CITY COUNCIL TO ELECT NEW BOARD MEMBER

TO NAME SUCCESSOR TO C. C. TUCKER AT MEETING IN NEAR FUTURE

MEMBER TO BE A DEMOCRAT

Mrs. Frank Jones and H. Montgomery Two Candidates Mentioned At Present Time

The question of who will succeed Mr. C. C. Tucker as a member of the Greencastle Consolidated School Board August 1, comes to the front now and then, as the city council will make the selection at an early meeting.

The new member of the board will be a Democrat. Thus far two candidates have been mentioned. They are Mrs. Frank Jones and H. Montgomery. Whether or not there will be additional candidates remains to be seen, but others are likely to come to the front, especially if the political situation warms up, and it is more than likely to do so, as this is a campaign year.

Mrs. Jones has been a lifelong resident of Putnam county and is a graduate of DePauw university and is deeply interested in the city schools. If elected, she would devote her best interests to the schools and the community, but rumors have it that there is opposition to her selection among certain influential individuals which may mean her ultimate defeat at the hands of the city council.

The fact that the full teaching staff has not been made public for next year may have an indirect bearing on the selection of a school board member, it is reported. At any rate there will be nothing done until Mayor Benman returns from a vacation trip in the East, and there will be plenty of time for campaigning on the part of the various candidates.

CAROL FINDS OPPOSITION

BUCHAREST, June 10 (UP)—The liberal party has split completely over King Carol's successful coup d'etat. Led by the fiery Vintila Bratianu, once premier, the nucleus of the party reaffirmed its opposition to Carol as king, and expelled Georg Bratianu, Vintila's nephew, for urging an ameliorated attitude towards Carol.

The expulsion of Georg Bratianu, a university professor, was expected to throw the younger element of the Liberals to the king's side. A number of prominent Liberals, including former Foreign Minister Constantin Urgetoianu and former Minister of Justice Jean Florescu, already have expressed opposition to Vintila Bratianu's anti-Carolist policies.

Carol kept his hand carefully out of the Liberal's troubles, and devoted his energies to promoting a government representing as nearly as possible all the numerous political elements which have kept Roumania in a turmoil most of the time since the World war. He consulted persons after persons, seeking for the proper man to head the new government without dissolving the parliament which gave him the kingdom Sunday.

Prof. Nicholas Jorga, once Carol's tutor, was among the first to be summoned by the new king. Later, Gen. Averescu, a leader of the People's party, was called, followed by Dr. N. Lapu, peasant party leader; Talian Bratu, speaker of the upper chamber,

St. Louis Atty. And Wife Badly Hurt In Crash

LOST CONTROL OF CAR WHICH ROLLED DOWN 25 FOOT EMBANKMENT

Attorney and Mrs. John K. Lord, of St. Louis, were severely injured about 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon when their new Ford sedan dashed off the cement pavement of the National road and went tumbling down the 25 foot embankment of the west approach to the bridge over Big Walnut. Occupants of the car were so badly injured that Moore & Son and Lawson & Son ambulances were called from this city and made a hurry up run to the scene of the accident and brought the injured pair to the Clay county hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lord left their home in St. Louis Sunday morning, looking forward to a delightful tour of the east on their vacation which was to take them to New Hampshire to visit relatives. In driving down the long grade from Butler school house east, Mr. Lord lost control of his car just before reaching the river bridge and the car shot off the south side of the pavement and tumbling over three times landed at the bottom badly wrecked. Both the occupants suffered severe bruises and cuts but no bones were broken. They were brought to the Clay county hospital and attended by Dr. Elliott assisted by Dr. George Lewis, of Poland. The physicians said the injuries were not serious and they would be out of the hospital in two or three days. The wrecked car was hauled in by Wilson's wrecker for repairs.

A bad automobile wreck occurred about 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon just east of the bridge on the National road over a creek east of Manhattan when two rapidly moving automobiles came together with a terrible crash.

A Ford touring car, belonging to Goldie Gorton, 1007 north Harrison street, Alexandria, and driven by William Curtis, at what is reported as a terrific rate of speed came down the curved hill east of Manhattan. The machine was said to have been traveling so fast the driver could not hold it in the road.

