

BRAKEMAN KILLED ON THE BIG FOUR

CARL LEVY, AGE ABOUT 27, STRUCK BY WEST-BOUND PASSENGER TRAIN, AT DELMAR, AT NEAR 8:15 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING.

THE BODY IS CUT IN TWO

Carl Levy, age about 27 years, was instantly killed, when knocked down and run over by a west-bound passenger train on the Big Four, at Delmar, at near 8:15 o'clock this morning. The body was brought to this city and taken to the Lynch's Undertaking establishment. There is little known about the dead man. The conductor of the west bound local freight train, No. 51, on which Levy was working, knows nothing further about him than his name.

Levy was standing behind the freight train, which was on a side track and when he walked around the end of the train, stepped directly in front of the oncoming passenger train. The pilot of the engine knocked him down and the wheels passed over him just above the hips. The body was cut in two.

The passenger train stopped and turned the body over to the crew of the freight train, which brought it to this city. Coroner Gillespie was called and examined the body. The members of the train crew knew little of Levy. He had been working as a brakeman for some time but had not told the other trainmen anything about his family. It is probable that the body will be sent to some other town for burial as soon as the whereabouts of his relatives are learned.

Word was received here late this afternoon that Levy's home is in Evansville. His mother and father both live there. The dead man is a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge of Terre Haute. The body will be taken to Evansville tonight. He was unmarried.

Mrs. Jacob Cattie, of Greencastle, and Mrs. Mary Dreshell and daughter, of Marion, who have been here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Boes, left for their homes this morning.

PRESBYTERY OF INDIANAPOLIS

The summer meeting of the Indianapolis Presbytery was held in the Second Church, Indianapolis, Monday. Rev. G. H. L. Beeman, of Greencastle, read the annual report on Young People's Work in the Presbytery. The number of young people's societies of all kinds was reported as thirty-four, though not all churches reported on this subject. These societies contributed during the year to various causes $1908, $994, of this going to Home and Foreign Missions. Report also showed a healthy activity of the young people in various departments of church work.

Rev. E. W. Clippinger was received from the Presbytery of Bloomington, Ills., and will be installed pastor over the Tabernacle church, Indianapolis.

Mr. Wm. Jobusch was examined and licensed to preach the gospel. Mr. Jobusch has been a lawyer and member of the bar. However, he has been attending the theological seminary, having decided to enter the ministry. He has charge of churches at Brownsburg, Clermont and White Lick.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stoner will spend Sunday in Indianapolis.

LOCAL DENTIST GIVEN HONOR

DR. R. J. GILLESPIE IS ELECTED SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT OF FIFTH DISTRICT DENTAL ORGANIZATION IN TERRE HAUTE FRIDAY.

TOOTH PULLERS HAVE OUTING

At the picnic and outing of the Dentists of the Fifth Congressional District, at Terre Haute, Friday, Dr. R. J. Gillespie, of this city, was elected second vice president of the organization. The following is taken from the Terre Haute Daily Tribune:

Strenuous athletic stunts marked the pleasure of the dentists in their first half holiday. Plenty to eat and drink were in evidence at the late dinner which was followed by an informal business session. Dr. A. R. Ross, of Lafayette, addressed the body, showing the advantages to the profession of a district organization.

The organization was perfected at once with Dr. Clarence Williams, president; Dr. C. E. Erwin, first vice president; Dr. Gillespie, of Greencastle, second vice president; Dr. R. A. Scholtz, secretary; Dr. Edward Reiss, treasurer.

OUT ADVERTISING FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION.

Several men went to various parts of the county today to distribute advertising matter for the big free celebration to be held here on July Fourth. The men are putting the bills up in stores in small towns and are scattering them along the highways. The celebration will be well advertised both in this and adjoining counties. Several Greencastle men have offered the use of their automobiles for the scattering of bills and these will be used next week. From the conversation of many country people and persons from other towns in the country who were here today, it is evident that the Greencastle Fourth of July celebration is attracting much interest.

MORE DOPE BY MIQUE O'BRIEN

TERRE HAUTE, TRIBUNE STAFF MAN SEEMS TO HAVE LONG STRING OF INFORMATION ABOUT GREENCASTLE AND PUTNAM COUNTY.

There are surface indications even this early that politics will "bite" in old Indiana as never before during the next state and presidential campaign. The convention in which the preliminary skirmishes will be waged will call out the conservatives as well as the politicians to whom the work of selecting candidates is often delegated by the lukewarm citizen, who should be most vitally interested.

HE GETS INTO POLITICS

The popularity of President Taft would be alarming to democrats if the next election were not so far away. Just now Mr. Taft is referred to by democrats as a "pretty good democrat" himself. Judge Judson Harmon, of Ohio, is the choice of the men who regard Grover Cleveland as the greatest statesman we have ever had since the war. And there are a lot of fellows who feel just this way about the matter and are not afraid to declare themselves right in front of rampant Bryanites either.

"Billy" O'Brien is talked of as a candidate for governor, who would at least call out the full support of his party, but there is an impression he feels he can best serve the state by filling another term as auditor.

CIRCUIT COURT NIGHT SESSION

ARGUMENTS IN CASE OF MARY UNISON AGAINST MIKE WOOLF TO QUIET A TITLE TO REAL ESTATE, DID NOT CLOSE UNTIL 11 O'CLOCK.

In order that the work of this term of court might be completed, today being the last day of the term, the arguments in the case of Mary Unison against Mike Woolf, to quiet title to real estate near Limestone, were made Friday night. The arguments began at 7 o'clock and did not close until 11 o'clock. The case then went to the jury and as yet no finding has been reached.

The case is a peculiar one and was tried once before in the Putnam court. However, a new trial was asked for and granted. Judge Rawley heard the case before but this time it was given a jury.

