

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1860, EDWARD BATES, of Missouri. VICE-PRESIDENT, JOHN M. READ, of Penn.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE!

That the sham-democratic party are directly responsible for the disastrous effects resulting from the agitation of the slavery question is a well established fact...

The course now being pursued by the sham-democratic press [we call them sham-democratic because they don't possess the first essential qualities of Democracy...]

It is a fact known to many that a rather fearful insurrection occurred among the negroes in portions of Kentucky and Tennessee in 1856, occasioned by this very species of lying on the part of so-called democratic leaders and demagogues...

It has been said, and not without some grounds, too, that old Brown in all probability, got the plan of his insurrection from Gov. Wise, who, it will be recollected, threatened to take possession of the Army at Harper's Ferry and then march upon Washington City...

THE END OF THE VOLUME.—Four more numbers will complete the present volume of the Banner; and as we are of the go-ahead kind, we wish all our friends who want the paper continued, not particularly for our benefit but for their own, to be ready to "fork over" their dollar and fifty cents for the ensuing year...

The stomach of the Greencastle Banner is becoming nauseated. The last number emphatically declares that "the Republican party wants nothing to do with the negro!"

Richard Owen, Esq., Geologist for the State of Indiana, is now on a tour through the country, with a view of gathering statistical information preparatory to commencing a general and thorough geological survey of the State next Spring.

The first of a course of public lectures (alluded to heretofore by us) will be delivered in Thornburgh's Hall on next Tuesday evening, the 29th inst.

Jacob Durham, Esq., gives notice that his notes and accounts at Russellville must be settled up.

WHAT RAILROADS CAN DO FOR AN EDITOR.—The Weekly Southern Standard, published at Trenton, Tenn., thus discourses on the completion of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad to that point:

GOOD NEWS.—We are pleased to learn that the track of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was yesterday thrown across the Ohio river. So the iron horse will in a few weeks really be snorting at Trenton. That a city—a great big one—will spring up around us—we will wear store clothes, own a spotted dog, edit a daily Standard, and have in it a spicy police report like unto A. Walker of the Nashville Banner...

So we thought and soliloquized to ourselves when the Rail-roads were completed to Greencastle! But what does the reality prove? We find, in order to succeed, that we are compelled to work just as usual—to be editor, "devil," roller-boy, pressman—and, at home, nurse the babies, milk the cow, saw wood, dig the taters, and hoe in the garden just as we did before our Railroads were completed.

Seriously—to one class, Railroads are a decided advantage; and that is, to farmers. They enable the tiller of the soil to realize as much or more at home for his produce, as he once did when he wagoned it fifty and seventy-five miles to market, as many in this county done twelve and fifteen years ago.

The Terre-Haute Daily Express, one of our most valuable exchanges, don't reach us in the morning by the 9 o'clock train from Terre-Haute, but frequently comes to us by the Eastern mail from Indianapolis!

Thos. Maher, a citizen of Lafayette, met with a horrible death on Wednesday last, by accidentally falling into a beer sink at Halabird's distillery in that place.

The Evansville Journal says steps are being taken in Cannelton, for the organization of an association having for its object, the increase of small manufactories in that place.

DISSOLUTION OF THE DEMOCRACY.—Hon. Mr. Miles, member of Congress from South Carolina, and the earliest member of the delegation from that State, is of the opinion that the "National" Democratic party is about giving up the ghost.

The great National Democratic party, in spite of all appliances of patronage and place and the props and bandages of endless compromises, is, it seems about to tumble into pieces.

The stomach of the Greencastle Banner is becoming nauseated. The last number emphatically declares that "the Republican party wants nothing to do with the negro!"

It is said by Doctors, that when a man becomes deaf, and blind, and crazy, he has a strange infatuation, presentiment or something else, which leads him to believe that every other person is in the same deplorable predicament.

"The Hornet" is the title of a little paper recently started at Marshall, Ill. It stings the sham-democratic party on every side with a vim and determination that will, with good effect, upon future elections.

There is fun in politics, as well as anything else.—Hornet.

Well, there may be, but we confess that we have, as yet, been unable to see any "fun" in the kind of politics we have in "old Putnam," by which we were beaten on three hundred votes at the late election!

CONFESION OF COOK. CHARLESTON, Nov. 9, 1859. The confession of Cook, which was yesterday read in Court, is jealous guarded for the purpose hereafter to be developed. Its importance is hardly sufficient to warrant such care.

WHISKEY AND SLAVERY.—Take the Whiskey and Slavery Plank from the sham-democratic party, and it is as dead as "a door nail" after having been hammered into a two-inch oak plank.

There has been a good deal of excitement recently at Cleveland about the capture of a runaway negro at Oberlin. It appears that a man named Hartman induced a negro to accompany him on the cars, and when they reached Cincinnati he was handed over to the United States Marshal, who delivered him to his owner, a resident of Greenup county, Ky.

The Evansville Enquirer, late a rampant Douglas organ, has now come out in favor of anti-slavery.