Charles A. Greathouse, Jr., accompanied by his sister, both of Indianapolis, was driving east in a Buick sedan belonging to the Bookwalter-Ball-Greathouse Co., printers, 1620 north Capital avenue, Indianapolis. Greathouse saw the Ford weaving down the concrete and gave the other machine as much of the road as the fence along the south side of the grade at this point would allow. Tracks of the machine on the pavement showed that the Buick was well off the shoulder of the road when it was struck by the Ford.

Two other young men were riding with Curtis in the front seat of the Ford. It is reported that they were en route to Terre Haute to visit a wife of one of the men, who is a student at Indiana State Teacher's college and had only a few hours to get back to Alexandria.

The Ford was badly wrecked, two wheels being torn off and the front smashed in. All the wheels were bent out of shape and the car appeared almost a total wreck. The Buick was also badly damaged, one wheel torn off and running board and fenders shattered. The Manhattan garage took charge of the damaged Buick.

Curtis and Harold Markle were brought to the Clay county hospital where they were attended by Dr. Harry Elliott. Curtis was found to be suffering with a fractured left shoulder. Markle was cut and bruised about the face and he was dismissed after his injuries were dressed.

The road about the accident was littered with broken glass and debris. A guard was placed to direct traffic around the wrecked car.—Brazzil Times.

1930 PLATFORM OF DEMOCRATS ASSAILS G. O. P.

LENGTHY PLATFORM FOR NOVEMBER ELECTION PRESENTED TO CONVENTION

PLANKS ARE SET FORTH

Republican Party Blamed For Laxity Of Law Enforcement. National Issues Included

INDIANAPOLIS, June 10 (UP)—Democrats launched their 1930 campaign in Indiana today on a voluminous platform replete with vigorous stands on outstanding issues, and condemnation of Republicans and Republicanism.

A direct income tax, old age pension and registration of voters constituted the most important planks.

Only on prohibition were the Democrats hesitant about asserting themselves. On this issue they chose to follow the Republican lead, and remain silent.

Responsibility and denunciation were heaped upon the Republican party for the crime wave, the governor's emergency fund, use of state police for advancement of political ambitions, and for the pending tariff bill, "greatest outrage sought to be perpetuated on a suffering, tax burdened people."

As in the platform two years ago, Democrats attacked the national and state administrations, charging political corruption that has resulted in widespread evils.

"We indict the master politicians of the Republican party," the platform reads, "for crimes that have defiled, debased and confounded justice; for conduct that has corrupted and corroded conscience; for the lust and lure of privilege that has brought about the auctioning off of seats in the United States senate primaries; for the intolerable taxes, the result of reckless spending."

The platform recommends that the burden of taxation on real property be lessened and that "an income tax, with exemptions not less liberal than those of the federal income tax, be adopted at least for state and school aid purposes." The platform also recommends "provision for equitable collection of state aid funds for poorer school districts, and the proper, honest, and efficient distribution of this fund."

Abolishing of the fee system which was presented the Republican platform committee and refused, was recommended in the Democratic document.

Registration of voters, which also was discussed by the G. O. P. was adopted by the Democrats as follows:

"We favor legislation providing for the personal registration of voters, to the end that the sanctity of the ballot may be preserved."

The state highway commission was condemned and recommendation made for traffic speed limit laws.

The platform includes a recommendation for "a just and equitable old age pension system worked out with the purpose, both of safeguarding the best interests of the aged poor and reducing the burden which present extravagant and inhuman methods of caring for them casts upon the public."

A flood relief program for Indiana was favored and "recommendation made for a hearty and vigorous support of the Wabash-Maumee Valley Improvement association, that has been doing such splendid work to get this matter fore congress for action."

The platform was unstinted in its praise of organized labor and condemnation of "yellow dog" contracts. It recommended that the use of the writ of injunction in labor disputes should be defined by statute, and the right of trial by jury of those charged with indirect contempt, should be safeguarded by law.

The pending tariff bill was "condemned as the greatest outrage sought to be perpetuated on a suffering, tax burdened people in the history of the nation."

Considerable space was devoted to agriculture, and the Republican leaders were condemned for "their failure to bring the immediate farm relief promised two years ago and their slowness in developing a plan to bring agriculture under the same protection afforded industry for many years."