The story is this: John Unison borrowed $300 of his step-father, Ed O'Hearn. As security, so it is alleged, John Unison and Mary Unison, his wife, deeded to Mr. O'Hearn 8 acres of land near Limestone. The land was to be deeded back to them when the debt was paid.

However, both Mr. O'Hern and Mr. Unison died before the land was deeded back and the land went to Bridget Woolf, sister of Ed O'Hern. She in turn deeded it to her son, Michael Woolf. Now Mrs. Unison, alleges that her interest in the property was given only as a mortgage and asks that the title to the land be transferred to her name.

The county commissioners met today to pass on the several gravel road repair claims. The claims were allowed. No other business was transacted by the commissioners.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Pearson, who have been spending the week in Chicago, are expected home tonight. Mr. Pearson is the baker at the Zeis & Co., bakery.

James Merryweather went to Indianapolis this morning on business.

Speech by Miss Jennie Jones. Response by the Superintendent, J. P. Allen. Old Glory, Genevieve Moore. Solo, Star Spangled Banner, Mrs. C. C. Hurst. Exhortation, Benediction by the pastor, Dr. Robbins.

ENTERTAINS FOR FRIENDS

Miss Louise Abrams most delightfully entertained a number of her girl friends Friday night at her home on West Popular street. The evening was spent in games and other amusements. The feature of the evening was a guessing contest. Miss Bertha Tucker won the prize in the guessing contest. The front porch and yard were tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns and the porch was enclosed with tree branches. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The guests were: Miss Irene Selby, Miss Irma Grubb, Miss Clara Sharp, Miss Lella Claire Lammers, Miss Mary Tucker, Miss Bertha Tucker, Miss Hazel Vermillion, Miss Lous Shouse, Miss Dorothy Arnold, Miss Christine Bicknell, Miss Mary Weik, Miss Genevieve Moore, Miss Marjory Campbell, Miss Julia Jean Nelson, Miss Irene Hammond, Miss Jessie Gobin, Miss Helen Kelley, Miss Arabelle McCallip, of Brazil, with Miss Vermillion, and Miss Pheobe Listman, of Beardstown, Ill., with Miss Lammers.

Although the early settlers of Putnam county were nearly all Kentuckians or Virginians, this section was loyal to Lincoln in the perilous times just preceding the civil war as well as during that conflict. The Knights of the Golden Circle, so strong in the southern counties of the state and particularly so in towns like Sullivan and Linton, had local representation, but it was not strong enough to buck against the prevailing sentiment which was strong for Lincoln and his policies.

Several cabins had been built in and about Greencastle before it was platted into lots, but the first real building in the business part was erected by Pleasant S. Wilson. ## NOW IN HANDS OF JURY

One of the editors of a Greencastle newspaper was figuring out just what DePauw university really amounted to as an asset of the town. "The college attracts 1,000 students from all parts of the country," said this mathematician. "Many of them are fairly well supplied with spending money. Boys who go to college these days are more generously equipped by their parents than in the old days and the boys who come here now have more money to spend than those who took the course a dozen years ago. We will say each student spends $10 per month in the town—and this is about as little as they can get by on—that means $90,000 for the nine months' term—just so much money spent that's not produced here."

Thought I noticed something scholarly in the manner in which the dishes were juggled at the Commercial.

LOCAL BOYS LOSE TO BAINBRIDGE

UP-COUNTY BASEBALL TEAM DEFEATS THE GREENCASTLE GRAYS, BY SCORE OF 14 TO 6, FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

NORMAN FANS 12 MEN

The Greencastle Grays met their Waterloo, Friday afternoon, at Bainbridge, when the Bainbridge baseball team defeated them by a score of 14 to 6. The game was a walkaway for the up-county boys and at no time of the game did the locals have a look in. Stultz, of Fincaisle, who was on the mound for the Greencastle team was easy for the Bainbridge huskies. They found him for a dozen safe hits. He fanned three men. Norman, the pitcher for the Bainbridge aggregation, was a puzzle and allowed the Grays only five hits, and whiffing an even dozen men. Both teams made several errors.

A Charming Woman.

is one who is lovely in face, form and temper. But it's hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous an d irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want good health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Cost of Sultan's Food.

The cost of the Sultan of Turkey's food does not exceed $5,000 a year, according to a report from Constantinople. The Sultan's diet consists of boiled eggs. But to feed the numerous members of his household and pay all domestic expenses lessens his annual income of $10,000,000 by $90,000 a week.

King Edwards' Gift.

King Edward has sent $15 to a Devices artist named Wiltshire, who painted a picture of His Majesty wearing his coronation robes and forwarded it to Buckingham Palace. Wiltshire is a cripple and works holding his pencil or brush between his toes.

Willed Away His Son.

At the Northwick (England) rural Council Councillor Watts reported a case of a boatman who willed and bequeathed his son Fred to an other boatman, who paid a half-crown to make the transaction, as he imagined, legal.

Imported Asparagus.

It is claimed by groccerymen in Mexico that asparagus is being imported from France in large packages and canned in the City of Mexico under American labels as though coming from California.

Money in Onion Raising.

A Vermont gardner has succeeded in raising on a patch of ground three by twenty feet nearly four bushels of onions. At this rate an acre would produce 2,004 bushels, which would bring about $1,000.

Abolishing the Guillotine.

Since the prison of LaRoquette, where the French guillotine used to be kept, has been pulled down, the machine of death has been kept in a shed belonging to the state executioner. Since there is no place in Paris where it seems desirable to put up the guillotine, no more executions take place there. The President of the republic gets around the difficulty by commuting the death sentence to imprisonment.

When Scent Balls Were Used.

The form of perfume known as the scent-ball was used in England as early as the year 1800. It was composed of many ingredients, chief of which was ambergris, which is still greatly in use by perfumers. At that time a nutmeg was used for a like purpose. It was set in silver, decorated with pearls and precious stones and was a rare and highly prized object.

