A Washington dispatch says that General Baden, second Secretary of Legation at London, left Washington last night for New York, and will call on his relatives before leaving for New York on Wednesday. An improvement is prevailing that General Baden's mission means more than was reported by the press.

In Cleveland, Ohio Saturday afternoon at two o'clock Emma, wife of John, aged four, children of George Kraft and Peter, aged three, son of William Patten, were playing with a rifle and bank to the death of several feet. The rifle had been fired by the children and the bullet struck the child in the head.

The Medical Legislature. The Terre Haute Express, an intense Radical sheet, thus expresses its opinion of the Medical Legislature, an opinion which will receive the cordial approval of all the honest and intelligent men in the party.

Let the people of Indiana be thankful. Lightning was never known to strike twice in the same identical spot, and there is no probability that such an incident will ever occur. There is just as little probability that any combination of unscrupulous circumstances will ever bring fools into any future Legislature as have disgraced the State during the past session at Indianapolis. If justice is done, the Penitentiary and Insane Hospital will pick up fifty or sixty of them before the next election.

WASHINGTON. SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION. Visitors at the Executive Mansion. Nickles Commission to Spain Signed. Receipts at United States Treasury.

WASHINGTON, MAY 17. SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION. About one hundred and fifty pupils of the Southern Washington Sabbath School paraded this morning to the Executive Mansion, and there was received in the East Room by the President, who expressed his pleasure in their cheerful and innocent faces. The scholars sang several hymns, and then filed in. In the afternoon, the President received a parade of all the Protestant Sabbath Schools, as heretofore, but the question of including the colored organization deflected the purpose.

VISITORS AT THE EXECUTIVE MANSION. A large crowd of visitors thronged the ante-room of the Executive Mansion this morning. Among those who paid their respects to the President, were Captain J. A. A. and officers of the French school ship, Jean Bart.

Mysteries of Indiana Legislation.

The New York Tribune is befogged over the doings of the Radical members of the Indiana Legislature. It says that the Indiana Legislature has some idea of honesty and fair dealing, some regard for obligations of personal and political honor, hence he is dumbfounded over the telegraphic dispatch announcing the ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment by the House, when the quorum was not present or voting.

"We confess that the mysteries of Indiana legislation are a puzzle to us. The Governor gave notice to the House that he would call the House without a quorum; but the remaining members refused to remain in session until the House was called to order. We prefer to wait further details as to the whole novel procedure before we reach the adoption by another State."

The ruling of the Speaker—the erudite, accomplished and conscientious Speaker—will enlighten the Tribune upon the "mysteries of Indiana legislation." In his opinion, and we suppose he reflected the wishes of the Radical members, and the teachings of Morror, for all ordinary legislation the presence of sixty-seven members is necessary, but for extraordinary legislation, whatever number may happen to be present, especially when it is to be subject to the approval of a court and an advisory commission.

In a speech in the Senate but a short time ago, Senator Morror made a distinction between State Sovereignty and State Rights. To the former he expressed his opposition, pronouncing it a dangerous heresy, while the latter he said he approved. He was opposed to State Sovereignty but in favor of State Rights. Now he has got a new trick. Senator Morror says, for Speaker Buxner is only a mirror to reflect his views, that there is a distinction between the States business and State business. According to this new theory, manufactured to suit the emergency and quiet the scruples of the conscientious in the Radical party, the Legislature of Indiana has two constitutions to govern its legislation. So far as the local affairs of the State are concerned, the Constitution of Indiana is of binding force, but when United States business is submitted to it, then the United States Constitution, as interpreted by the Jacobin Congress, must control the Constitutional Amendment, Morror & Co. say, is United States business, so that the responsibility of determining the fundamental principles of the Government, of a Legislature, whether it is genuine or bogus, and what shall constitute a majority to pass a bill, is solely within the purview and decision of Congress. If Congress is to be the sole judge of the legality of a Legislature, and the validity of its legislation, and if the ratification of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States is United States and not State business, or to use the distinction made by the distinguished Speaker that it is extraordinary legislation not to be governed by the Constitution of the State, we can not see the necessity of submitting the matter to the Legislature at all, if Congress can accept a ratification of its edicts by a portion of a Legislature that has no authority or right under the State Constitution to act in the matter.

Senator Morror proclaimed in his Senatorial speech a few weeks ago that he was in favor of the doctrine of State Rights, and that it was one of the fundamental principles of the Government. But according to his organ here, the Journal, a marvellous and sudden change in his idea of the theory of the Government has overtaken him. That paper speaking for him says, "Senator Morror is credited with knowing what he is about and when he advised this ratification he knew he had Republican opinion in the Senate to support him." That tells the whole story. The Senator was to get some kind of a ratification of the Amendment through the Legislature so that it would have the semblance of Legislative approval, and that Congress would recognize it as the act of the Legislature. The approval or rejection of the Amendment, an amendment that not only establishes negro suffrage in every State, but strikes down the reserved rights of the States that they have always exercised since the formation of the Union was as obvious as the nose on the face of State Rights, if necessary. So that the man who stood up in the Senate and proclaimed his adhesion to the doctrine of State Rights but a few weeks ago, is now the leader in a movement that will strike down the reserved rights of States and make them mere provinces controlled by a strong central power and all other rights of the purpose of perpetuating the rule of a party whose extravagances and corruptions have burdened the people with onerous taxation, and brought the Government and the people to the verge of bankruptcy.