Republicans were charged with having brought about a laxness in law enforcement that has resulted in an increased amount of crime.

Miss Jane Farmer underwent a major operation at the County hospital Tuesday. Dr. Thomas Noble Jr., was the surgeon assisted by Dr. W. R. Hutcheson.

HARRY MOORE NAMED 5TH DISTRICT VICE-PRESIDENT

NEWSPAPER MAN KILLED BY GANGSTER

CHICAGO TRIBUNE REPORTER'S DEATH STARTS GENERAL UNIFORMED ROUNDUP

GANG HANGOUTS RAIDED

Suspicious Characters Taken Into Custody After Daring Daylight Murder In Chicago

CHICAGO, June 10 (UP)—Pat Roche, state's attorney investigator and Lieut. William Cusack of the Chicago police department announced today that they knew the murderer of Albert Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, who was assassinated yesterday while en route to Washington park race track.

Roche and Cusack refused to reveal the murder, Roche said the killer was an ex-convict, with several prison terms in his record. Cusack said detective squads were searching all haunts where the murderer had been known to stay.

CHICAGO, June 10 (UP)—In an uprising unparalleled in the city's history, Chicago loosed its forces against gangland today in a grimly determined effort to solve the slaying of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Every agency of the law was brought together in search for the gangster who stepped behind Lingle in a crowded subway tunnel Monday afternoon and sent a .38 calibre bullet crashing into the reporter's brain.

Rewards totalling $40,000 were posted as further incentive to police, state's attorneys, detectives and federal agents to apprehend the slayer. Of this amount the Tribune offered $25,000, the Chicago Evening Post $5,000 and the Chicago Press club $10,000.

As the search intensified and gangsters' haunts were raided, city, county, state and government officials joined in pledging a war of extermination against Chicago's notorious gangs of beer hoodlums, "alky cooks" and racketeers.

Police admitted they lacked a definite motive for the murder of Lingle who "covered" the city's underworld for the Tribune for 18 years and was that paper's police reporter.

Most of the investigators held to the theory that Lingle, an intimate acquaintance of "Scarface Al" Capone and other gangsters, probably was killed on suspicion that he had let leak some of the inside knowledge he had of gangland activities.

Lingle was on his way to the Washington park race track when he was killed. He was walking through the Randolph street subway under Michigan avenue as his slayer's bullet, fired from a short-barreled revolver, entered the back of his head.

Lingle, who was 38 years old, married and the father of two children, was widely known among Chicago newspapermen as "Jake." Born and reared on the West Side, where the gangsters' haunts are numerous, he became a reporter for the Tribune after several years of playing professional baseball.

He acquired sufficient wealth to permit his retirement, but continued the Tribune because "he loved his work," it was said today in the Tribune. The paper attributed his financial independence to his friendship with Arthur Cutten, wealthy grain trader, whose investment advice was freely given Lingle.

Mrs. Lingle and her two children, Alfred, Jr., 6, and Dolores, 5, were ready to leave for their new summer home at Grand Beach, Mich., when Lingle was killed.

FIRE DAMAGES SOUTH CROWN STREET HOME

MICE BELIEVED TO HAVE IGNITED MATCHES IN CLOSET. ENTIRE INTERIOR GUTTED

CHILDREN ARE ENTANGLED

Neighbor Girl Discovers Blaze Tuesday Morning. Insurance Covers Part Of Loss.

Fire believed to have been caused by mice which ignited matches in a clothes closet, destroyed most of the contents of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Patton, colored, at 1009 South Crown street, Tuesday morning.

Only three small children were at home when the fire was discovered by Frances Higgins, a small neighbor girl, who ran to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morgan, nearby, and notified them. Mr. Morgan called firemen while Mrs. Morgan ran to the home in time to prevent the children from entering the home. One of the children, frightened by her sudden approach, attempted to run into the blazing structure, but was caught and carried to safety.

The fire spread from the clothes closet to a bed and when firemen arrived most of the interior was ablaze. A line of hose and chemicals were used to extinguish the flames. Although the exterior of the house was not damaged to any great extent, the entire interior will have to be refurnished. Practically all the furnishings and clothing of the Patton family, except stoves in the kitchen were burned. Heat from the flames cracked most of the windows in the house.

