The Mrs. Cleveland Hat has come into fashion in Washington. Just before leaving for Marion, the President's wife purchased a soft felt hat, drab in color and Alpine in shape. It was most becoming to her, and those competent to judge said it was the handsomest headgear she had worn at the Capital. The result has been that young women of fashion, whether they be blondes or brunettes, have adopted the new hat, and in this instance, above all others, Mrs. Cleveland's example has been felt.—New York World, July 31, 1888.

We have just received the above mentioned hat in all colors. Also new fall hats in straw.

A full line of Campaign Caps, Badges and handkerchiefs.