ASTHMA CATARRH CURED

Expert Medical Scientists Announce Startling Results Obtained by Sempine.

It is curing thousands of the most stubborn cases. It makes no difference how long you have been suffering or how severe the climatic conditions are where you live. Sempine will cure you.

If you have experimented with other treatments and have failed to find a cure do not be discouraged but send for a trial of this wonderful truly meritorious remedy which is a scientific compound discovered by a Professor of Vienna University, and is being recommended by thousands.

LIGHTNING DAMAGE MAY BE PREVENTED

Protection from lightning is a subject that recurs with the coming of each summer. In the violence of an atmospheric electric disturbance, accompanied by awe-inspiring flashes of lightning there are but few who have not desired the protection of a lightning proof shelter.

The probability of an individual building being struck by lightning is really very slight but there is always a possibility of such an occurrence and also that the stroke might be attended with considerable violence; more than that the building might take fire.

That lightning rods are a real protection to buildings from lightning has been proven so many times that their value is no longer questioned, but the possibility of obtaining experimental data is so limited that definite rules for the establishment of the rods and conductors have never been formulated. For many years, lightning rods were looked upon with suspicion in the country, because their sale for a considerable period was used as a means to defraud the unwary.

The formation of lightning is very imperfectly understood but experience with its vagaries and a knowledge of the laws of high-tension electric currents has established a fairly good understanding of the methods of constructing lightning conductors for all ordinary discharges. It is very well known that lightning is the discharge of a large amount of electricity in a very short space of time and that whatever affords it a passage to the earth is apt to be badly damaged, unless the vehicle happens to be a good conductor of electricity and of sufficient size to transmit the amount of electric energy the flash contains; in which case it passes away doing no damage at all.

As a storm develops the electrically charged clouds pass over the earth and when the electrical intensity becomes great enough to break down the resistance of the intervening air, the resulting charge will pass into the earth by the most convenient path. This is commonly some high object of the landscape, a building, a pole, a tree or any other object that extends up from the earth. If the object is a conductor of electricity and connected with the earth, the lightning will pass into the ground without the least damage being done but if it is not a good conductor, the havoc that is wrought in an instant is sometimes appalling.

Building with metallic roofs that are properly connected with the earth are far better protectors from lightning than could be given by rods. Buildings that are completely covered with sheet metal and well connected with the earth are practically lightning proof. Covered in this manner, buildings have been known to be repeatedly struck by lightning without the least damage. The sheet-iron granary, so common in the west, when well connected with the earth may be considered lightning proof. The ground connections mentioned above may be made of metallic rods that extend well into the earth and securely fastened to the metallic covering of the buildings.

In considering the form of lightning conductors it is well to keep in mind the fact that a metal covered building well connected with the earth is practically a lightning proof and that one with a metallic roof, well grounded is excellently well protected if not perfectly safe. If then, the roof of a building possesses a metallic ridge, eaves-troughs and downspouts, these will afford very good protection if they are all connected and well grounded. A roof covered with a metallic screen, as a chicken screen, makes an excellent protector when properly grounded.

It must be remembered that the ground connection is a positive necessity and too much care cannot be exercised in its construction. The earth is the great reservoir of electrical energy and it is always at zero potential. If a discharge of lightning can be directed into the moist earth by a conductor, its energy is soon dissipated but the ground connection must be of considerable area and extend well into the moist earth. A piece of galvanized iron pipe driven into the ground seven or eight feet makes a good "ground." Large buildings must have two or more such "grounds." The connecting wires must be securely fastened to the ground connections.

In the matter of conducting wires, the U. S. Weather Bureau recommends a number three, galvanized iron wire as amply sufficient in size for ordinary lightning protection. If metallic downspouts are used as conductors the connections should be made, with the "grounds," with riveted joints. Copper conductors give no better protection than iron if the iron is kept covered to prevent it from rusting.

Wire fences are often the cause of damage by lightning because of the method of construction. If the fence wires are grounded the danger from this cause will disappear. Ground wires may be made of ordinary fence wire and should be connected with each of the wires of the fence and extend into the ground three feet. Such "grounds" should be made for each 100 feet of fence.

Don't Forget

Winning Success

JUDGE SEWELL, of Massachusetts, once said: "Home is that place to which a man, having returned, he is no longer abroad."

Home is made by all the minds of the family. Each member of the family thinks of the home as a whole or of a room in the home, and straightway these thoughts; not always clearly, to be sure, for no picture is ever quite accurate.

This is the reason that you do not look like your photograph all the time. The original is always a little sharper or a little different. But we may truly say that the home is made by the thoughts of all who live in it.

But the home changes? Yes, it changes just as family thoughts change. One day some member of the family brings in the thought of a new chair for the parlor. When, after a while, every one in the family has that chair-thought, the chair comes.

Or, the daughter of the family wants a new bureau. She talks about it until she wakes up enough bureau thought in the family to get a major-ows both and should make them work for him. In the same way he must learn that home and surroundings are his to work with. They are his to make and to mold exactly as he sees fit.

It is clear, then, that if a man wants to be surrounded by good things—that is, things worth having—he must think of them HARD ENOUGH TO WORK FOR THEM. When we come to talk about education, we shall see more clearly how this is to be done. But we can see now that true education has to do with many things besides books. It being with self-mastery, which means control of mind, control of body, and a knowledge how thought can make a pleasant place to live in.

Can it be done? Anything can be done with patience. A man learns a great deal by gaining the mastery of his own thoughts. And one of the first things he learns is this:

A passing wish or a sudden notion is not a thought. A real thought is a powerful thing. It acts with great force. There is as much difference between a thought and a passing wish as there is between a flash of lightning and a firefly.

A real thought forces you into action. A caterpillar surrounds itself with a cocoon for the purpose of becoming a butterfly, later on. However, much a caterpillar may wish, in the morning to be a butterfly in the evening, it must go into the cocoon, and wait patiently to be changed over to the new form.