The house is occupied by the Patton family and children and a married daughter of Patton, Milton Brown, local real estate dealer, owns the house. Insurance will cover the damage to the house, it was said.

TWO SWING INTO LINE

WASHINGTON, June 10 (UP)—Two doubtful Republican senators swung into line for the Smoot-Grundy tariff bill today, putting the measure's fate directly up to senators Reed and Grundy, Reps., Pa., who have declined to announce how they will vote.

Senators Capper, Rep., Kas., and Cutting, Rep., New Mexico, are the two who have made up their minds definitely to support the legislation.

This leaves the administration a margin of one vote with Reed, Grundy and Senator King, Dem., Utah, still listed as undecided. Reed said he may not make up his mind until just before the vote is taken Thursday or Friday. Grundy is away and has intimated through his friends here that he may be absent without a pair.

HOOVER SIGNS MEASURE AIDING CIVIL WAR VETS

Putnam County Civil war veterans of which there is only a few remaining, will benefit by a measure signed by President Hoover Monday, increasing the pensions of all civil war veterans.

The bill increases to $75 monthly the pension of veterans who formerly received $65. Those receiving $72 and $90 will receive $100 under the bill.

Widows of veterans who formerly had to be 75 years old to get a $40 monthly pension now may get it at the age of 70.

It was said at the White House that the President regards the bill as an old age pension measure and not objectionable as was the Spanish-American war veterans' pension bill which he recently vetoed.

State Prisoners Make 1931 Auto License Plates

1931 PLATES BEING MADE BY MACHINERY APPROPRIATED BY STATE LEGISLATURE

INDIANAPOLIS, June 10—By an act of the 1929 legislature, automobile plates for 1931 are now being made at the Michigan City penitentiary, under the authority of state supervision and not by contract as heretofore.

The act provided that an appropriation of $50,000 be made for the purpose of machinery, subject to the order of the prison trustees. A complete plant has been purchased and installed with all modern conveniences for $40,000, being $10,000 less than the appropriation.

Otto G. Fifield, secretary of state has taken personal charge of the manufacture of automobile plates and by his keen insight and economic methods of transacting business he has succeeded in making a great saving in the quality of the material and cost of manufacture of plates. The law provides that the purchase of material must be made in the open market and manufacturers are anxious to sell to the state at prices heretofore unknown.

Mr. Fifield estimated that it will require 940,700 automobile plates for the year 1931, the plates being made of 24 U. S. gauge cold rolled steel and to be first class in every particular. It is interesting to figure on the immensity of material it requires to make the automobile plates for Indiana. It will require nearly a million pounds of steel to make the automobile plates that will be carried on cars in Indiana next year. It would require a train load of 23 cars to haul all the plates if shipped at one time. It will take 8,000 gallons of back ground and numeral enamel to cover or paint all the plates. If all the plates were laid end to end, it would cover the state, seven inches wide from Lake Michigan to the Ohio River and from Terre Haute to Richmond across the state. The color scheme for 1931 will be blue numerals and old gold background.

WICKERSHAM IN FAVOR OF MODIFICATION

MEMBER OF HOOVER'S LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION RAPS DRY ACT

PROHI LAWS "TOO HARSH"

George W. Wickersham In Speech Says U. S. Might Profit By England And Wales

BOSTON, June 10 (UP)—George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission, became a central figure in the bitter wet-dry controversy today through his criticism of America's prohibition system.

Wickersham's attitude was revealed unexpectedly last night in a speech before 5,000 social workers attending a national conference here. It was the first open attack on the dry laws, as they are administered in this country today, by a member of the Hoover commission.

Although he did not expose the wet cause, Wickersham indicated he believed the present prohibition laws in the United States were too harsh and that they had failed of their objective because they had stressed punishment rather than the education of the country to the idea of temperance.

The United States, he said, might profit by lessons learned in England and Wales, where, he claimed, education has brought about increased temperance. He declared that force had been used to compel observance of the Volstead Act since its adoption, and that the educational methods previously maintained had been abandoned.

