When the bark's keel grated on the bottom, he saw no hope of escape but to beach his vessel. This he attempted, driving her head on. She struck on the outer bar about 350 yards from shore, a mile north of Seacoast life saving station. Keeper Drinkwater had been warned by telephone, and, watching, saw her strike. It was about 10 o'clock. At 10:45 Drinkwater had his crew on the ground. The bark was working shoreward with the foresail set. Her mainmast was gone, having been cut the moment she struck to ease her. In falling it carried the fore and mizzenmast with it.

The first shot fired at the wreck fell short 40 yards; the second also fell short. The wind and rain were directly in the face of the keeper when firing. About that time the surfmen saw an empty cask, with a line attached, thrown overboard from the Dictator. Two shots were fired over the cask, and the second carried a line across it. A heavy run of seas whirled the cask ashore with a reach of the surfmen, and communication between bark and life savers was established. It was now noon, and as yet not a life had been lost among the 17 people on the wreck. Among them were the captain's wife and 4-year-old son. The promptness of the life savers in getting a line of augured well for a rescue, but the elements were against them. The wind was furious, driving the rain in torrents. Occasional squalls swept up from seaward, increasing the wind at times to over 50 miles an hour. As the lines slackened out from shore they became twisted, and the sailors were obliged to cut them at their fastenings on the wreck and then splice to take the twist out. The wind and strong current also swept the life buoy hawser away northward, delaying the surfmen in getting it anchored on the beach, and after it had been swung the rolling of the vessel hoisted it high in the air and again dipped it into the surf, and was swept at the will of the frightful current. In order to test the working of the buoy a sailor got in, and the surfmen began hauling ashore. He had not traveled more than a third of the rough and perilous journey when the shore end of the hauling line broke. The buoy was quickly run back to the mast and the man taken out more dead than alive.

The chief anxiety of Captain Jorgensen at the time was to save his wife and child. For this he had tested the buoy, and that failing he ordered out the only remaining ship's boat. Two had been lost in the hurricane off the Bahamas and two others smashed when the masts went by the board. The remaining one was a small craft suited to serve for a life car. Under trying difficulties, the wind blowing its worst, all was made ready, and four sailors got in, two taking the oars, one steering and the other hauling. Near shore it capsized and threw them all out. They were all rescued by the surfmen.

Captain Jorgensen had instructed the men in the boat to signal him if a lifeboat could be launched as soon as they got a word with the surfmen, but in their excitement the message was forgotten, and Keeper Drinkwater signaled to the wreck to fasten the end of the line used in slacking the boat ashore to the life buoy. This was done, and the buoy made a trip empty. Then the sailor who had made the unlucky attempt before got in again. He passed through a most terrible ordeal, but reached shore alive, like the others. However, he forgot the captain's message about a lifeboat, which had been given him also.

After that Captain Jorgensen sent off his ship carpenter in the buoy, telling him to signal back whether it would be safe for his wife to attempt the trip in the same way. Mrs. Jorgensen stood beside her husband, watching the trial trip which might decide her fate, and when she saw the buoy alternately drowned in the wild surf and slung with a terrific jerk high into the air she said "no" on board.

The carpenter also failed to send back any signal, which indeed would have been superfluous, and he made no mention to the life savers of the plight of the mother and child.

About the time the carpenter was landed the sailors on the wreck discovered to their horror that the sternpost of the ship had been twisted out of place, letting in the sea and threatening to break up the vessel. The ship was doomed. Realizing this, the captain prevailed upon his wife to attempt rescue by the buoy. Just as she appeared on deck for this purpose a tremendous wave swept over the ship with a power that threatened to dash all hands into the sea. The timbers of the hull groaned under the fearful strain, the tempest roared at its wildest, and the confusion on board was appalling. The terrified child clung close to the father's breast, reaching out its hands to the mother, who was powerless to give help.

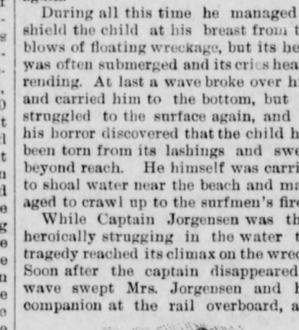

The buoy was hung aloft in the cross-trees, and when Mrs. Jorgensen, after great difficulty, reached it, aided by her husband and two sailors, the slings were found to be held as in a vise and immovable by the shore hauling line, which the strong current bowed until it was as taut as iron. The huge mast swayed in the tempest as though it were simply a loose plaything. It was impossible for strong men to hold on there, and the party descended to the deck.