A real thought is like the caterpillar. It must make up its cocoon of the principal thought, and of all other helpful thoughts that can be gathered about it. Then it must wait, and the thing for which the cocoon stands will come forth in due time in all its beauty.

The Norwegian writer, Bjornson, once said this: "THE EXPRESSION is the thoughts." This is worth remembering, for it means that the thought does not reach its end nor fulfill its purpose UNTIL IT IS WORKED OUT. Hence, thought, like iron in a forge, must be heated and hammered and put into shape, and when the object is made, the thought has reached the end of its career AS A THOUGHT but it is just beginning its career as a THING.

Home, then, shows perhaps more clearly than anything else just what thoughts are actually heated and hammered into shape by a person or a family. And back of his truth lie many things and conditions.

Of these, the first is this: Home should picture real thoughts, and not mere wishes and notions. Thoughts are things we work for, strive for, and pay for. Wishes and notions lead us into debt, or into a struggle with the installment plan, or into the folly of trying to picture somebody else's thoughts who can produce a new bureau because she is ready for it.

A man who mortgages his furniture to buy an automobile is trying to picture the thoughts of another man who can perhaps afford it. He is making home and property tell a lie about him. This untruth arises because he is not able to govern and command his thoughts. If he could command them he would not think of the automobile until he was ready for it.

Hence, to begin with, home TELLS THE TRUTH ABOUT EVERYBODY IN THE FAMILY.

How, then, can a poor man have a beautiful home? There are two ways.

The first is this: The home of a poor man must always tell the truth. It must not spell debt and foolishness. It can be as neat and tidy, as homelike and as comfortable as any other man's home.

Bit by bit, one who owns the home can think it into a new and fairer form by thinking new and fairer thoughts about it.

These thoughts will come true. There is another important thing about home. It is almost as much a part of us as the body itself. As we make it, so it helps to make us. For that reason it should always show the best of us, in order that the best of us may keep coming back to us, as a reminder.

Mind, body and home are the beginning of all success in life. The mind is the power that governs the body and the home. As a man runs his body machine, so he makes progress in his work. As he makes home a more and more perfect copy of his true thoughts, the more it will inspire him. As home is a little world created by a man or by a family, it should be a little world of beauty and of simplicity. It will become more lovely as thought is given to it, and as the loveliness of the thought increases, the loveliness of home follows.

Then home becomes a place of beauty, and an inspiration to those who live in it, because inspiration makes it what it is.

OLD TESTAMENT TIMES BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

YOUR REASONABLE SERVICE June 25

What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?—Micah 6:8.

Who could find fault with these requirements? Who could say that in setting such a standard for His creatures the Almighty required too much? On the other hand, how could we imagine a just and loving Heavenly Father requiring less than is here stipulated. God's law, variously stated, always amounts to the same thing. The statement of it, as given to the Jews at Mt. Sinai, embodied in the Decalogue, corresponds with this statement, as does also the presentation of it set forth by the great Teacher, saying, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind, soul and strength; and thy neighbor as thyself."

Many of us, after confessing with St. Paul that the Divine Law is holy and just and good, have been surprised to find that that which our minds heartily approve, we are unable to obey—to the full. For thirty-five hundred years the Jews have sought to keep that Divine Law, under the promise of eternal life for so doing, but none of them have been able to gain the prize.

When as a nation they realize their inability, and not sooner, they will be ready to receive at God's hands, as a free gift through the Redeemer, the forgiveness of their violations of the Divine Law. And then, under their New Covenant (Jer. 31:31; Heb. 8:13), they will have Messiah's assistance in regarding that perfection of mind and body and a "new heart," which will enable them to obey in every particular the Divine Law.

That blessing, which is soon to come to natural Israel, and the New Covenant, will be extended through them, as the natural seed of Abraham, to every nation, kindred and tongue, in harmony with the Divine promise made to Abraham.

Analyzing Our Subject Applying this principle of Justice to our words, it means that we should not speak evil of either friend or foe; that we should not even insinuate evil. It means that we should not tell unnecessarily what we know to be the truth, if it would harm our neighbor.

Disparage him and discredit him in the eyes of others. It means that we should love our neighbor and his interests as we love our own, and should defend his interests and guard them as carefully as we would our own.

Justice, in order to thus operate in our words and deeds, must operate in our hearts—in our minds. "As a man thinketh, so is he." If he thinks unkindly, ungenerously, unjustly, he will find it impossible always to avoid unkind, unjust, unloving words or actions. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." It follows, then, that to do justly signifies absolute righteousness in thought, in word, in conduct. This none of us are capable of.

The nearest approach to this is the perfect or just intention of the heart, covenanted by all those who become followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. The intentions and good endeavors of these are accepted of the Father.

To Love Mercy All recognize mercy as a very proper, a very desirable quality. All realize their need of Divine mercy. All should know that the Divine purpose is that only those who show mercy to others will themselves receive mercy at the Lord's hands.

Many, however, while admitting all this and while seeking to practice mercy, do not love it. Rather, they love vengeance, and are merely constrained to mercy by the laws of the land, public sentiment and the Word of God.

Time and again this has been shown in the case of lynchings. Mobs have gathered for the infliction of punishment, glad of an opportunity for setting aside mercy and letting loose justice, as they might express it. And in those mobs have been many guilty of perhaps as great crimes as the one who was mobbed. "O, consistency, thou art a jewel!"

Walk Humbly With Thy God In a word, those who are just and merciful are very apt to find themselves possessed of a spirit of pride, a feeling of superiority to their fellows, a hindrance to their having a humble walk with God. Those most humble toward the Almighty are frequently those who have had great sins and great weaknesses, which have helped to humble them. Thus the great Apostle, St. Paul, was allowed to retain a measure of visual weakness as a reminder of the time when he was a persecutor of Christ—"the Church which is His Body."