Col. Forney draws a beautiful and perfect parallel between the offenses against the public peace committed by John Brown and Jas. Buchanan.

Mr. Buchanan himself is more guilty in a moral sense, for work at Harper's Ferry, than poor old Brown.

Wm. M. Daily, late President of the State University at Boonington, has recently been expelled from the Methodist Church for lewdness and drunkenness.

Rev. PARKE BUTLER.—This gentleman who was so shamefully abused in Kansas by the Pro-Slaveryites a short time since because of his opposition to Niggers, we notice, by the Bedford Independent, will preach at several places in Lawrence county from the 1st to the 12th of December next.

WHAT DOUGLAS WAS DOING WHEN TAKEN STOCK.—The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Express says of Senator DOUGLAS:

When first stricken down he was employed in preparing a reply to Judge Black's rejoinder. It was issued to-day in a pamphlet form, in an unfinished state. He remarks in a note, "I am too feeble to add more; here let the controversy rest for the present, perhaps forever."

WHERE THE SHOE PINCHES.—An old Whig, who now votes the Buchanan ticket, said the other day: "My acquaintances sometimes wonder how I, who have always fought against the Democratic party, can now vote with it; but I can tell them that voting the ticket isn't the greatest difficulty. It is mixing with the men that I find the hardest work."

The Montgomery (Ala) Mail says: "Charles H. Pray, of Boston, boasted of having voted for Fremont, and talked in a manner that did not suit the Mobilians the other day, and was required to give a bond of $5,000 or leave. Another James Murphy, had a free talk with some slaves, and tried to induce a free 'nigger' woman to go with him to a Free State. He was required to give a $500 bond, or leave by himself."

LOCAL ITEMS AND TOWN GOSSIP. Festival. The Ladies of Simpson Church will give a festival at Thornburgh's Hall on the evening of Thanksgiving day—Thursday Nov. 24th. The proceeds will be applied to the purchase of furniture for the new church.

Thomas Robinson has just completed a very beautiful and costly residence on the lot once occupied by John M. Alison, once a well known merchant of this place. This is undoubtedly one of the finest residences in the place.

EDUCATIONAL.

This column is under the control of J. W. HENNA, and is devoted exclusively to educational matters.

REPORT ON ENGLISH GRAMMAR—Concluded.

BY L. L. ROGERS.

In entering upon the very threshold of the study of English Grammar, we meet a formidable barrier in the shape of English orthography, which, either from indolence in the pupil or neglect on the part of the Preceptor or both combined, we often find to be very deficient. To remedy this, we would say persevere, as "practice alone can make perfect."

Eymology, which treats of the classification of words, in the usual course next demands our attention, in which care should be taken to impress the truth that words are classified and named, not from the form, but from the nature of the idea that they represent; and to illustrate which in my little experience, I have commonly drawn a rough Diagram on the Black Board: This * * * we see objects, names are applied—forming one class emanating from the ground trunk of English words which we call "nouns." Second, we see them perform acts, forming another class of words, and so on, through all the "parts of speech."

Syntax, or the proper arrangement of words into sentences, we pass for the present; also, the fourth subject, Prosody, which relates to a mere luxury of language, since metrical arrangement is by no means necessary to the effectual communication of thought.

The importance of the study we acknowledge, and we would not have any one suppose that we undervalue it because we would make it the last in an English course. For, to the cultivation of a taste for English Grammar, both the East and the West are indebted for much of the literature they possess. This position will not be doubted when we consider that Grammar is the key to the peculiarities of every language, and especially so with respect to the English, for without an intimate knowledge of its principles neither its genius nor its scope can be understood or ascertained; since it has peculiarities different from almost every other language, it being made up of heterogeneous though not discordant elements. And well has it been compared to a "Mosaic pavement resembling patch work of which the variegation renders it beautiful as an entire object of vision."

How important then that we endeavor to adopt a plan in our instruction that will gradually and substantially unfold the genius of the English Language, and engage the attention of the young, without their considering it a drudgery; in our constructions not sacrificing the meaning and use of words upon the altar of "mechanical parsing," an exercise which is too frequently found in our modern Text Books. In the main serving rather as grammatical anvils on which the attempt is made to forge "intellectual chains without links of thought," rather than by pursuing a course that shall incite the pupil to make up such deficiencies as may occur, by additional thought and accounting him to make the different modes of expression he meets in respectable authors, a system of Grammar will evolve itself, which will be all the better by being wrought out by his own exertions.

In conclusion we would add, that words in themselves are nothing and are valuable only so far as they are symbols of ideas. Beautifully has Johnson said: "Words are the Daughters of earth, things only are the sons of Heaven." Let none be so taken up with words as to forget solid things.

Teachers and friends of education, don't forget, that Saturday, 26th inst. is the time that the Western Teachers' Association meets at Ladoga. We hope there will be a large attendance.