LESS THAN THOUSAND

G. A. R. MEMBERS LEFT WABASH, June 10—If the scythe of Father Time continues to mow down Civil war veterans at the same rate as it did in 1929, in three more years the Indiana Grand Army of the Republic will be extinct.

This was the prediction today of Colonel A. B. Crampton of Indianapolis, assistant adjutant general of the Indiana G. A. R. here for the 51st annual encampment. He said that membership of the Indiana department at the start of this year had dropped to the lowest level since the department's organization in 1886.

"Death had reduced the Indiana G. A. R. membership at the start of this year to 940," Colonel Crampton said. "This is the first time that the membership has dropped below a thousand since our organization."

The Indiana Department of the G. A. R. was organized in 1886 with a charter membership of 844. The high mark in membership, the Colonel said, was reached in 1889 and 1890 with an enrollment of 25,173.

"At the end of 1928 there were 1,321 members living. Death removed 359 of those members during 1929, giving us a membership of less than a thousand at the start of this year," Colonel Crampton said.

I suffered with gas pains and cramps. My kidneys and bladder were weak and I suffered severe pains. My liver was sluggish and I had an unhealthy color. Constipation had bothered me for years."

"I knew many people who had been benefited by Konjola and finally gave this medicine a trial. The relief was swift and permanent. Today my kidney trouble has cleared up and my bladder functions normally. My stomach is in excellent condition and I have an excellent appetite. AT THE VONCASTLE

"Wedding Rings" Opens With Splendid Cast. "Golden Call" Last Times To-Night

"Wedding Rings," the first National Vitaphone picturization of Ernest Pascal's novel, "The Dark Strand," which plays Wednesday and Thursday at the Voncastle Theatre, retains in the film version all the delightful sophistication of the book. This story of the struggle of two sisters for the love of one man represents the most mature, intelligent type of screen entertainment ushered in with the advent of talking pictures.

Lois Wilson and H. B. Warner, who are co-featured, make an admirable team.

"Wedding Rings," carried along by a sparkling dialogue, moves swiftly and always commands interest. Sophisticated drama, which so often languishes on the screen with a dull thud, is handled here with just the right touch and the result is a delightful entertainment.

One of the best features of the picture is the dialogue. Every member of the cast possesses a trained voice, and the stident qualities which mark many of the early talking films are entirely absent. Every word the lips say is distinctly reconal.

Added to the Voncastles Wednesday-Thursday Program will be an all-talk Laurel-Hardy Comedy entitled "Blotto" and another of the interesting Traveltals.

To-Night "The Golden Call" the Musical Movietone production featuring a cast of popular players will have its final showing.

GOLDEN DAWN

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
This story is based on Warner Bros. Vitaphone production of the play by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II.

SYNOPSIS
Fair-skinned Dawn, mystery girl, becomes the bride of the black god Malungu, against her wishes. Her sweetheart, Tom Allen, is transported to England where he enlists and is with the colonial troops that capture, without bloodshed, the British Protectorate in East Africa. Shep Keyes, ship-captain, bully of the natives, had used a ruse to get Tom out of Africa. He hopes to intimidate Dawn by threatening to expose her to the natives as a white girl. Shep's plans are foiled by the arrival of the British soldiers.

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-SIX
His words were, of course, a native prayer. But his refusal to accord it the customary singing delivery was his means of expressing his contempt for his fellow blacks. Eric was aware of his attitude, but Colonel Judson, unfamiliar with Shep's vagaries, merely looked at him dumbly.
"It isn't that—"
The Colonel's words were drowned by the disconsolate "Ay-ee-ay-ee" of the natives, a cry that rose like a tortured "Amen." Shep was quick to press his advantages. "De heat burns de jungle wit' fire," he screamed, feigning uncon-

Dawn was to be sacrificed!

trollable frenzy. "Do streams are dry in dere beds!"
"Ay-ee-ay-ee!" shrieked the natives.
Succumbing to the frenzy, both feigned and real, all about him, Hasmall began to chant in shrill tones, each word a challenge. Waving his arms and saluting to an unseen god, he chanted:
"The mothers beat their breast and cry.
Fathers dare de Hons in their huts, thirst-erazed.
Our children weep with swollen lips and die!
Over all, the hand of death is raised!"