JAPANESE MILITARY TRICKS

Simple Way of Providing Men With Gun Rests.

An Austrian military organ draws attention to one of the minor details of Japanese musketry practice during the late war, which seems to have escaped hitherto in Europe. In European armies the question of a rifle rest for long range firing has led to many ingenious contrivances for devising tripod arrangements. The Japanese War Department solved the difficulty in a much simpler but equally effective way. They just provided the soldier with a bag of stout cotton eight inches wide and twenty inches long, which he could carry in his cartridge case on the march, and on reaching the fighting line could in a minute stuff with earth or stones. The device gave amazing assistance in accuracy of rifle fire.

Plant Used for Fishing.

In a paper presented to the Academie des Sciences, M. Hanriot gives an account of the active substances which are contained in the Tephrosia voqueii. The leaves of this plant and neighboring species are used for fishing by the natives of Madagascar and the east coast of Africa. The plant is crushed and the pulp macerated with a little water; then it is put in the pond or river at different places, especially in slow streams. Soon the fish become paralyzed and mount to the surface. They can then be caught by hand and eaten without danger.

Land Owners in Ireland.

The landlords own most of the land in Ireland and rent it out to the farmers, who assert that it is poor and consequently they have a hard time to produce enough to support their families and pay the rent. Most of the land seems to be used for pasturage and but little of it is under cultivation, as are the lands of Italy, Germany and France. Besides, there is a great waste caused by the building of wide turf fences. There are more fences to a farm in Ireland than in any other country.

Relics of Boadicea.

Relics of the days when Boadicea conducted her campaign in the neighborhood of what is now King's Cross, or, perhaps, of even an earlier day were turned up recently by some workmen at Crayford, Kent, England. The men were digging in sand pits on the Wansutt estate when they noticed some metal articles. On examination these proved to be nine gold armlets of uniform shape but varying sizes. The articles were taken to a police station, where the police took them on behalf of the Crown as treasure trove.

Rivers as Dividing Lines.

In human history a great river has sometimes formed a dividing line between peoples possessing quite different characteristics. Dr. W. M. Lyon, Jr., has discovered a similar phenomenon affecting squirrels in Borneo. He found eight different forms of squirrels inhabiting the northern and western parts of the great island, and observed that a large river proved an effectual barrier in separating two distinct races.

Kite Control.

Kite control within certain prescribed limits has been accomplished in France by means of a "deviator" and this makes the kite available for life-saving purposes. A severe test was given to the device some time ago at Royan, on the east coast of France, and wonderful things were accomplished.

WAGNER OPENS at GREENCASTLE WILLIAMSON BLOCK IS LEADING BROKERAGE HOUSE

E. W. Wagner & Co., grain, stocks, provisions, cotton, announce their opening at the Williamson Block, in charge of J. W. McMeen, manager.

This house has been established 25 years and maintains forty branches in Illinois, Iowa, Ohio and Indiana. The firm employs 126 employees and owes its growth to the close attention furnished to customers. The Wagner letter published weekly has the largest circulation of any grain letter in the U. S. Some editions of the Wagner Special Circulars reach a total of 25,000. "Grain Investments" published by E. W. Wagner & Co., is the only standard publication covering all phases of Board of Trade operations. In January, 1908, Mr. Wagner started the grain world with his successful forecast of 75 cents for May Corn. This house is now issuing "Grain Investments." The Wagner Trading Ledger, Wagner Grain Statistics and Wagner Stock Statistics sent free. The firm uses the latest stamping and sealing machine for its mail. All names are "Addressographed." From one thousand to two thousand correspondents report crop and hog conditions regularly. Any grain or security query is answered instantly.

Cash grain quotations posted constantly. 500 to 1,000 crop reports received weekly which are wired instantly to Greencastle.

Where Good Roads Boom

GOOD road advocates turn their eyes upon the Pacific coast states, where their hobby is reaching a development nowhere else approximated in the United States. The dream of the Pacific coast is for a macadamized, asphalt surfaced highway from Alaska south to the Panama canal. The realization of the project so far is the actual voting by the state of California of a bond issue of $18,000,000 and by the public interest aroused in Oregon, Washington, and British Columbia, which promises early legislation for the continuation of the California highway.

The California project is for a continuous north and south highway of magnificent construction. The work will be started this summer and under the appropriation between 1,500 and 2,000 miles of road will be constructed. It is the intention to connect all important cities in the state.

California counties are in advance of the state in this work. Los Angeles county leads, and the movement, in fact, started here with an issue July, 1908, of $3,500,000 bonds for county roads. The county has completed 112 miles of what is said to be the finest macadam pavement in the world. Twenty-eight miles of this, including the Newhall tunnel, has been built under engineering difficulties. The total mileage planned is 186.

The roads are being graded thirty to forty feet and paved as a rule sixteen feet wide, this being considerably increased at the turns. The base of the road construction is a layer of rock from five to eight inches in thickness, which is built up as a water bound macadam road and treated with liquid asphalt sprayed on and into the surface. The supply of rock comes in part from the county quarry at Paoli, with a capacity of 1,000 tons daily.

County roads so far built come up only to the city boundaries. The cities, however, have in most cases entered into the county spirit and have extended their payment to the boundary to connect with the county road. Private enterprise has also added many fine roads. Notable among these is twenty-six miles of double boulevard built in the San Fernando valley by the Lankershim and Van Nuys ranches. This is an asphalt road on both sides of an electric railway and is up to the standard of the best county roads.

The west claims to lead the whole country in the good roads movement.

Our Grocery Clerk Says, What a Boy!

The errand boy's been at it again. You could drop that boy from the Washington monument and he'd never hurt himself, providing he had presence of mind enough to land on his head.

The kid ran into the place this morning waving a green back. "Mrs. Tite wants $5 worth of persimmons," he fires at me.