A gentleman posted in such matters, says that the locusts will appear next season, and he comes to this conclusion from the fact that larva or young locust can be found at a short distance below the surface, and from the further fact, that it will then be fourteen years since their last appearance in 1846. The only question appears to be, whether their visitations are at intervals of 14 or 17 years as some authorities set forth. Some one posted on the locust question will be able to enlighten the public on this important point.

WIT AND HUMOR.

A HORSE ADVERTISEMENT.—A man in Wisconsin advertises his horse for sale, and thus discourses: "Thou canst trust thy labor to him because his strength is great. Thou canst bind him with his band in the furrow; he will harrow the valleys after thee. He will gather thy seed into the barn. His strength is terrible, in which he rejoiceth. The glory of his nostrils is his pride, his neck is clothed with thunder. He paweth in the valley, and waxeth proud in his speed. He mocketh at fear, neither turneth he his back from the hobgoblin. Lo, now, he moveth his tail like a cedar; his sinews are as cables. His bones are like strong pieces of brass, yea, like bars of iron. He stretcheth grass like an ox; behold he drinketh up a river, and trusteth that he can draw up Jordan in his mouth. Who can open the door of his face? yet thou canst approach him with a bridle.—His teeth are terrible round about. I will not conceal his parts, nor his power nor his comely proportions. 'Tis gentle he is kind. And his tail hangs out behind.' And I want to sell him for something I can pay my debts with."

A couple of Kentuckians lately visited Boston, and set down to dine at the "Revivore House." Cod-fish balls were served at the table, and one of the Kentuckians taking them for "corn dodgers," proceeded to break one in two. Getting the scent of it, he turned to his partner remarking in the most solemn manner—"Something dead in that, Tom!" Mr. Jenkins playfully remarked to his wife that in her he possessed four full. "Name them, my love." "You are beautiful, dutiful, youthful, and an armful." "You have the advantage of me my dear." "How so, my precious?" "I have but one fool!" Mr. Jenkins made no further enquiries.

THREE things that never agree—Two cats over one mouse, two wives in one house, and two lovers after one young lady. The man who did not think it respectable to bring up his children to work, has just heard from his three sons. One of them is a driver on the canal, another had been taken up as a vagrant, and the third has gone to an institution at Jeffersonville to learn a trade. The Massachusetts Senate and House lately got into a dispute whether a he goat should be called "he" or "it." After a long dispute, the House gave in, so that hereafter by the Massachusetts laws, a he goat must be called "it."

An anecdote, relative to the late Professor Wilson, is just now circulating. When the suitor for the hand of Prof. Wilson's daughter had gained the lady's approbation, he was, of course, referred to papa. Having stated his, probably not unexpected case, the young lady was directed to come to her father, and doubtless her obedience was prompt. Professor had before him, for review, some work on the fly-leaf of which was written, "With the author's compliments." He tore this out, pinned it to his daughter's dress, solemnly led her to the young lover, and went back to his work.

How a Dog Reasons.—The Utica Herald relates the following story of the almost human intelligence of a dog: "A farmer living in New Hampshire had a dog which had grown old in the service of the family. Having become very feeble and useless, and having, moreover, lost nearly all of his teeth, the farmer told his family one morning, in the presence of the dog, that he thought he would take him out and shoot him. Almost immediately the venerable brute disappeared. The premises were searched, but in vain. Three days elapsed, and nothing was seen of the missing dog. This was the more remarkable, as he had occupied his place by the fireside regularly for many years. Finally, the owner having occasion to creep under the barn-floor in search of something which had fallen through, found the dog crouched up in a dark corner, trembling with fear and whining pitifully. Struck with compassion, he said, in a kind voice, 'Don't be afraid, old dog; you shan't be shot.' The poor creature leaped toward his master, licked his hands and face, ran joyfully toward the house, and took his place in the chimney corner. It is hardly necessary to add that he was permitted to spend the rest of his days in peace."

A MODEL EDITORIAL.—The Constitution, the organ of the government, has from day to day the following leading editorial: "Black Republicans, incendiaries, hars murderers, treason, universal anarchy, Black Republicans, incendiaries, murder, treason, William H. Seward, black hearted, Black Republicans, high law, murder, treason, Giddings, Black Republicans, irrepressible conflict, reasonable sentiments," &c.—[N. Y. Post.] It appears from the report of Ould, the U. S. District Attorney, that not a single slave voluntarily joined the insurgents.—Brown and his accomplices had calculated, it seems, upon a general rising of the slaves as soon as he had struck the first blow, and then he was to march triumphantly through the Southern States, taking a Southwest course through Virginia.

A young and beautiful girl, daughter of a wealthy merchant in Albany, N. Y., has become strongly and strangely addicted to drink, and one day last week was found nearly dead drunk in the street.—She was richly dressed, and a party of rude boys were piling dry leaves upon her. Her parents are obliged to maintain a continual watch over her, but she occasionally evades their surveillance, and is sure to get intoxicated if she can obtain the liquor.