Hasmall's genuine distress, and his crudely effective phraseology rather horrified the whites. A murmur of sympathy rose from the veranda. But before the natives could discover that their plight was exciting pity, Shep signaled them to continue their observation of the rites.
"Have mercy on us!" he implored wildly.
Immediately the natives joined in with him.
"Oh, have merc' on us" they begged. "Have mercy!"
"Show mercy to us!" cooed Shep.
Again there rose the wailing "Ay-ee-ay-ee."
Shep continued his exhortations. "Pray for water for de parched throats of our people. For de babies dat suffer and cry. And de men who die on de trail wit de swollen tongues hangin' in de sun. Pray for water."
In greater volume the natives' cry rose to amend his words. "Ay-ee-ay-ee. Mercy to us! Ay-ee-ay-ee!" For several moments they sustained the shuddery harmonic note. When it died they stood silent, expectant. Eric slipped down the steps to Judson's side.
"This seems dangerous," he said.
"Listen, men of Africa," said the Colonel, quick to appreciate that they were likely to become unmanageable if he remained silent. "England is your friend. I, too, am your friend. We, too, suffer from the drought. We, too, wish the rain would come."
Hasmall addressed him sharply in surprise. "You wish the rain would come?"
"Certainly," returned the Colonel. "We wish it with all our hearts."
"If you wish it," demanded Hasmall unreasonably, "why you not order it?"
"Careful now," cautioned Eric in low tones.
"I order it?" repeated Judson testily. "I am no witchman!"
"Then you don't keep the rain from falling?" said Hasmall.
"Certainly not!"
As if the Colonel's words confirmed their own doubtful suspicions, the natives upraised glad shouts to triumph. Rapidly they began to speak in their incomprehensible jargon; all of them cries of incomprehensible joy. Hasmall turned to them and raised his hands for silence.

"You have told us," the priest said, "that the white man do not stop the rain and make our people die. My people believe you. It is our own goddess who is to blame Our Thabu."
"No, no!" exclaimed Eric in involuntary protest.
"And we sacrifice Dawn!" Hasmall went on deliberately. "She is false to Malungu."
Colonel Judson shook his head. "No, Hasmall," he said; "I cannot permit any lives to be sacrificed."
"Then we all die," declared Hasmall.
"That is not likely, Hasmall. This drought cannot continue much longer. Not many will die."
"Not you white men, who are few," said Hasmall menacingly. He indicated his terrified followers, who all raised their spears to inform him of their fighting strength. Judson looked disturbed.
"You are few," continued Hasmall significantly, "and we are many."
He made no effort to conceal his threat. Hasmall, a believer in the voodooism he so fervently practiced, was not to be balked in making a sacrifice to a god whose dispensations were so urgently needed.
"Our men are as numerous," he continued, his grieving tone still heavy with warning, "as the fallen leaves of our dying trees."
Judson turned to Eric for counsel. "I think," advised the German, it would be well to let them have their way for the present. It would be days before such a sacrifice could be offered. Meanwhile, there's always a chance that it might rain."
"Perhaps it would be better," admitted the Englishman. "But I don't like it. When," he asked Hasmall, "will you hold this sacrifice?"
"Three days shall we pray and offer incense to our god," answered Hasmall, "then if no rain comes, she dies as all false brides of Malungu die—on the Hills of Skulls."
Confident that rain would surely come before the natives had fully prepared for their sacrifice, Judson felt cheered by Hasmall's answer. But he hesitated to give ready consent to the plan and thus give the natives the impression that they had gained a victory over him.
"But you see, Hasmall," he temporized, "three days is so short a time to wait."
"My people believe our goddess false, and they will wait no longer," said Hasmall firmly.
The British officer turned to Eric for additional advice. Aware that Judson was merely feigning this deliberation, Eric assumed an expression of deep thought. For several minutes he exchanged whispered trifles with Judson while the natives stared in wonder. Finally Judson spoke up.
"Hasmall," he began with affected understanding of the priest's great problem, "I have become convinced that your grievance is just. Pray for three days, as you plan. I am sure your goddess will send you rain."
Bowing stiffly, Hasmall turned and summoned the natives to him. In excited voices they discussed the Colonel's decision and gradually wandered in small groups into the jungles. Shep loitered behind, as though desirous of being invited to the veranda. With no invitation forthcoming, he bestowed a final surly glance upon the whites and went upon his way.
"There's one nigger," observed Blink thoughtfully, his eyes on the departing whip man, "who's going to see to it that this sacrifice goes through."
Content that the rain would arrive in time to prevent the natives from executing their barbarous sacrifice, Colonel Judson turned his thoughts to other details. His first duty was to select the quota of German prisoners who were to be returned home under the terms of exchange.
"Well," he greeted Eric, "you soon will be fighting in happier places."
"I am being returned to Germany?" asked Eric, surprised.
"Yes, you head the quota. It's a pleasure to give you this good news."
Eric smiled. "It's odd," he observed introspectively, "here I am a little sad about returning. More and more I am beginning to understand Tom Allen's reluctance to go back to England. I now see his point entirely."
Judson turned to him questioningly. "I'm not quite clear," he said. "You don't want to go."
"It isn't that," Eric hastily assured him. "As in Tom's case the time of departure is not a happy one, I'm thinking of that poor goddess they're so determined to burn."
"Don't let's talk of it," remonstrated Judson. "I don't want any worries until I must have them."
He continued.