"Mussy," I says, "I don't believe we've got that many. I wonder what the stingy old dame is going to do—give a persimmon party?"

"Dunno," says bonehead, "but she wants 'em."

Well, I certainly did scrape around some for those persimmons. Finally I chased the kid around the corner to get a dollar's worth to complete the order. They pretty near filled his pushcart.

In about 15 minutes Mrs. Tite comes steaming in with the kid by the ear.

"I gave him $5 to give to Pa Simmons and look what he brings me!" she yells. "I won't stand for it! Bow! wow-wow!"

Pa Simmons is the man of all work that hangs around the place when he's not working, and Mrs. Tite owed him a fiver. Pa Simmons, persimmons! Oh, say!

HARD PROBLEM OF OFFICE MANAGER

"SAY," said an office manager the other day, looking out from one of his eighth floor windows down to a fifth floor suite on the other side of the "well" court of a big sky scraper, "I'm delighted to see that the firm which had been there five years has moved out at last. I don't know where they went—I don't care a continental if they've gone to kingdom come. I'm more than satisfied that they're just gone."

"Did they annoy you?" I asked, surprised.

"Did they?" he exploded. "Say, I'll bet that firm has cost me $2,500 on salary rolls since they've been here—twenty-five hundred good, hard dollar bills."

Following a question, he turned loose in explanation.

"You see that window down there? Not that one—the one wide window close in to the corner. That's the one—that's it. Well, for five years that firm had a reasonably young woman sitting there at an office telephone exchange. She was good looking, she had a good figure, and she dressed well always.

"Now, notice that this window is just opposite the entrance to my suite of rooms, and it's in easy reach of the eye of any employe I may have. You notice, too, that I employ only male help, from the office boy up to some of the old bald headed who have been with me for twenty-five years. There's eight feet of entrance and a big window between my corridor door and the inside reception room door. Now, how many male employes do you imagine have wasted accumulated months simply posing before the windows and looking down on that young woman? Why every man of them that ever got on my pay roll, from the 16 year old office boy to the grimmest old codger in the office!"

"No, she wasn't a flirt at all," he said, answering my question. "That's the worst feature of it. She had the calm demeanor of a well bred woman and she attended to her work good and proper. But when she wasn't busy she'd look out of the window—sometimes up and sometimes down—and the fact that no matter who was gazing at her from this whole wall of the court she wore just a pleasant face that was natural to her, neither smiling nor frowning.

"Now, if she'd been a flirt and carried on I could have nattered any employe I had simply by looking over at her."

"You could see her from your window?" I suggested.

"O—ye-eh," he admitted, "you see my private room faces the court, it had to be that way, as you can see."

"But to go on with the story, the less notice that woman took the more these young and old shell heads here primped and posed. As I've said, Lord knows how much of it they did, but I know that five years of it has cost me a wad of money—enough to make any employe here feel rich. Now, you see, the window where the young woman sat is filled by an old, homely man, with no front teeth and the fellows in the office have had a sort of grouch on for weeks."

"But it suits me all right, most of my men handle figures, merely, and they can do the work, even wait a grouch on."

The tenant of the skyscraper must come up fronting the problem of placing desks not only along the windows of the courts, but at the windows on the street side where another skyscraper fronts his suite of rooms with only the width of the street between. Consulting an experienced agent for downtown skyscrapers, his experiences along these lines of window gazers from cliff-like heights would furnish materials for a French novel. As we wouldn't write a French novel if we could it seems left to us to take up this whole problem soberly and as matters of fact affecting the business world.

To do this we have to touch upon the necessary concert of action on the part of every tenant in every skyscraper in town. Naturally there are some difficulties to be met.

It is easy, as we have said, in the case of the employer who has only men folk of varied ages and features. He can place the aged and bald and toothless men nearest the court windows where naturally they can get the degree of daylight which their eyes require. He can shove over the giddy ones until even if they can see outside they remain unseen by others from other floors.

In the case of the employer who has only young women in his employ it's up to him to put the ugly ones at his windows. Make 'em put on office aprons, if possible, provided that already they are not regarded as dowds in dress. Make 'em crusty; call 'em down often enough to insure vinegary countenances to a necessary degree. A girl with a ground always will work better than a girl with a window outlook and chock full of flirtatious vivacity.

Of course there may be objections to the plans—objections even to this article. These are to be expected.

Some employers of employes are sentimental, more or less. Some employing tenants may have personal objections to having removed from their own window outlook some one or five pretty girls who occasionally look across the court and smile at HIM! Naturally, he doesn't want a salaried clerk, however old or young, "making eyes" on time clock time. What has he to suggest?

NO MISTAKE.
The Stranger—Are you quite sure that was a marriage license you gave me last month?
The Official—Of course! What's the matter?
The Stranger—Well, I've lived a dog's life ever since.

One Great Test of Democracy

IN speaking of the democratic tendencies of this or that people or nation there is one essential test that is not generally appreciated or applied. The world at large is prone to believe that when the man who has trained his mind and lives by it is willing to hobnob with the manual toiler and call him his brother, the zenith of democratic ideals has been attained and there is nothing more to hope for. Even the laborers who live by their hands believe this.

It is not generally realized that the working man, in the accepted sense, is just as suspicious of the product of education and that which we call culture, and just as reticent and cautious about acknowledging the brotherhood of the class of which he is not a member as the college man, for instance, is about fraternizing with the pick and shovel man. There is that same class antagonism.

It is on the basis of this theory that America seems especially wholesome and spiritually sound at this time. Whatever the attitude of the intellectual aristocracy may be toward the great mass of people who depend upon the strength or activity of their hands and bodies for a livelihood, the working man seems to have attained a breadth of mind which at least regards the brain worker with tolerance.

Knowledge Given True Value.