When night set in, the wreck lay in divided sections, having parted amidships. The forward part was under water, the stern gone, and the small upper deck, where the people were, sloped into the sea. The captain lashed his wife to the pump standard and stood beside her with the child in his arms. The two mates and a sailor crawled forward on the boom. Two others cast their fortunes in with the captain, but one of them in desperation jumped overboard to swim ashore and soon sank forever. It was too dark to make signals from shore, and none could be made from the ship. Meanwhile the life savers had exhausted every effort to get the wrecked people ashore. Keeper Drinkwater saw from his experience with the lines that the sea was so strong that a surfboat would be only a toy on that strong lateral current, and swinging broadside to the high waves would swamp instantly.

Captain Jorgensen, at length despairing of outside help, resorted to a novel means for the rescue of his wife and child. With the aid of the faithful sailor who remained beside him he got overboard a ladder, lashed a life buoy upon his wife and another upon himself, then secured the child to his breast by cords and prepared to descend. His wife said to him calmly, "Don't you think we had better die here together?" Reassuring her, he bade her goodbye and let himself down by a rope to the ladder, which he missed and got between it and the ship's side. As often as he attempted to get upon the ladder it capsized. After a time a huge wave swept him away from the ladder and out of sight of his wife, whom he last saw standing by the rail where he had left her, with her hands clasped in waiting for his signal to come to him. The current drew him into the surf, and a great comb dashed him into the cavity of the hull among the swaying, grinding timbers and floating cargo. The receding waves fortunately bore him out again.

During all this time he managed to shield the child at his breast from the blows of floating wreckage, but its head was often submerged and its cries heart-rending. At last a wave broke over him and carried him to the bottom, but he struggled to the surface again, and to his horror discovered that the child had been torn from his lashings and swept beyond reach. He himself was carried to shoal water near the beach and managed to crawl up to the surfmen's fire.

While Captain Jorgensen was thus heroically struggling in the water the tragedy reached its climax on the wreck. Soon after the captain disappeared a wave swept Mrs. Jorgensen and her companion at the rail overboard, and LET HIMSELF DOWN BY A ROPE both were drowned. Following close upon that the wreck collapsed, and the mizzenmast in falling carried the steward down with it. The noise of the crashing timbers reached the life savers on the beach, telling them that the worst had come, and they plunged into the surf to give what help they could. Only three men on the wreck survived the last mishap, the mates and the sailor on the jibboom, the only piece of the vessel remaining intact. The sailor was knocked off the boom soon after the breakup and drowned. The second mate proposed that the two remaining should jump into the sea and try to buffet the surf, but his companion had lashed himself securely to the boom and refused to leave it, because he couldn't swim. The other no longer had choice in the matter, for a heavy sea tore him from his hold and dashed him into the surf. After a desperate struggle among the driving wreckage he managed to get with sound of the surfmen, who responded to his cries and dragged him from the breakers, the last man saved and the ninth rescued by the life crew. Seven had perished.

Did Not Wait for the Interchangeable Mileage Bill to be Passed.

The general passenger agent of one of the important systems of roads in the Central Traffic association territory, in conversation with a reporter of the Indianapolis Journal, said: "I see by the Journal of Wednesday that the commercial travelers' bill for interchangeable mileage has been favorably received and will likely be passed by the next meeting of the senate. The Commercial Travelers' association has spent a great deal of money and time in pressing this bill. The passage of the bill will undoubtedly help them in some parts of the country, although in the more densely-populated and busy parts of the community the demands of business are more likely to produce favorable methods for the free interchange of business than can be accomplished by legislation, as, for example, the recent announcement that, commencing with the 1st of January, the thousand-mile tickets of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, which are sold for $20, are accepted for passage over not only their connections but competing lines, and this mileage book gives a man the choice of a commercial territory covering over ten thousand miles of railroad. For instance, this ticket is honored from Cincinnati to St. Louis over the issuing road, in connection with the Vandalia, and also over the competing lines, the Big Four and the Ohio & Mississippi. It is also good between Louisville and Cincinnati, good between Chicago and Cincinnati over two roads, good between Cleveland and Cincinnati over two roads, good between Columbus and Cincinnati, good between Cincinnati, Toledo and Detroit, so that so far as the Central states are concerned the field is practically covered by the liberal action of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad in advance of the proposed legislation. Investigating an Old Murder Mystery. FLAT ROCK, Ind., Jan. 23.—Interest in a murder mystery which dates back to 1838 is being revived. In that year James Burk, a well known bachelor, mysteriously disappeared. He always carried a silver mounted rifle, and he wore a belt containing $1,200 constantly about his waist. One night he went away with several persons, who had called for him, and he never returned. Recently it was reported that a man dying in Bartholomew county had confessed that he was one of Burk's murderers, and that the body was thrown into Flat Rock river. Relatives are investigating the report.

Supplies Not Properly Distributed. LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 23.—The legislature adopted a resolution to appoint a committee to investigate the state relief committee. It is alleged business is not being expedited and that aid contributed by other states remains in cars when it is badly needed.