WANT LOWER RATES

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., June 9 (UP)—The Bloomington city council has deferred until Tuesday evening definite action in appealing to the Indiana public service commission for a reduction of rates charged for electricity supplied by the Interstate Public Service Company.
Tuesday was announced as for the purpose of having large power users join the city in petitioning the commission.
However, if no other signers are obtained, the city will proceed alone, according to Mayor Joseph Campbell.

POLICE HALT USED CAR LOT

FORT WAYNE, Ind., June 9 (UP)—A plan to sell cars from a used car lot and then recover insurance by reporting them stolen, was halted by police recently with the arrest of Theodore Gemmer, used car dealer.
Gemmer was alleged to have sold three cars at $15 to a junk dealer with instructions that the machines were to be junked immediately. The purchaser refused to junk them before certificates of title were transferred and police found the cars on his junk pile.

THE WORST PERIODS

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9 (UP)—Boys and girls are at their worst during the week following the opening and closing of school and the third week in October it was shown today in a survey of Indianapolis' delinquent records published by the Indiana University bureau of social research.

Excuberance at the end of the school year, after students have attended classes for nine months, leads to revelry that is reflected in high rate of delinquency for the first week after school closes.
"Playing hooky" the first week of school brings the more flagrant violators into court, the survey shows and about the third week in October, the less flagrant cases which have become consistent and cannot be properly handled by truant officers, are taken to court.
Monday is the worst day in the week for juvenile offenders in Indianapolis. More than one-fifth of all the cases during the year came on Monday according to the reports.
Business and industrial districts of Indianapolis, where rents are low and families are large, show high rate of delinquency. In some of these districts, the rate of delinquency varies from about 15 to 24 delinquents per 1,000 children of school age. Lack of playground facilities and overcrowding are given as causes of the high rate in this district.
Boys commit their depredations in gangs, in a spirit of adventure, the survey showed. Girls, on the other hand, misbehave as individuals, more than half of their delinquencies are of a petty character and the others consist chiefly of petty stealing.

WATGOS KILLED 31,000 IN UNITED STATES LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Increasing at a more rapid rate than motor vehicle registration, street motor vehicle traffic accidents in the United States last year were responsible for 33,060 deaths, 31,000 due to automobiles, and 1,200,000 injuries of which 1,000,000 were laid to motor cars. It is reported by the committee on traffic statistics of the National Conference on Street and National Safety.
According to the report, there was an average of one traffic accident every sixteen minutes during the year. Traffic fatalities increased by 2,513 or 8.2 per cent, over 1928. The increase in fatalities due directly to motor vehicles in the same time was 10.8 per cent over 1928 and 147 per cent over 1920.
States with complete systems for licensing motor vehicle operators and administering traffic laws showed the lowest accident death rate from traffic causes, said the report, which was signed by Julius H. Parmelee, director of the Bureau of Railway Economics.
The committee found that in the sections of the country without drivers license systems the traffic death rate increased more than twice as rapidly from 1920 to 1928, as it did in areas with licensing systems.