Trade unions recognize the advantages of culture and institute classes and even university scholarships that they may absorb the purely cultural studies which their fathers delighted to hold up to contempt. They recognize that a man may still be honest and lack callousness on his palms, that a scholarly face and mien are not always contemptible. The old engineer says to his helper: "Johnny you're still young, why don't you save your money and go to school. We know how much steam a pound of water will make but the only reason we know is because the boys who have gone to school tell us. When you get out you can run a whole job like this instead of firing an engine."

The carpenter father of half a century back vowed that his youngsters should have no more learning that he had because he believed that too much schooling spoiled many a good carpenter.

The man who knows how to fit gas pipes in America now days does no look with sullen suspicion upon the man who can tell him of the theories of gas pressure and the physics and chemistry of plumbing; he simply looks you in the face squarely and says: "You've got one on me pal, without malice or envy. It is certainly a wholesome omen of progress and the growth of the democratic spirit that this should be."

Now in England the aloofness of the working class which we seem to have shaken off in this country to a certain extent is troubling social reformers more than any other problem. The men who have been trying to keep Ruskin college at Oxford alive and active have discovered how real and tangible is that esprit de classe.

Union Officers Refuse Aid.

Ruskin college was founded with the especial purpose of reaching the working classes and making it possible for men of humble means to get a university education. It was of course instituted by men of means and education and it was hoped that the labor unions would cooperate with the university in encouraging the poorer students to patronize the college. But the workers were at once suspicious and the trade union officers refused to encourage attendance at the college for the palpable reason that they feared when the better educated workers came back from the university equipped with sociological and practical knowledge about economic conditions they would naturally be given the offices at the head of the various unions and the old officials would be ousted.

In addition to this official prejudice the workers themselves have come to regard the university man as their natural enemy in England—it is the same old antagonism of town and gown carried out into broader spheres—and they looked with no little scorn upon what they considered an attempt to enveigh their brightest leaders away from them and destroy the solidarity of the unions.

That, fortunately, is what we have outgrown in this country, the working men are more tolerant with that other working man who employs his trained and regulated wits and in this there is the promise of more real democracy than in any other change which has come over the people since the popular mind revolted at the thought of slavery.

MAKING GRANDMA HAPPY

Sunday School Teacher—I told you last Sunday that I wished each of you would try to make at least one person happy during the week. Did you?
Boy—Yes, miss; I made grandma happy.
"That's noble. How did you do it?"
"I went to visit her, and she's always happy when she sees I've got a good appetite."

A Mother's love the best love:
God's love the highest love—German

CABBAGE A UNIVERSAL CROP

Cabbage is one of the most universally cultivated of our garden plants. Although it is one of the coarsest vegetables it finds a place in the home garden as well as in the market garden and truck farm. In some sections of the United States cabbage is extensively grown as a farm crop.

According to the last census New York State grew more than 25,000 acres of cabbage; Pennsylvania, nearly 11,000; while Virginia grew about 10,000 acres. The three states mentioned outrank all others by at least 2,000 acres. No adequate estimate can be placed on the value of this crop, as it fluctuates very decidedly, both in acreage and in price, from year to year.

Early cabbage is practically all consumed as a green vegetable. The late crop, on the other hand, is handled as a fresh vegetable, as a storage crop, and for the manufacture of sauerkraut. Cabbage is always in demand, and under present conditions it is always available, either as the product of a southern truck farm or a northern farm, garden, or storage house.

The group of cultivated plants which has been derived from the wild cabbage presents a greater diversity of form than that derived from any other single ancestral type. Wild cabbage is a robust-growing broad-leaved plant enjoying the low, moist areas near the seacoast of southern Europe. The most closely allied form now in cultivation is the collard. The wide variation in the group is illustrated by the diversity of form shown in collards, kale, tree cabbage, marrow kale, cauliflower, and Brussels sprouts. It is almost beyond the bounds of reason to believe that all these forms have been derived from a common parentage, yet such is the fact.

In no truck crop does the character of the seed count for more than in cabbage. It is very essential that the crop come to marketable maturity early, that the heads be uniform in size and character and that they mature so that the whole crop can be harvested at two cuttings. The small saving made by the purchase of cheap or inferior seed is usually paid for a hundred times over in the lessened value of the crop. A grower can not afford to risk his crop for so small a saving. The best seed that can be obtained is none too good, and anything short of this is not good business. Without highly viable seed of a good strain, true to type, the best results cannot be expected.

Cabbage is a crop which is grown by every market gardener located within wagon-hauling distance of an important center of consumption. The statistics of the distribution of the cultivation of the cabbage clearly indicate the fact that this is one of the most important crops grown by market gardeners.

The counties near each of the important centers of population of the United States are almost universally credited with a considerable acreage of cabbage, thus showing that the gardeners of these regions have given considerable attention to the production of this crop.

About Corn Smut

Corn smut differs in life-habits from any of the other common smuts, and methods of treatment are therefore different. The corn smut attacks the grain-plants in the seedling stage although the smut-masses do not appear until heading-out time. The loose smuts gain entrance to the kernel of grain at flowering time, and remain inside the kernel until the next spring, when the grain sprouts. The corn-smut, on the other hand, may attack the corn-plant at any time, probably there is young and growing tissue. It is for this reason that it is difficult to combat.

Everyone is familiar with the large smut-masses occurring on practically any above-ground part of the corn-plant. These smut-masses are made up of countless millions of very minute reproductive bodies known as spores, each one of which may infect another corn-plant. These spores may be blown about by the wind, may fall on stalks which are used for fodder, thus getting into the manure-pile, thus getting into the manure-pile, especially since it may live there for seven or eight years.

