HOW THE ATLANTIC GUARD AGAINST SNOW SLIDES IN THE MOUNTAINS

NEW YORK SUN. It is the custom of most of the transatlantic railroads to make a winter measurement of the snowfall for the winter in those places where it is always heavy. This is in the mountains, and the measurement is taken at the highest elevations. Although few of the railroads have a regular service in these days of enormous snowfalls, owing to the invention of the rotary snow blower, the measurement is taken at the highest elevations. ENGINEER'S MISTAKE CAUSES A SERIOUS RAILWAY COLLISION. Dead and Three Injured. PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 7.—Train No. 5, Baltimore & Ohio limited, coming west, ran into the first section of No. 64, a fast cattle train, at Rosemead siding, two miles east of Rockwood, at 5:40 o'clock this evening. Six men were killed in the collision and several others badly hurt. The killed are: HENRY BUSH, engineer of No. 5; PATRICK MCCARTY, fireman No. 5; BROWNING, engineer of No. 64; PIERCE and DE GRANGE, postal clerks. Three mail clerks were badly hurt though not fatally. The railroad officials say no passengers were hurt. The limited should have arrived at 8:45 and leave for Chicago at 8:55. The cattle train carries cattle from Chicago to Baltimore for shipment to Europe. Both trains were going at the same time on a double track. Neither crew had time to jump or sound a warning. The meeting place for the trains was Pine Grove, three or four miles east of the point of collision, where the express was to be passing a siding for the night. For some reason the engineer of the passenger train ran past the meeting place. The express train was jammed between the cars, and as yet unknown, clerks were killed under the debris. Conductor Ward was not hurt, as at first reported. Bush was the oldest engineer in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio, and was known by railroaders throughout the country. He had a dozen cattle cars were piled up in the wreck, killing and maiming many of the dumb brutes. De Grange, Pierce and Lippincott were jammed between the cars, and were killed.