The people should well place in the changes that have taken place in the character of the Government since the advent of the Radical party to power. The Constitution has been disregarded, and the old landmarks have been obliterated until it is hardly a barrier left for the protection of the rights of the States, and we may say popular rights against the increasing power of the central authority. The struggle over the ratification of the proposed Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, is a contest for the maintenance of State Rights. If the people tamely submit to that amendment, they are consenting to the destruction of the Constitution, they are consenting to the complete absorption of a centralized Government—an autocracy in name as well as in spirit, and in the exercise of governing power.

The Morgan Raid Bill. The Journal says the Morgan Raid bill was "a huge speculation, unprecedented in all history, as unfounded as a claim for compensation from injury by lightning, and a speculation that would add an average of five thousand dollars to the pockets of only the State." Again, it says it was an appropriation to pay half million of dollars to a lot of rich speculators. If these charges are true, where the responsibility of the attempted "huge speculation?"

On the 15th inst. in the annual session convened on the 15th of January last, says "the General Assembly, passed the clause of the last session, passed a concurrent resolution, directing the Governor to appoint three commissioners, whose duty it shall be to hear, determine and adjust all claims for losses which had heretofore occurred by the action of the injury, destruction, loss or impairment of property belonging to the State, under the command of the National forces engaged in repelling said invasion."

It is a matter of course of indignation that you are so soon to realize the bright anticipations indulged in by the speculators and the State. MURDER WILL OUT.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE MYSTERY. Human Bones Found in the Cellar. STARTLING DISCOVERIES.

We stated yesterday that information had been lodged at Police Headquarters, on Saturday night, of a man having been committed to what is known as the "haunted house," No. 20 Ann street, about six months ago, and that the police had made a partial investigation. Yesterday the search was renewed by the officers, and after digging two or three feet in the kitchen place a cellar was discovered, the collar, put on by Mrs. Hill, the bones of a man's hands were found. They were taken to an eminent surgeon, who pronounced them human bones. There was no flesh upon them, and up to dark to other portions of the remains had been discovered. It is believed, however, that the rest of the skeleton will yet be unearthed, and the exploration will be continued to-day by the officers, who are determined, if possible, to produce all the evidence of this foul deed, and bring the guilty party to justice. The information, John Wilson, whose wife is now in the county jail serving out a term of six months, for murder, states that a man was murdered in the house about six months ago, and buried in the cellar. His statement is corroborated by Mrs. Sabie, the former occupant of the house, who says that the name of the murderer was Moore, and that he was killed for his money.

The place where the bones were found had all the appearance of having been disturbed recently, and filled up again. It is quite likely that the skeleton was hidden there, and that the crime would become known and a search made, exhumed the remains, and inadvertently left the hands of the skeleton.

It is said that strange and unearthly noises have been heard in the house, but Mrs. Sabie left it on the second night. The bones were found in the cellar in that portion of the city, and there are many who believe that the restless spirit of the murdered man roams the cellar after dark, making night hideous with its groans.

This house has been the theater of many dark crimes, having been occupied for a long time as a house of ill-fame, during which time it was frequented by a desperate class of men. Bloody fights and midnight brawls were of common occurrence, and it was, for some time, a terror to the people living in the neighborhood.

The cellar of the house presented a dismal and gloomy appearance, that gave one an idea of "Rye House plots," conspirators and midnight murders. There was that indefinable "something" in the unwholesome atmosphere of the place that suggested a den of assassins and other unpleasant reminiscences. On the wall, near the spot where the bones were exhumed, is a stain which looks like a human blood clot, and which, if fastened on by time, there to remain as a silent witness of some ghastly deed.

The City Attorney reported that the Council had power to relieve the Turner Society school property from taxation. The Mayor, Treasurer and Deputy Clerk reported that they had destroyed $40,000 of city bonds deposited with First National Bank as collateral for loan to city.

Mr. Locke's ordinance, fixing the compensation of city officers, was called up on the second reading and read by sections. Mr. Cottrill moved to amend the salary for the Mayor by inserting $2,000. He thought the office, so far as its duties were concerned, of no more real benefit than that of a Councilman, while its actual labor did not amount to half of that imposed on the City Clerk. He could see no use of increasing salaries to such an extent, when the main duty was to be discharged, and the election had been on the question of the enormous city expenditures, and more especially when the candidates for the various offices expected to fill them at the same salaries that were paid last year.

Printing and Stationery—Messrs. Thon, Harrison and Shepherd. Board of Health—Messrs. Woodburn, Weaver and Whitsett. The Treasurer reported the selection of John W. Coons and William McVey for deputies. Confirmed.

The bonds of the Civil Engineer, Market Master, City Sealer and Chief Fire Engineer, were accepted. The City Attorney reported that the Council had power to relieve the Turner Society school property from taxation. The Mayor, Treasurer and Deputy Clerk reported that they had destroyed $40,000 of city bonds deposited with First National Bank as collateral for loan to city.

Mr. Locke's ordinance, fixing the compensation of city officers, was called up on the second reading and read by sections. Mr. Cottrill moved to amend the salary for the Mayor by inserting $2,000. He thought the office, so far as its duties were concerned, of no more real benefit than that of a Councilman, while its actual labor did not amount to half of that imposed on the City Clerk. He could see no use of increasing salaries to such an extent, when the main duty was to be discharged, and the election had been on the question of the enormous city expenditures, and more especially when the candidates for the various offices expected to fill them at the same salaries that were paid last year.