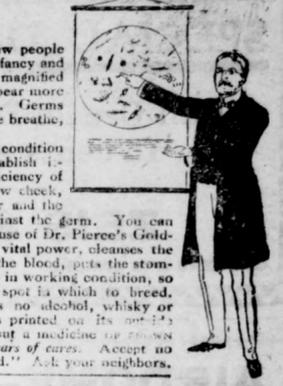

It is clear, then, that seed treatment would be of slight if any value in attempting to prevent the appearance of corn-smut. Whenever possible, smut-balls should be destroyed as soon as they appear. The smut-dust should never be allowed to get into the manure pile, either directly or by the use of smutted corn as fodder. Crop rotation, such as will remove danger of infection from spores on the previous year's corn-land should be practiced.—E. C. Stakman.

Some people allow the garden to grow up in weeds by the middle of summer.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 30 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

SALT TAXATION IN ITALY.

An Obstinate Traveler was Forced to Pay For His Goods.

Italian salt is heavily taxed, not because it is a luxury, but because it is a necessity, and the poor suffer greatly. Sugar is taxed also, even in the frivolous form of white ornaments on the top of a cake. So a traveler from Alexandria found of late, arriving in Venice, bringing with him a decorated cake, the traveler sailing into the port of Venice with his Egyptian sugar unneaten and forgotten. Down upon the cake came the Italian officials, demanding duty. The Englishman protested that cake was not contraband, whereupon the white ornaments were denounced. It was argued, besides, that the substance of the pastry itself was probably sweetened. The traveler, who did not like paying duty, proposed to leave the whole thing overboard into the lagoon. Not so; his arm was grasped; the sugar was now the property of the king of Italy. The traveler paid.

Manners Have Improved.

Erasmus, in his curious essay "On Behavior at Meals," remarks that it is "very rude to blow one's nose on the tablecloth," or to wipe one's fingers on one's neighbor's coat." He also advises the guest "not to give dogs your bones to crack under the table, or feed the cat or encourage animals to jump on the table. This may offend your host or lead to the soiling of his carpet." An admonition that might well be observed in the present day. "Above all" he says, "do not lick your plate; it is an act that ill becomes a cat, let alone a gentleman."

When Dr. Johnson was out.

Dr. Johnson used to retire to a garret library over his chambers where he was when he wanted to study without interruption, rather than tell the servant to say he was not at home. "A servant's strict regard for truth," said Johnson, "must be weakened by such a practice. A philosopher may know that it is merely a form of denial; but few servants are such nice distinguishers. If I accustom a servant to tell a lie for me, have I not reason to apprehend that he will tell many lies for himself?"

Seth B. Steele, a young farmer, residing near Terre Haute, and Miss Crystal O. Moss, of Cloverdale, occupied the attention of Marrying Squire for a few minutes about 5:30 o'clock Thursday evening and were tied up for life. After supper in this city the young people caught a car for Terre Haute, where they will make their future home. The bride and groom were accompanied to this city and later to Terre Haute by a number of the bride's friends from Cloverdale.—Brazil News.

Better Than Spanking.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

The farmers of Putnam county have been busy all this week harvesting wheat. It is believed that the wheat crop of Putnam county this year will be a good one. The majority of the fields will yield twenty bushels to the acre and many more. Ed Black has a field of wheat on his farm, east of town, which, he believes, will yield thirty bushels to the acre.

William Smith has returned from a short visit in Indianapolis. Smith says that while in Indianapolis he was talking to "Hop" Overman, the former DePauw pitcher, who is now with the Indianapolis American Association baseball team. He says that "Hop" is getting a $150 a month and expenses and will be given $200 a month and expenses when he is on the regular pitching staff. So far, the manager of the Indianapolis team has not given "Hop" a trial in a regular game, but is working him in practice every day.

Crack Illinois Reinsman Has Some Fast Steppers

CHARLES DEAN.

Charles Dean, the crack Illinois race driver, who is at the Indianapolis track with some fast trotters and pacers for the opening Indianapolis Grand Circuit races July 11-14, has developed some great ones in his day. Probably the two greatest are Minor Heir, 1:59 1/4, and The Broncho, the champion pacing mare.

PENISA MAID IS FAVORITE

CHOICE FOR INDIANAPOLIS FREE-FOR-ALL TROT.

Seven Other Crack Horses Are Named to Start in Grand Circuit Event July 11-14.

Indianapolis.—Penisa Maid, 2:04 1/4, one of the fastest and gamest trotters that ever looked through a bridle, probably will be the favorite in the free-for-all trot at the Indianapolis Grand Circuit meeting July 11-14. She by no means has a clinch on that event, however, as there will be an abundance of competition. Dudie Archdale, driven by the wizard Ed. Geers, is not to be overlooked. The pretty little black mare by Archdale, that had things all her own way last year, has grown bigger and stronger and she has done her work in a manner to indicate that she will be several seconds faster than in 1910. Geers has also entered Hallworthy, 2:05, in this event and there are also Spanish Queen, 2:07, and that wonderful old trotter, Country Jay, 2:05, from George H. Estabrook's Denver stable to be reckoned with. Dick McMahon, of Libertyville, Ill., has also named his fast mare Bracegirdle, 2:05 1/4, while Knapsack McCarthy, of Terre Haute, will go to the post with Nancy Royce or Oro, both of which are entered. In any event the winner of this race will know he has been to the races.

The 2:15 class pace will also furnish some keen competition. Geers has named Akar, Judge Ward and Dixie Lou for that race; Don McDonald will start Mattie March and the Mackinzie stable will be represented by other Joe Patchen II, or Vernon McKinney. Joe Patchen II is touted as a sure two-minute pacer this year and Vernon McKinney went a mile last year in 2:04 1/4, so it looks as if the winner will be the horse that finishes ahead of the Mackenzie entry. Several other horses are named to start in that race.

W. H. Gartland was the highest bidder for the Staples farm, which is located just west of Putnamville price is $4,200. The farm of 120 when sold at public auction, Wednesday afternoon. The purchase acres, quarries and the ten-room brick house, all went for the above named price. Mr. Gartland is a resident of Terre Haute.