The National Safety Council was quoted on economic losses resulting from motor vehicle accidents as follows:

"The economic costs of motor vehicle traffic accidents continue to rise along with the number of deaths and injuries. These costs are now approximately $350,000,000 greater annually than in 1923.
"The estimate for 1929 is $850,000,000 compared with $500,000,000 estimate for 1928 by first National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.
"The conference estimated $600,000,000 for all traffic accidents, of which approximately $500,000,000 could be charged to motor vehicles alone. A billion dollars of waste every year from motor vehicle accidents will soon become a reality unless something is done to check the increase."
The report showed that the traffic fatality rate per 100,000 population rose steadily from 16 in 1920 to 27.2 in 1929. The increase in fatalities from 1928 to 1929 was one of the largest, both absolutely and relatively, that has occurred during the past.
"Returns for the first four months of 1930 show no improvement," the committee added. "In fact, statistics indicate an even greater rate of increase over 1929 than 1929 showed over 1928. Clearly, the problem is not only serious, but is growing more serious each year."

FARM BUREAU GIVES REASONS FOR A NEW CONSTITUTION

In the current issue of the Hoosier Farmer, official publication of the Indiana Farm Bureau, Lewis Taylor, vice-president and in charge of the Tax and Legislative Department, goes into details as to why organized agriculture in the state favors a constitutional convention, the referendum for which will be voted upon at the coming fall election.

"In the first place," says Mr. Taylor "our present constitution was made to meet conditions as they existed eighty years ago. Conditions have changed. We now live in a new social, educational, industrial and business world not dreamed of at that time. We have changed the canal boat to the Leviathan, from the stage coach to the locomotive and airplane, from the courier on horse back to the telephone and radio and from the 'shin plaster' and 'coon skin' to the modern bank note and credit instrument—all as strange to the authors of our present constitution as America was to Columbus."

He states that the present tax section is altogether out of date and should be revised as about 74 per cent of the income of the state from all sources under our present tax section escapes all direct taxes an injustice that will finally destroy a free government such as ours.

"We must recognize our judicial system by providing for the appointment of judges by the Governor and with the consent of the Senate instead of electing them, thus taking this important and coordinate branch of our government out of politics so far as it can possibly be done," he says. "This will expedite justice and bring its cost within the reach of the poor as well as the rich and bring more efficient men to the bench."

The Farm Bureau official suggests that the ballot be so simplified that only the most important officers are made elective. He says our educational system should be so revised that educational opportunities should be equally open to all and completely divided from politics. Objection is also shown to that part of the constitution providing wherein any voter of good moral character is permitted to practice law although he may be wholly unqualified. And other sections regarding the present day jurists which are utterly incompetent to determine the law and it is necessary that the judge instruct them as to the law.

The First Security bank is a small state bank affiliated with the First National.

New Fire Rules For Gas Dealers

STATE MARSHAL ISSUES WARNING TODAY

Stringent rules regarding the dispensation of gasoline at filling stations and the conditions about the tanks and pumps have been established by Alfred M. Hogston, state fire marshal. The new rules, which are amendatory to several which have previously been in effect, outlaw the "serve yourself" stations and the lighted cigaret near the pumps.

The rules forbid smoking within 50 feet of a place where gasoline is being pumped, out and reinforces the old rules that auto tanks shall not be filled while the motor is running or the lights are burning.

Hogston asserted in connection with the issuance of his new rules that greater danger is incurred in "serve yourself" stations than practically any other one thing. He pointed out that customers are likely to be careless in the matter of smoking and that spillage is always greater where no regular attendant is on duty.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. June 9 (UP)

Utilization of a high frequency radio tube in the home to produce a "Fever Heat" in the body of a person to supply warmth in place of a furnace, was suggested today as a possibility by Dr. W. R. Whitney, of The General Electric Company laboratory.

Dr. Whitney, however, has not conducted any experiments in this line nor is the idea backed by any fact, officials of the general Electric Company, who spoke for Dr. Whitney, were cautious to explain.

Dr. Whitney's suggestion of the possibility was the outcome of his experiments with his short wave, high frequency radio tube, which he perfected three years ago and which is able to transmit terrific heat, it is said.

If perfected for use in the home,
